Two-China Idea A Clumsy Trick, Claims Peking

Times News Services

China today described the United States' decision to support Peking's membership in the United Nations as a "clumsy 'two-Chinas' trick."

And in Washington President Nixon cautioned against hopes that his talks with the Chinese leaders will lead to an immediate end to the Vietnam war.

The New China News Agency issued its first comment on the announcement Monday that the U.S. would support seating of Peking at the UN "but not at the expense of Nationalist China." It was the United States continued support for the Nationalists that evoked the sharp criticism rom Peking.

'ILLEGAL, FUTILE'

"The clumsy 'two Chinas' trick played by U.S. imperialism is absolutely illegal and futile," the NCNA article said. "We are deeply convinced that the justice-upholding countries and people of the world will never allow anyone under the signboard of 'two Chinas' to continue to . . . obstruct the restoration to the People's Republic of China of her legitimate seat in the United Nations."

Nixon at a news conference said when he meets Chinese leaders every "hard problem" facing the two countries and the world will be subject to discussion.

Speaking to reporters crowded around his desk, Nixon described China as "potentially the most powerful nation in the world." He said "there cannot be world peace unless there is communication" between China and the United States.

There are "no conditions" and "no deals" with the Communist Chinese about the subjects of discussion.

"We will discuss any point of difference that might affect the peace of the world," he said.

Nixon also made these points:

- Neither the Soviet Union nor Washington sees any real point in his (Nixon) making a side trip to Moscow while going to China.
- He stands by his prediction that 1971 will be "a good year" for the U.S. economy and that 1972 will be "a very good year."
- The United States will maintain a policy of "complete neutrality" regarding the forthcoming elections in South Vietnam.
- The United States will boost its help for the victims of famine in East Pakistan but will not cut off its aid to the Pakistani government.

MAJOR TOPICS

The president's planned trip to Peking and the state of the economy were the major topics at the news session. Nixon said a "small working party" consisting of State Secretary William P. Rogers and Henry A. Kissinger, a close adviser, will accompany him.

In the United Nations the U.S. worked behind the scenes to line up support for resolutions that would invite the Communists to join and at the same time prevent the expulsion of Taiwan.

ASK SPONSORS

Cabinet Takes Second Look At Health Rules

Premier Bennett announced today the provincial government is going to discuss possible "improvements" in recent orders-in-council which have angered the medical profession.

Bennett said Provincial Secretary Wesley Black and Health Minister Ralph Loffmark will head separate committees to discuss the orders-in-council with the medical profession.

The orders gave Black's department the power to license medical laboratories and Loffmark the power to decide whether doctors get hospital privileges.

Bennett said the orders, which are still in effect, had served the purpose of bringing "forcibly to the attention of the parties involved" the government's aim to have the "great reforms" of medicare and hospital insurance programs continued in B.C.

Strikers Greet Trudeau

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Striking fish plant workers and electricians were among the crowd greeting Prime Minister Trudeau when he arrived here today.

The placard-waving workers represented members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Newfoundland Fishermen, Food and Allied Workers.

Both unions have been on strike about two months in jurisdictional disputes, the IBEW against the Newfoundland and Labrador Construction Association and the fishermen against Burgeo Fisheries Ltd.

Mr. Trudeau, clad in a pink sport shirt and blue slacks, shook hands and spoke with several people as he made his way into the arts and culture centre in the north end of the city where he was greeted by Premier Joseph Smallwood.

The prime minister arrived at 1 p.m., a half-hour late following a 117-mile trip by automobile from Swift Current where he and Mrs. Trudeau spent the night at Transport Minister Don Jamieson's summer estate.

The prime minister and Mr. Smallwood were to have a private luncheon at the centre and a news conference was scheduled after the luncheon.

High winds postponed the annual St. John's Regatta on Quidi Vidi Lake in the city's east end. The prime minister had been scheduled to spend a couple of hours at the regatta.

PAKISTANIS SEEK U.S. ASYLUM

14 Embassy Staff Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen members of the Pakistan embassy here, including seven senior diplomatic officers, resigned today, pledging loyalty to the Bangla Desh independence movement in East Pakistan and asking for political asylum in the United States.

The resignations included one ranking minister, three counsellors, one second secretary, one third secretary and the deputy permanent representative of the Pakistan mission to the United Nations.

"This is our moment of decision," said Sayyed A. Karim, the No. 2 Pakistan representative at the UN. "We have decided to join the suffering millions of Bangla Desh who are resisting with their lives the barbarity of the West Pakistan army who are determined to reduce East Pakistan to a colony."

Karim declared that the Pakistan government "now is a military junta of West Pakistanis desperate to retain its stranglehold over the country.

"It has nullified the results of a free and fair election held under its own auspices only seven months back. It has chosen to mute the majority of the people by the most savage application of brute force.

"It's authority rests totally on its military strength and its control is limited by the range of its artillery. It has therefore lost all pretences to legitimacy of power and it has destroyed the Pakistani nation."

Greece, Pakistan May Lose Aid

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The House of Representatives has called for the suspension of United States foreign aid to the Greek and Pakistan military governments.

The House approved Tuesday night by only eight votes a two-year U.S. foreign aid authorization bill containing provisions suspending economic and military aid to the two countries.

Informed congressional sources said the administration decided not to oppose openly the provisions to avoid possible defeat of its entire foreign aid bill.

However House Republican Leader Gerald Ford said President Nixon will use an "escape clause" to allow provision of aid to Greece, a NATO ally, in the security interests of the United States.

The narrowness of Tuesday night's vote—220 to 192—made it clear the foreign aid bill would have been defeated by a combination of conservatives opposed to aid in general and liberal critics of the Greek and Pakistan governments had the administration tried to delete the suspensions.

The administration, which is walking a diplomatic tightrope with both Greece and Pakistan, as well as Congress, thus gained House approval of the bill providing $3.44 billion for the current fiscal year which began July 1, and $3.49 billion for fiscal 1973.

Israel Said Conceding

JERUSALEM (AP) — Newspapers here say Israel is ready to pull troops back 25 miles from the Suez Canal as part of an agreement to reopen the waterway but still will not permit Egyptian soldiers to replace the Israelis on the eastern bank.

The reports say Premier Golda Meir will give his decision to U.S. Assistant State Secretary Joseph Sisco today at their third meeting since Sisco arrived last week.

The newspaper Davar says Sisco relayed an Egyptian proposal for several hundred Egyptian soldiers to cross the canal following the Israeli evacuation. But the report says Mrs. Meir, after consulting her cabinet, decided to reject the proposal.

BEER TO FLOW

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia beer strike and lockout, involving 250 workers for Molson and Labatt in Vancouver and many of the province's beer drinkers, is expected to end Thursday.

Longshore Strike Feels Cool Breeze

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Progress in local bargaining at four ports has brought the first sign of movement in the month long U.S. West Coast longshoremen's strike.

Edwin W. Scott, regional director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, said Tuesday a meeting of three western governors on the strike was postponed because of progress in talks on work-rules and jurisdiction in Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

"Getting these matters out of the way will give both sides the opportunity to meet on the big picture, the main issues, of a coastside contract," said Scott.

Governors of California, Washington and Oregon were set to talk with union and management here today until J. Curtis Counts, director of the mediation service in Washington, D.C., postponed their meeting indefinitely.

Counts' office declined to say whether the walkout of 15,000 dock workers might end soon at 24 West Coast ports.

French Move Sends Gold Prices Flying

Dollar Weak, U.K. Market Hit Hard

LONDON (UPI) — New French currency regulations notified to Paris banks sparked a sudden foreign currency storm today, sent the gold price soaring and helped send the British stock market sharply lower.

The U.S. dollar was weak in most European centres, market sources said. The Canadian dollar retained stability.

Foreign exchange dealers stopped quoting rates for a short while in already jittery markets while hoping to clarify the situation. Some dealers later limited themselves to handling French francs only for immediate commercial transactions. Uncertainty gripped markets and produced erratic rate movements in later trading.

Rumors from Zurich hit the market to the effect that Swiss banks had suspended all Swiss franc-dollar dealings. But it was reported from Switzerland that only a few local banks pulled out.

A spokesman for one of the big three banks said they were still trading dollars and Swiss francs, but on a more limited scale than usual.

NORMAL ENOUGH

A London dealer said the session opened normally enough but markets plunged into confusion by noon when interpretations of the French banking circular flowed in.

By the afternoon some banks in London said they still were not entirely clear about the true meaning and impact of the new French money rules.

In some quarters the French move was construed as underlining French doubts about the health of the U.S. dollar. Others felt it was intended to kill speculation about an upward revaluation of the French franc.

Another rumor roaming markets was that France had started a two-tier foreign exchange system which French officials later denied.

HIGHLY NERVOUS

One dealer said today exchange markets had been highly nervous since the West German mark broke away from its fixed rate against the dollar in May and was permitted to "float" in response to bank and market pressures.

The Swiss franc was then also up-valued along with the Austrian schilling, and the Dutch guilder also "floated."

The dollar has been suspect in Europe's markets for weeks and gossip of devaluation grew with the heavy flow of dismal economic news from the United States.

This distrust was partly mirrored in the recent speculative upsurge in the price of free market gold and the rush to sell dollars and buy West German marks, Swiss francs,

BABY SATELLITE HANGS AROUND MOON

Times News Services

A small satellite was to be ejected by the Apollo 15 astronauts this afternoon as they prepared to head home after almost six days of moon exploration. See story on Page 3.

Also on the agenda is man's farthest-out space walk. Alfred Worden will take the space walk Thursday to retrieve film canisters from a rear equipment bay.

The satellite will be rolled out on rails from the equipment bay and released by spring ejection into an orbit about 70 miles above the moon.

Canada, U.S.S.R. Agree On Arctic Research

MOSCOW (Reuter)—Agreement on establishing a Canadian-Soviet group on Arctic research was announced today by Jean Chretien, Canada's northern development minister.

Speaking at the end of a 10,000-mile visit to Siberia, Chretien said Russian officials have also raised the possibility of future Canadian-Soviet Arctic expeditions.

Chretien is heading the first official Canadian delegation to the Soviet Union since Prime Minister Trudeau's Moscow visit last May to sign a Canadian-Soviet protocol on consultations.

After his Siberian trip, which included a night in a tent on the tundra, wastes eating raw fish and drinking vodka with Chukchi tribesmen, Chretien told reporters Canada can learn from Soviet development of gas pipelines and hydroelectric dams built on permafrost, a permanently frozen layer of soil.

Canada and Russia agreed during a visit here last January by Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin to set up joint working groups to co-operate in the fields of forest-based industry, non-ferrous metals, electrical power and oil.

URGES SPEED

Noting this agreement in a statement published today Chretien said: "I hope that co-operation in the fields of hydroelectric dam construction on permafrost, building construction in the far north and gas pipeline construction on permafrost will move forward quickly in this manner."

He also held out prospects of co-operation in cultural development, special education for northern peoples, natural resource development, northern science research and northern transportation.

He said Canada will start work on a Soviet request for Canada to supply a small group of muskox as a base for re-establishing the species in the Soviet Union.

Much of Chretien's Siberian journey was spent in the vast developing region called Yakutia. In his statement, he described how he saw hydroelectric developments, mining, natural gas, forest industry, fishing and reindeer-herding.

He particularly noted the intensive development of river and air transportation in some areas where there are still no roads.

PENNY MAY LEADING

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Penny May of Victoria led the 13 contestants in the Pan-American Games pentathlon after two events today with favored Debbie Van Kiekebelt of Mississauga, Ont., in third place.

Miss May, who won a third-place bronze medal in the 100-metre hurdles Sunday, compiled 1,627 points by recording the second-best time in the hurdles, 14 seconds flat, and leading the field in the shot put with a throw of 41 feet 7¼ inches.

Marien Elejalde of Cuba, whose 13.7 was the best time in the hurdles, had 1561 points to 1,545 for Miss Van Kiekebelt, who ran the hurdles in 14.5 and heaved the shot 40 feet 6¾ inches second only to Miss May's effort.

Japan Upset Over 'Agent'

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan lodged an official protest with the Soviet Union today after police arrested a Japanese on suspicion of passing confidential documents on United States military bases here to a Soviet diplomat in Tokyo.

RUSSIA-U.S. REACH ACCORD

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Russia have completed a new draft treaty banning all biological weapons, western disarmament officials said today.

It is planned to present the treaty to the 25-nation disarmament conference Thursday, the officials said.

American and Soviet negotiators hope the rest of the conference participants will approve the draft so that it can be sent to the United Nations General Assembly in October, they said.

PETITIONS SUPREME COURT IN SAIGON

Ky Running to Climb on Presidential Bandwagon

SAIGON (CP) — Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky petitioned the Supreme Court today for a place on the Oct. 3 presidential ballot, but his petitions lacked 38 of the 100 necessary certified endorsements by provincial councilmen.

"I have not given up," Ky told a news conference. "I am still fighting."

If the court rejects his petitions, Ky said, "then we will see what happens."

He conceded that his petition was partly an appeal to public opinion, and his aides acknowledged that they do not expect the court to accept his candidacy. His application was temporarily accepted by the court pending a final decision.

Ky circulated a list of 102 councilmen he said had signed for him, but he said 40 of them had been forced to endorse Thieu earlier. He asked the court to award these to him. He charges that Thieu used pressure to collect signatures which he did not need and at the same time prevent province chiefs and mayors from certifying endorsements given to Ky.

Ky accused Thieu of using his power to abuse the law and his money to monopolize the election.

He said the election has become a fraud and is beneath contempt.

"There seems to be no limitation to the dishonest schemes in this election," Ky said.

"President Thieu has used his power to abuse the law and his money to monopolize the election," the vice-president said.

He said he deems it his duty to alert people to the dangers of a dishonest election.

Flanked by his proposed vice-presidential running mate, Truong Vinh Le, Ky said the Thieu administration has used terror and intimidation against provincial councillors to force them not to endorse his application.

. . . BENNETT

He said rising costs were a factor in the passage of the orders but not the entire reason for them.

Bennett said the two committees will discuss the possibility of "improving" the orders if necessary to ensure that "proper responsibility" is shared by the government and the people involved in spending money under medicare and hospital insurance programs.

INVITATIONS

The premier said invitations have been issued by the two ministers for the discussions.

Solutions "satisfactory to all" will be the aim of the talks, in keeping with the ideals of a democratic society, Bennett said.

"If costs go out the window, that is the only way we will destroy these two great reforms," he said.

Bennett said the issues shouldn't be considered in the light of conflict — such as whether the government or the doctors should "give in" — but in the light of the need for co-operation.

Bennett said the discussions would be held "in a free manner and would make clear to the medical and hospital people "what the aims of the government really are."

He said the moves are being taken now that enough time has elapses since the passage of the orders to ensure that everyone is aware of the government's aims.

BARRETT HIT

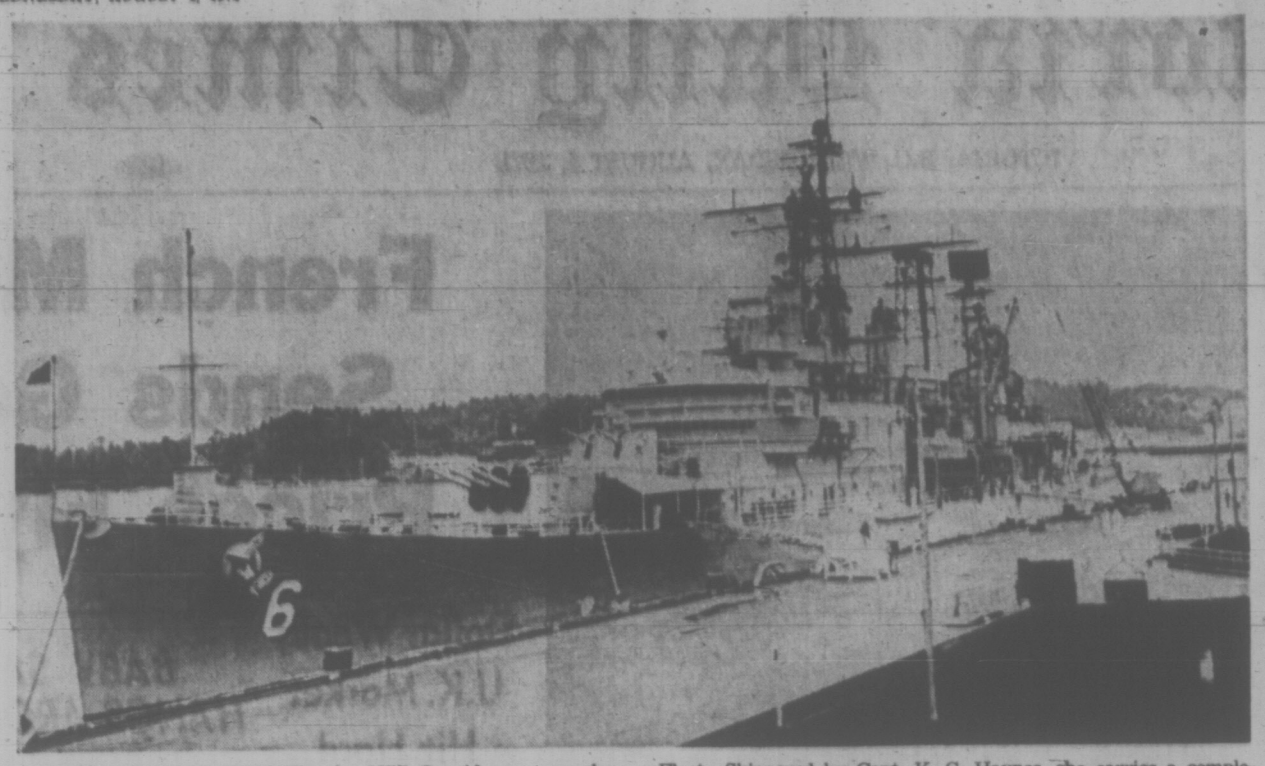
Bennett also criticized opposition leader Dave Barrett for having described the use of orders-in council as an abuse of democratic process.

He said the Social Credit party in its early election campaigns was opposed to the use of secret orders-in-council, not to the proper use of publicly announced cabinet policies.

"How stupid can he be?" Bennett said of Barrett's complaints.

The premier declined to say that the government is prepared to abandon the controversial orders.

"We want to get the proper results," he said, stressing that the aim is to ensure medicare and hospital insurance programs continue "in perpetuity."



GUIDED-MISSILE CRUISER, the USS Providence, snuggles alongside a jetty in the dockyard of CFB, Esquimalt. Open to the public today from 1:30 to 4 p.m., the San Diego-based vessel is the flagship of Vice-Admiral R. E. Peet, commander of the 1st Fleet. Skippered by Capt. K. G. Haynes, she carries a complement of 91 officers, 800 men and 32 midshipmen. She leaves Esquimalt Thursday at 8 a.m.

Daylight Train Robbery in Lachine

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Five masked men, "armed to the teeth," staged a spectacular daylight robbery of the Canadian National Railway's Lakeshore passenger Montreal to Toronto train but apparently were frustrated in their search for cash.

"If we find out that the money was really on this train we'll come back and cut your throats," one of the bandits told engineer Max Bassett, of Two Mountains, Que.

Mr. Bassett, interviewed here after the robbery in Lachine, an east-end suburb of Montreal, said he stopped the train at a signal crossing when three armed men came to the engineer's cab and told him to get out.

"They told us to put the brakes on and then lie in the grass," Mr. Bassett said. "Then they changed their minds and took us to the baggage cars (about four cars back of the engine.)

"They were definitely looking for money," he said. "They told us so. When we got to the baggage car there were another two men already there ripping open bags of mail."

Four of the masked gunmen were armed with revolvers and a fifth wielded a sub-machine gun.

The gunmen ran across a field carrying three packages from the mail sacks and fled in a blue sedan parked in a nearby clump of trees.

"I was surprised they had enough guts and stayed for five minutes," said Mr. Bassett. "The men left with parcels and ran over to their car."

The robbery may have been prompted by rumours that a $500,000 shipment was on one of the Montreal to Toronto trains.

The rumour was not confirmed or denied but engineer Bassett said: "I guess they got the wrong train."

CARRIED NO CASH

Mr. Bassett, who has been an engineer for 20 years, said he didn't think the robbers "got away with very much. All they said was, 'do what you're told and you won't get hurt.'"

A spokesman for the post office investigation department said that the only valuable in the postal consignment was a $1,000 bond. There was no cash, he said.

Mr. Bassett said no shots were fired. He said the gunmen spoke English with a heavy French accent.

"They didn't rough us up and the guy kept pushing that machine gun in my back," said Mr. Bassett. "After making it through World War Two, I wasn't going to let that crook do me in."

A police spokesman said the men stopped the train while it was moving slowly in an area where CN said it often stops on a block signal.

The spokesman said the men were wearing rubber masks or masks fashioned from women's stocking.

Residents, Modellers Come to Agreement

A delegation representing petitioners who complained two weeks ago to Central Saanich council appeared Monday with peaceful acceptance of the modellers' new practise schedule "for duration of the '71 flying season."

Flying hours are from 6-8:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday.

They stipulated however that the plane club keep to the far eastern end of the polo fields beside East Saanich Road, install proper mufflers and look for more isolated grounds.

Robert Durke of the plane club was happy with the residents' co-operation but warned "there is no end to the flying season."

Modellers continue to fly in winter but are, of course, restricted by hours of daylight. Durke suggested that longer week-end practises might be arranged at that time.

Central Saanich council agreed that residents and modellers had reached a reasonable solution for the time being — and will reassess the matter at the end of September.

French francs and even the British pound.

In most European centres, state banks have recently had to prop up the dollar to prevent it falling below its official "floor" price set by the International Monetary Fund.

It was against this highly charged and rumor-ridden background that the new French ruling hit the exchange markets.

It said, in part, that as from Aug. 3 French banks can sell no more francs than than they buy. The government also eased some of its controls on money movements out of the country.

The Bank of France today issued a communique which denied rumors about the creation of a double or two-tier money exchange market but said its own circular had "resulted in erroneous interpretations."

Financial quarters in Paris saw the new regulatory move as a bid to reduce pressures for an upwards revaluation of the French franc by encouraging an outflow of the currency.

It was also seen as a way of halting the flow of international "hot" money into France.

French assurances could not immediately calm frayed nerves on London's butling but confused foreign exchange markets and dealings in French francs dwindled sharply, particularly in dollar-franc dealings.

The sources said the resolutions will be submitted for the General Assembly session opening Sept. 21 as soon as the delegations determined whether their governments will become co-sponsors.

The first resolution would offer the Communist regime in Peking a seat in the United Nations, would specify that the Nationalist government on Taiwan would continue to be seated and would direct the specialized UN agencies to take the decision into account.

As a further safeguard to Nationalist China's membership, the second resolution would classify any resolution to expel the Nationalists as an "important" question requiring for its adoption a two-thirds majority of those voting.

Premiers to Discuss Health, Tax Problems

Premiers of most Canadian provinces were to arrive in Victoria today for the 12th annual conference of premiers opening at 10 a.m. Thursday in the legislative chamber.

Held here in honor of the centennial of British Columbia's entry into confederation the meeting will discuss matters of common interest to the provinces including the state of the Canadian economy.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec said he may take advantage of the meeting to hold private conversations with some premiers about the constitution.

But Premier Bennett said the Victoria charter, the constitutional agreement rejected by Quebec following the constitutional conference here in June, won't be on the agenda.

Of the 10 Canadian premiers, the only one not putting in an appearance will be Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland who hasn't attended a premiers' conference for the past 10 years.

One of the new faces will be Premier Allan Blakeney, who recently led his New Democratic Party to victory in Saskatchewan. An adjournment tonight of a special session of the provincial legislature will allow him to attend.

Blakeney, who will be accompanied by Attorney-General Roy Romanow, said he hopes the conference agenda will include discussion of the problems of controlling health costs and increased provincial co-operation on agricultural matters.

One of the major issues to be pursued by Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba will be the implications of the proposed federal withdrawal from the estate tax field.

Unless there is some uniformity in the provinces' reaction to such federal measures, Ottawa's decision on estate taxes "will compound the tax jungle," he said.

The Manitoba premier, who will be accompanied by Finance Minister Saul Cherniack and Mines Minister Sidney Green, agreed with Blakeney that rising costs of medical care as well as hospital insurance programs should be discussed.

HAS TAX BEEFS

Further objections to the federal tax structure are also expected to be raised by Ontario Premier William Davis. Ontario estimates, for example, that Ottawa's abandonment of death duties will cost the province $28 to $30 million a year and that it will be several years before a capital gains tax compensates for the loss.

Premier Harry Strom will attend the conference despite the pressures of his election campaign. The Alberta general election is Aug. 30.

No special points for discussion have been raised by the Maritime premiers Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick, Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia and Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island.

The first session of the conference begins at 10 a.m., shortly after an official greeting of the first ministers by Premier Bennett on the steps of the legislature.

All the sessions will be closed and there will be no opening statements or final communique.

Apollo Ready To Head Home

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 15 astronauts neared the end of six days of moon exploration today and prepared to fire out of lunar orbit and man's farthest-out space walk.

David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden will complete the experiments when they kick the satellite loose at 4:10 p.m. EDT.

At 5:20 p.m. they plan to start the engine of Endeavour to break away from lunar gravity and start the three-day journey back home.

SURVEYED BASE

"Looks like Boot Hill from a distance," one controller said. The instruments in the distance looked like tombstones.

After 14 minutes, the camera suddenly ceased transmitting. Efforts to restart it failed. Experts had no immediate explanation for the loss. Its batteries may have given out.

Worden will take the space walk Thursday—about 196,000 miles from earth and more than 40,000 miles from the moon—to retrieve film canisters from an equipment bay at the rear of the Endeavour.

Because the hatch will be opened, all three men will be exposed to the vacuum of space and will wear pressurized suits.

ADVISED TO EAT

Mission Control, aware that the astronauts could be tired Thursday after 10 days in space, advised them to "continue eating and drinking well because of the EVA (extra-vehicular activity) yet to come."

"I think we've consumed every meal as planned and we've made a pretty good cut into the pantry," Scott reported. "We've been eating and drinking a lot up here."

Astronauts traditionally have been reluctant to take medicine on space flights and Scott replied a bit testily: "No, there's been no medication taken by anybody on the flight."

Parker: "OK. However, we down here would like to recommend for all three of you to take one tonight just to make sure we get another good night's sleep."

Scott: "I think that's unnecessary."

Parker: "Well, that's our recommendation anyway."

Since Scott and Irwin completed man's most productive exploration on the surface of the moon Monday, the three astronauts have been in moon orbit operating a $17-million array of cameras and scientific instruments, chemically and photographically charting nearly 20 per cent of the lunar surface.

WEIGHS 78 POUNDS

The satellite is in the same equipment bay with the experiments. Rolled out on rails, it will be released by spring ejection into an orbit about 70 miles above the moon. It is 31 inches long and weighs 78.5 pounds.

Ground trackers hope to receive data from the payload for a year or more on the precise shape of the moon and on gravity, magnetic and electric fields.

Already relaying data is a $25-million nuclear-powered science station which Scott and Irwin deployed at Hadley Base near the moon's Apennine Mountains. Scientists reported they are receiving excellent signals on such phenomena as the lunar atmosphere, subsurface disturbances, radiation and the solar wind.

During three days on the moon, the explorers were outside the landing craft Falcon for nearly 19 hours, doubling the amount of time men spent on the moon in three previous landings, and travelling 17 miles in a motor car called Rover.

Commander Scott reported Tuesday they were bringing home between 175 and 180 pounds of rock and soil samples, enough to keep lunar geologists busy for years. Earlier, Mission Control estimated 230 pounds, but this included the weight of the containers.

'Political Action'

TORONTO (CP) — John F. Bulloch, who organized a citizens' group to fight for changes in government tax legislation proposals, announced today formation of a "political action" organization called the Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

Mr. Bulloch said the federation will attempt to influence political decisions on national issues but will not be affiliated with a political party or endorse political candidates.

The majority opinion of the members of the organization will be expressed through a polling procedure that he called the "mandate program." The program will involve mailing ballots to members to solicit opinions.

Mr. Bulloch formed the Canadian Council for Fair Taxation after release of a federal white paper on taxation—the basis for tax legislation introduced in June when the federal budget was brought down.

Mr. Bulloch said in an interview the council will continue in existence but will be less active. He said membership is about 10,000.

Would-Be Terrorist Charged

OTTAWA (CP) — A 35-year-old transient has been charged with attempting to extort $250,000 from Canadian Forces headquarters by threatening the armed forces with automatic weapons and explosives.

Robert Charles Davidson was remanded for mental examination after he appeared in court Wednesday.

His arrest followed an anonymous telephone call to Canadian Forces headquarters. The caller claimed possession of 900 automatic weapons and explosives and threatened to "turn the weapons against" military headquarters personnel within 24 hours if his demand for $250,000 was not met.

He said he would call again in one hour for their answer.

Authorities traced the call to a phone booth in the lobby of the Belle Claire Hotel and staked out the lobby. An hour later Davidson was arrested.

The anonymous call was received in the military communications centre, the scene of a terrorist bomb explosion last year which killed a civilian employee.

T-Fire Drains Effort

Vancouver Island is free of forest fires but the giant T-shaped blaze 125 miles north of Fort Nelson has blazed across 250,000 acres, forest officials said today.

A total of 556 men with 28 tractors and 35 aircraft are fighting 111 fires in the sprawling Prince George district.

"The T-fire is draining so much effort we hardly have enough men or equipment to fight the others," a spokesman said.

The fire is spreading northeasterly away from prime timber and into an area largely covered by scrub pine.

But the direction change brought the blaze to within a few miles of another fire started by lightning Monday. Forestry officials fear the two fires will meet and spread further.

On the west coast of Vancouver Island rain has improved conditions for logging and some companies are considering returning to an eight-hour work day.

In the past few weeks, loggers have been working on an early shift, between 4 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Subversive Panel Duties Expanded

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Nixon's expansion of the duties of the Subversive Activities Control Board won final U.S. congressional approval Tuesday night, squeaking past the Senate by a two-vote margin.

The Senate's 46-44 vote enables the nearly dormant SACB to become a hearing board on groups that Attorney General John Mitchell believes should be officially designed as subversive.

President Nixon, by executive order July 2, transferred to SACB the hearing function on subversive groups in an effort to revitalize the attorney-general's subversive list, which hasn't been updated since 1955.

The Senate cleared the way for the president's executive order to be implemented. It accepted a conference report on appropriations for the state, justice and commerce departments without a prohibition against SACB spending any of its $450,000 budget on new duties.

The House had passed the report, without any limitation on SACB funds, Monday.

Leading the fight to reject the report, Sen. Sam Ervin (D—N.C.) charged that the executive order was an attempt by Nixon to usurp Congress's legislative function and that it represented a return to McCarthyism.

Another Operation

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — The world's longest survivor of a heart-lung transplant, Adrian Herbert, has undergone a three-hour operation to repair a graft of one of the transplanted organs, said reports from South Africa's Groote Schuur Hospital today.

Hospital sources said today doctors discovered Tuesday that a rupture in the joint of the 49-year-old dental mechanic's windpipe was allowing air into the chest cavity, which could be fatal.

An operation was not carried out immediately, but a pipe was inserted between his ribs to draw the air out of the chest cavity.

Peterson Wants End to Parole For Traffickers

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson has asked the federal government for a crackdown on drug trafficking.

"In my view the pusher is the worst criminal in our country," Peterson said in a telegram to federal Justice Minister John Turner.

He called for an end to parole and remission of sentences for convicted drug traffickers.

"It is shocking where a sentence of six years is given on a criminal charge and the parole board releases the person in 18 months," Peterson said in the telegram.

* * *

"The courts can only be frustrated in their efforts to deal with a very serious problem if they are faced with this kind of action," he said.

(Peterson's office indicated later the case in question did not involve a drug trafficker but a bank teller who was convicted of stealing $494,000.)

In the telegram Peterson said he is "running into more and more problems in connection with drugs which, in practice, have been accepted as a federal responsibility."

* * *

He said heroin and other hard drugs are being used more extensively by younger people now than ever before.

Parole and remission of sentences should be banned for drug traffickers "to emphasize the seriousness with which we all treat trafficking," Peterson said.

A copy of the telegram was sent to Solicitor-General Jean Pierre Goyer, who is responsible for the National Parole Board.

Preliminary Steps

THE UNITED STATES' DECISION to support a vote to give China a seat in the United Nations Assembly this fall was not unexpected. It had become obvious that the principle of exclusion was becoming more and more untenable since, as State Secretary Rogers said, "after all, they represent about one-fourth of the people on the surface of the earth." The Chinese have represented that proportion for quite a few years, but Washington had never recognized the fact. The announcement, however, had become merely a matter of timing, and President Nixon evidently decided that now was the time. There could be little point in delaying it.

When Canada during past years considered the matter of diplomatic recognition of Peking, the disfavor of the United States, as a friendly neighbor, was often cited as a deterrent to Canadian action. Now the opposite question may arise in some minds: was Canada's eventual recognition of China a few months ago carried out at the confidential request of Washington in order to provide an ice-breaker action for the United States? It is possible, although not probable. In any case, Mr. Nixon's intention to visit Peking in the not distant future, and now the move to see Peking in the UN, make early recognition by the United States inevitable.

It is probably true that only the problem raised by Taiwan prevents immediate recognition of Peking. The United States is committed to support the regime and the territory of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Taiwan and mainland China each say they will never sit in the UN with the other. But Washington cannot disavow its Formosan ally, and made this plain in announcing that it would favor a seat for Peking.

The impasse appears about to be broken, even though United States recognition of Peking would diplomatically relegate Chiang Kai-shek to his actual status — that of ruler of a small island off the Chinese coast. And recognition can hardly be long deferred if Mr. Nixon is not only to visit the Chinese capital but also to sit with its representatives in the UN.

United States abandonment of Taiwan would have repercussions throughout Asia and perhaps the world, for the accusation would be made that American partnership cannot be relied on. The dilemma is an acute one, but time, if not diplomacy, will force recognition that the Peking administration is the real government of China and that the Generalissimo's determined pretension to head the 750-million Chinese people is no more than that.

Chiang Kai-shek's claim served its purpose when the war was on and there was at least a theoretical possibility of his return. But now the claim can have no standing. History has passed the Generalissimo by.

The initiative should come from Peking in effecting a compromise whereby both regimes can sit in the UN. Peking would gain stature, not lose it, by such a move, and it would have to concede nothing as to its claims to Taiwan — merely postpone them for a few short years.

In any case, whatever Mr. Nixon's immediate motives for his recent advances toward China, he is to be commended on a most valuable step toward international adjustment and global peace. The process will not be simple, for many powerful factors, including the Soviet Union and Vietnam, are involved. Bowing to the inevitable can be difficult to do, and Mr. Nixon at least deserves applause.

Easing the University Jam

GUIDED BY LAST YEAR'S EXperience, when provision was made for an increase in enrolment and the increase did not materialize, the University of Victoria is preparing for the opening of term next month on the basis of a student body approximately the same size as the last two years. Even this may be an over-estimate, because of the opening of Camosun College.

The situation here seems to be similar to that in the United States. In universities there a surplus of space appears available for freshmen on the basis of applications received to date.

People under 20, says Ted S. Cooper, executive director of the Association of College Admissions Counsellors in Boston, have a new urge to see the world outside the academic setting before they finish their schooling. There is also a growing sentiment that college may not be necessary or even beneficial to prepare a person for a job. Campus life, moreover, is being challenged increasingly, and students without jobs feel the weight of expenses involved in acquiring a college degree.

If the young people postponing entry into university return at a later date, the current trend could lead to the experience noted in universities immediately after the war. At that time, veterans assisted by their governments crowded the lecture halls and labs in a serious quest of the knowledge and certification they needed for careers which they had mapped out for themselves from a mature point of view. Their experiences had made them more certain of the direction in which they wished to go. University held purpose for them.

The reduction in new enrolments should give many universities a breathing spell in the recent rush to provide more space, and permit them to re-assess their goals in a future of escalating costs and uncertain social conditions. There should be no halt in the progress of education, for a knowledgeable and trained population is essential to the running of a modern state. But there may be new directions to search out, new needs to meet. In education, as in many other fields, flexibility is a source of strength.

Concentration in the Middle East

THE BRITISH PULLOUT FROM the Persian Gulf is far from being as total as at first was thought. Iran, which occupies a strategic position in the Persian Gulf and in the Middle East as a whole, is being militarily bolstered by the United States and Britain, primarily through the issue of a line of credit from the U.S. Export-Import Bank.

It is highly unusual for this bank to issue credit or to guarantee loans from private banks for the purchase of military material. In the world of high politics, however, the collusion of high finance and military planning is a common feature. The militarization program should be completed by 1975.

All the elements of high drama are combining in the Persian Gulf — politics, economics, finance and military strength — to keep the world on edge for years to come. At the moment the financiers are at centre stage in the Iranian tableau.

By TOM WICKER

A Restraint for Executive Omnipotence?

PRESIDENT Nixon's approach to Peking, no matter how welcome it may be, was planned in secrecy, decided by presidential fiat, carried out clandestinely and finally announced only as accomplished fact. Thus, whatever else it was, this grand diplomatic undertaking was another exercise in executive omnipotence. Though aimed at peace, the operation so far has not been much different from the hidden processes which carried the nation into the war in Vietnam, and its consequences could be even more far-reaching.

Wicker

Faced with this kind of unchecked power, the Senate is pondering a resolution by Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R—Ky.) that would require the C.I.A. to keep germane Congressional committees as fully informed as the Executive and Sen. Sam J. Ervin's subcommittee is considering how the rules of "Executive privilege" can be tightened.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright's Foreign Relations Committee, meanwhile, has been trying to find effective means to limit the most dangerous form of Executive omnipotence — the waging of undeclared war. Congress has ample constitutional authority to do so, but a major problem is to avoid inhibiting or frustrating the president's ability to act in a crisis. Another question is whether Congress itself is prepared to accept greater responsibility in questions of war and peace.

Improvements Needed

William D. Rogers, a former State Department official, told the committee rather bluntly that if Congress intended to exercise an effective role in such matters, it would have to improve itself. "Your staffing is woefully inadequate. Your organization is wrong. Your ways of doing business are outmoded. And your conventional habits and practices are in need of fundamental reform."

He was, however, fundamentally in favor of Congressional action to redeem the situation created by what Prof. Alexander Bickel of Yale called the "unprecedented extension of Presidential power" that launched the Vietnam War in 1965. The decisions of that year, he said, "Amounted to an all but explicit transfer of the power to declare war from Congress, where the Constitution lodged it, to the President, on whom the framers refused to confer it."

Unimagined by Framers

Constitutional scholars generally concede that the constitution gives the president the power to repel or prevent sudden attack, and to protect the lives of American citizens at home or abroad. But most agree with John Bassett Moore, the authority on international law, who said:

"There can hardly be any room for doubt that the framers of the constitution, when they vested in Congress the power to declare war, never imagined they were leaving it to the executive to use the military and naval forces of the United States all over the world for the purpose of actually coercing other nations, occupying their territory, and killing their soldiers and citizens, all according to his own notions of the fitness of things, so long as he refrained from calling his action war or persisted in calling it peace."

The Foreign Relations Committee, therefore, is really considering what Rogers called "rules of practice" in exercising the war powers, and not a "redistribution of power." The most practical proposals before it are a requirement for advance congressional authorization before troop deployments that raise a "reasonable possibility" of combat (for instance, the stationing of troops in Europe in 1950, or President Kennedy's dispatch of thousands of "advisers" to Vietnam in 1961); and another requirement that a president who took emergency action to repel attack or protect American lives would have to obtain congressional sanction within 30 days.

The latter provision probably would not have hindered President Truman from intervening in the Korean War in 1950, since Congress no doubt would have supported the repelling of invasion. It might have given Nixon trouble after the Cambodian invasion of 1970, and would certainly have forced him to greater consideration of congressional and public opinion.

And while President Johnson might have been able on his own to launch air raids in reply to the supposed Tonkin Gulf attack in 1964, he could hardly have launched the round-the-clock bombing of North Vietnam or sent a half-million troops to Asia without such authorization.

But there's the rub. Even if effective "rules of practice" are devised, the greatest responsibility to make them work will lie on Congress itself. It will need to know more and act more efficiently, and it will have to be resolute. When a president has sent troops into combat under the flags of peace, freedom and patriotism — no matter how fraudulently — it will take a bold and confident Congress to refuse him sanction.

Letters to the Editor

Anyone Thought of Morals?

I am so tired of hearing and reading about teaching sex in school, I wonder if anyone thought it might be a better idea to teach a few morals?

My sex education was from my father. "Always be modest, even when you are married, always keep a little of yourself to yourself," but I guess now there is no modesty.

As for trial marriages, I will guarantee that whom you would marry in your teens is certainly not the man you would choose at 25 or 30 or so on. Only thing is to get married when you find someone you can love with all your heart and learn sex together. I know as I am 55 years married and can speak from experience.—Grandma Nan.

Family Planning

The Family Planning Association of British Columbia is convinced that graduated information about human reproduction, human sexuality, population growth and birth control should be provided in the educational system of every province in Canada, in all related subjects from Grade I upwards.

It would then become as much a routine preparation for adult life as any other form of education and would cease to be a special issue exploited by commercial, political, and other interest groups.

Parents should have access to the same information so that they will be better equipped to communicate with their children on these topics at home.

Teenage conceptions in every province are increasing. Total "illegitimacy" in B.C. for example, in 1970, was 14 per cent of all live births.

Among all ages in the reproductive years, at least one pregnancy in five is unwanted.

In B.C. the most recently published figures show that in the year ending March 31, 1970, there were 10,500 children in the care of the Superintendent of Child Welfare and Childrens' Aid Societies — children for whom parents were unable or unwilling to provide a loving home. Numbers are still increasing.

The gonorrhea rate in Canada, especially in the 15-19 year age group has risen rapidly in the past few years — by 20 per cent in 1970 in B.C., for example, and the World Health Organization considers venereal disease out of control in most parts of the world.

It will take time to revamp the curriculum to include information in the four areas suggested, time to train school staff members to use the material with ease, and time to inform parents.

Unless the public insists on action now, there will be a further time lag, and the ignorance gap will only impose more needless penalties on Canadian young people in particular. — Mary F. Bishop, President, Family Planning Association of B.C. No. 46 - 1625 West 8th Avenue, Vancouver 9, B.C.

Carefree Panting

Newspaper writers like Jack Scott tend to create among people the very tensions which they claim to abhor.

I refer to a letter printed in his column supposed to have been written by a young man who enjoyed leeching off society while at the same time scorning these same providers of his needs.

If that letter is genuine, and had it been written to me, I would have burned it for the trash that it is, neither would I have found it worthy of mention.

However when such stuff is presented in a newspaper column it gives the thing a credibility it does not deserve, thus causing friction among people.

Jack Scott does not need to present any brief for the young, they already have one, their youth. But he does himself and older people experienced in living and learning a disservice when he exchanges the wisdom of the years for the carefree panting after life of the young. — Mrs. T. Cooke, 548 Dallas.

Without Bragging

Thank you for publishing the article by John Nichol. Ever since Expo 67, there have been ridiculous assaults on our intelligence, telling us to be proud of Canada etc., etc., etc.

What nonsense to talk about our "inferiority complex." We know we live in the finest country in the world, we love it, and are inordinately proud of it, even if we aren't constantly bragging about it.

I've often wished someone would tell those imbecile nincompoops to relax. We owe John Nichol our thanks. — Louise Highcastle, 2768 Satellite.

Instead of showing pictures of poverty stricken Montreal children, why not show pictures of their parents, of the provincial politicians who have made Quebec's taxes the highest in the country, and of the men of Ottawa who have raised our federal taxes from $6 billions to $17 billions in ten years.

These are the real authors of poverty in Canada, and the cause of these children's misery. — J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer.

Into Europe For Keeps

By C. L. SULZBERGER
from London

THE mood of Britain vis-a-vis the momentous subject of joining the Common Market is no longer analogous to that of the famous character in the rhyme, out again and in again, Finnegan begin again. Britain stayed out of the market at its inception, which was a very bad mistake, and subsequently was twice kept out by De Gaulle. But now it looks as if she is going in — to stay.

Sulzberger

There have been some diehards in the opposition Labor party (which, despite its professed dislike of current entry terms, sought unsuccessfully to get in on similar terms when it ran the government) and these diehards talk about negotiating this country out of "Europe" when they get back to power, if his Tory government succeeds in obtaining membership.

But these diehards, whose voices were surprisingly muted at the recent party conclave where Harold Wilson and his loyal stalwarts overrode the Labor marketeers, are unlikely to represent even an important episode when the history of this decade is written.

If Heath's Conservative government succeeds in attaching Britain to the market, it is highly improbable that any future Labor regime will pull out. This is not a question of the principles of the Treaty of Rome, which set up the organization, but of inherent British realism that recognizes the logic of once in, always in this decisive grouping. Any debate on the desirability of a Labor secession in the future is an attempt of concern only for factions inside that volatile party and can safely be ignored by the outer world.

Canute Routine

Although Wilson, the Labor apparatus and the trade unions have all declared themselves opposed to joining — or to the terms of joining — they seem to be in the position of King Canute unsuccessfully attempting to stem a tide whose strength exceeded his own. Prime Minister Heath has managed the market issue with consummate skill. He is determined to push it through and the signs are he will succeed without too much difficulty when Parliament finally votes.

Already the trend of political polls shows rapid change. For about a year, just after the switch to Tory leadership, the British mood remained suspicious of Europe and almost 3-to-1 against the idea of joining. The latest poll indicates that during less than a month this has shifted drastically with a small majority now in favor.

Some skeptics wonder if the pace isn't indeed too fast, making it more difficult to maintain the momentum needed until the final Parliamentary test. But, on the whole, the pro-market faction is optimistic.

The trend should offset the Labor leadership's determination to ignore its own past policies and the strong minority of pro-marketeers led by its deputy leader, Roy Jenkins, as well as the minor Tory opposition.

Jenkins' Future

What will become of Jenkins in terms of internal party politics is another thing. He might feel constrained to resign this autumn or he might be replaced by the Labor deputies when the House of Commons then reconvenes. He has been loyal to his principles and consequently sharply at odds both with Wilson and the party majority.

He will stick with his position, voting for market membership. But he shows composure and a quietly understanding comprehension of Wilson's determination to place party unity ahead of other issues in this period of political stress.

In terms of the world, as distinct from British politics, the Common Market would seem to almost have it made here. If public opinion continues to veer over to the pro-Europe camp, it is probable that the Labor party will find it not too difficult to reconcile itself to terms it now so sharply attacks.

After all, Willy Brandt's West German Social Democrats once fought the market's predecessor, the coal and steel community, and now are as "European" as anyone. The Social Democrats are British Labor's alter ego.

For all these reasons it looks more and more as if Britain is now well along the way to "Europe" and, furthermore, as if it will stay there, under future governments and despite their political complexion. The heated words spoken in inter- and intra-party debates today may well, within a year, come to be regarded as a midsummer madness.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of August 4, 1911

Back to the city which gave him political prominence in the province, and with Victoria's weather fine and settled in startling contrast to the Conservative political atmosphere, came yesterday evening Hon. Richard McBride.

The premier was looking very well, and his patriarchal appearance has not been perceptibly added to during his three months' visit to the Old Country, but even the gaiety of nations has not succeeded in removing the more than classic repose of his statuesque features.

In a Scared Nation, the Judge Reaches for a Gun

By T.R.B.
New Republic

A couple of reporters went over to the suburban home of Chief Justice Burger to insure coverage in case the justice department called on him with a late-hour appeal over the Pentagon papers.

When the reporters rang at 11 p.m., according to Newsweek, the handsome jurist answered the door personally in a bathrobe, carrying a long-barrelled revolver.

The chief justice of the United States answering his doorbell with a gun somehow typifies for us the law-and-order issue in America today. It goes right down from Justice Burger to the mother cowering behind her door in the city ghetto. The nation is scared.

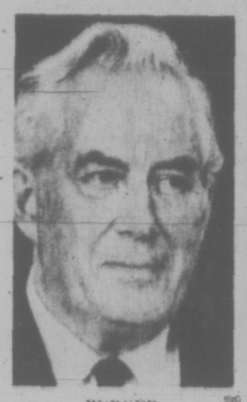
"Gun control is at the top of every poll you see," Senator Kennedy said the other day. It's at the top of every housewife's fears who walks the streets of the city of Boston, and people are absolutely terrified.

Former New Haven police chief Ahern, member of the Scranton Commission, said recently, "Not only blacks, Puerto Ricans, Chicanos and young people but even governors and congressmen believe their privacy is being violated, their telephone conversations monitored and their daily activities observed.

And Milton Eisenhower himself, who headed the commission investigating violence, declared last month, "There are literally arsenals being built by the extreme right and the extreme left, not only with normal guns, but with every type of weapon. And if we saw trouble break out in this country it could be devastating."



BURGER
. . . at the door

The crime issue is the cutting edge of America's social unrest. It is the painful symptom that finally sends the man suffering from cancer to the doctor. America ought to do something about law and order quick; unfortunately, the Nixon approach has too often been wrong-headed, cynical or even hypocritical.

There are two main views on how to reduce America's appalling crime rate: get at social causes, or use repression.

No less than four presidential commissions employing hundreds of experts, millions of dollars and ten million words, have stressed the long-term need of full social justice. That is the burden of the Katzenbach, Kerner, Eisenhower and Scranton reports. They just say the same thing over and over; it is tragic that so few listen.

"We cannot explain away crime in this country by charging it off to poverty," candidate Nixon said in the 1968 campaign. There is some truth in this, of course. Maybe some judges have been too lenient. But it is arrant folly to think we can sleep securely in bed at night while ghettoes swarm with unemployed teen-agers, one man in nine is below the poverty line and junk guns are purchasable at hardware stores.

How many more American presidents must be shot before we license guns as we license autos? Every poll shows 75 to 80 per cent of the public wants it.

The failure to get effective regulation through Congress is an example of what makes millions feel they are powerless to control their government. Congress passed the 1968 Gun Control Act, and the National Rifle Association lobby saw to it that it is as full of loopholes as the income tax law.

It bans importation of cheap, snub-nosed concealable handguns but not their parts; the latter are pouring in. There is a new cottage industry to assemble them, and the week-end "special" is more common than ever.

That is one thing in barbaric America that even the most tolerant and sympathetic visitors from civilized countries outside cannot understand.

The U.S. is the only industrialized country on earth that permits gun sales. There are a few restrictions but they don't restrict. Some of us would rather see heroin and sticks of dynamite freely available to purchasers than firearms, particularly handguns.

"There are at least 25 million handguns, perhaps 30 million in the U.S.," Dr. Eisenhower testified the other day, "because the sale has quadrupled in recent years. These are not sporting weapons, they have no other purpose than to kill."

So there stands the chief justice with a handgun. Two and a half-million handguns are being manufactured or imported every year; they now account for half of all homicides, and sales have increased since the Gun Control Act took effect.

They are particularly numerous in the south (along with homicides) and Mr. Nixon has thrown in his lot with Dixie and the gun lobby, which prefers homicides to registration. It is wrapped up in sex; for many a handgun is a virility symbol.

There is only one thing to do: arm everybody. Pack your Colt when you go to lunch and be sure little Mary has her automatic on the school bus. That way we will all get law and order.

25 Million Handguns in U.S.

Peru at the Crossroads

By J. J. MAIDENBERG

LIMA, Peru — The Peruvian military government has arrived at an economic crossroads after nearly three years of heady revolutionary marching down the path between capitalism and communism.

President Juan Velasco Alvarado and his fellow generals now face the choice of continuing to lead South America's most radical course to date, or veer to the right and abandon its revolutionary orientation.

The choice of paths will not only affect the future of the military leadership of this largely Indian land of more than 13.5 million, but also that of roughly $1 billion in direct United States mining and other investments here.

To prod the military down the leftist road, Peru's Communists and other radicals have been provoking a wave of strikes in the copper and other vital mines since late last year. The strikes have seriously imperiled Peru's economy.

Open Credit Door

At the same time, the so-called "Paris Club" of creditors once again recently refused to roll over Peru's $1.1 billion short-term debts in another effort to force the military to open the door wider to foreign investors.

Peru's major creditors are West Germany, other European lands and Japan, in that order.

The United States, for its part, is making efforts to thaw its relations with Peru. These relations have improved considerably since the military granted an exploration and exploitation contract to the California-based Occidental Petroleum Company recently.

United States-Peruvian relations were seriously affected by the takeover of the local operating subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) six days after the military seized power here on Oct. 3, 1968.

However, the military chiefs insist that both the Jersey Standard and Occidental Petroleum actions are "special cases."

Importing Oil

The Jersey Standard subsidiary is still charged with having evaded taxes for about 40 years. In the Occidental Petroleum case, it is pointed out that Occidental's existing oil fields are nearly worked out, forcing Peru to import about 30,000 barrels a day.

Moreover, the government stresses that it does not have the funds and the technical skills to risk in developing new oil fields.

The military's tough foreign exchange laws, which included the opening of safe deposit boxes, in May, 1970, and the creation of "industrial communities" to share in the profits, equity and management of production have yet to be equalled by the Marxist government of neighboring Chile.

Indeed, until the second anniversary of the military takeover here last October, no other South American government of whatever label had been so radical.

More important, high prices for fishmeal, Peru's main export, and copper and other materials had given this country its highest reserves in history.

The forced conversion of foreign exchange and the restrictions on their transfers overseas created a liquidity that stimulated domestic industry and consumption as well.

But the prosperity began to fade from the central bank's balance sheets by the end of last year, although internal business remains at a high level because of the rising volume of money in circulation.

The decline in foreign exchange holdings began after the military decided to take over the marketing of fishmeal (cooked and ground anchovies and other fish that are rich in protein), late last year.

Despite a weakening world market in livestock feed at the time, the military demanded $200 a ton for fishmeal, and refused to sell for less as the price dropped to about $140.

Fishmeal Unsold

Today, Peru has a million tons of unsold fishmeal and when the four-month annual ban on anchovy fishing ends in September, foreign buyers expect the stocks to soar further.

Fishmeal sales, which account for 30 per cent of Peru's total foreign exchange earnings of roughly $1.1 billion a year, were down 45 per cent in the first five months of 1971.

To make matters worse, the government's policy of monetizing foreign exchange earnings by printing Peruvian currency, and the difficulty in obtaining foreign money here, has put loads of sols into circulation.

The increased spending power has increased production. Because almost all Peruvian manufactures contain foreign components of raw materials, imports are mounting and aggravating the central bank's foreign exchange position.

Reserves Dropping

From a record high of about $140 million last autumn, these foreign reserves now stand at around half that figure, and are declining by about $15 million a month.

Having thus arrived at the economic and political crossroads, the military faces the following options, according to financial experts here:

● It can chance a bloody struggle with the left, including those officers in its ranks, by outlawing the labor strikes now plaguing industry.

● The government can polish its revolutionary image among the masses by further tightening its control over private enterprise by yielding to the radicals.

● It can continue to carry on its present course and risk a possible devaluation of the sol from the present level of 43.38 to the dollar and, perhaps, impose a moratorium of the foreign debt owed the "Paris club" — and imperil Peru's international credit standing.

The decision is expected at the end of this month.

Parties Peddling Same Make of Car

By BARRY CRAIG

EDMONTON — Alberta's coming provincial election will be fought by two conservative parties which believe in the same fundamental things but think they're better than their rivals at doing them.

As a result, the electorate isn't expected to be set afire now that Premier Harry Strom's Social Credit government and Peter Lougheed's Progressive Conservatives are officially involved in wooing the voters for an Aug. 30 election.

The Socreds and the PCs are parties of the right, so voters won't be choosing between political philosophies or deciding for or against radical change. Instead, they will be asked to vote for a government that claims it is not stale after 36 years of uninterrupted rule or the Tories who claim it is.

The New Democratic Party and Liberals will be running candidates — in the case of the NDP close to a full slate — but neither is expected to have any chance of forming the next government.

Since there are no obvious election issues, such as private enterprise versus socialism, the issues in this election will be what the politicians want to make them. The PCs will make a great push in the rural areas because it is there that Social Credit has traditionally found its strength. Mr. Strom will maintain that agriculture is suffering less than in other provinces while the Conservatives will claim the average farmer's income has dropped.

The Premier, who will be out to win his first election mandate since he won the leadership of the Socreds in 1968, will counter in the rural areas that his government has just introduced a $10-million-a-year program of industrial incentives to areas ineligible for federal aid. The PCs will then retort that eligibility for the loans is so restricted — no service industry, for example, can apply — that they will benefit few rural communities.

Given the chronic dissatisfaction of the Canadian farmer, the PCs will try to convince rural voters they haven't been getting a fair slice of the $3-billion Alberta has earned in oil revenues since 1947 and will hammer away at an issue close to the farmers' heart — welfare.

The Conservatives will maintain that Alberta is just doling out money and making no attempt to get people off welfare.

In urban areas, where Conservatives are strongest, Mr. Lougheed will try to capitalize on the feeling that Social Credit is sacrificing city welfare to woo rural voters.

Recently the government decided to limit the cities' share of oil and gas revenues to $38-million a year. The province fought with Edmonton Telephone to give part of the city to the province's government telephone system. It decided to, in effect, assume most of the power over municipal policing.

The Conservatives will say these decisions prove Social Credit believes municipal governments exist not to govern but simply to carry out provincial policies.

The election, compared to those held by Alberta's Prairie neighbors, is expected to be dull. In a way, the PCs and the Socreds are like car salesmen. Both are peddling the same make of car. The victory will go to the most eloquent salesman.

How Fares Your Neighbor?

By ART STOTT

So many tragedies have been inflicted on the human family in recent years — particularly on the innocent young — that few people remember the campaigns of my childhood aimed at helping the starving Armenians.

The appeal for donations was accompanied by posters of pitifully under-nourished children whose ribs stood out in skeletal outline above match-stick legs and whose huge eyes gazed in uncomprehending suffering from emaciated faces.

These were the guiltless victims of The Four Horsemen who rode the earth then, as they do in different areas today. Famine and disease were killing off the Armenian babies and small children. The conscience of the literate world was aroused.

The story has been repeated with discouraging regularity in the last 50 years in various nations. The Armenians have faded into the limbo of the past, replaced by others who are starving and whose health is being broken by disruptions, often man-made, in their living patterns.

It is something else again when a rich country like Canada learns of malnutrition among the children of its largest city. But even that story is not new.

Inquiries in depth could no doubt reveal comparable conditions in any of the larger towns of the nation. Some of the problem is unquestionably attributable to extreme poverty. Some of it — and malnutrition can be found among the children of the affluent — to neglect in serving an adequately balanced diet.

Among the poor there may be less chance of balance, since finances will determine the foods that are bought. But the kid who subsists on French fries and coke is inviting health problems no matter what the financial status of his parents.

The argument can still be made that a poor family in Canada usually has sufficient means to buy the food essentials that sustain good health. The family shopping bag will not contain many fillet mignons, exotic vegetables, or fancy fish. Half a hundred hamburger dishes, if the cook is ingenious, and unpalatables like turnips and inexpensive greens may be the regular menu. Doubtless even the good family cook has to scrabble to put up a filling plate, but say the experts, the possibility is there.

Up to a point, it is. But other factors which contribute to poverty, if not to slum-living, are also involved. How do you convince parents that they should limit their families to the size they can support?

If a mother or father hasn't the ability to organize a home, what can you do to help her or him? If ignorance and deprivation have destroyed parental spirit and will, how can you rebuilt them?

My friends who believe implicitly in economic materialism have an answer. So do my acquaintances with deep religious convictions. Those informed on genetics could provide a remedy — if you could find any among them who are prepared to play God.

There are flaws in each of the cures. It's only a few years ago that a team of researchers found children of the affluent in Canada who were in lamentable physical condition compared to Spartan-living Finns.

The Canadian youngsters, it appeared, took too much of their exercise vicariously, sitting down before television sets. So, locally, we initiated a school physical ed experiment in sit-ups, calculated to tone up body muscles. The program wore out a lot of pants' seats and poor Canadian physical condition was forgotten.

One might assume that religious conviction was reasonably strong in Quebec. Yet that is the area from which the latest dismal survey has come. And when genetic treatment is suggested, the old question arises: Who's to say what kind of a physical specimen is the most desirable?

Basically, I guess, it comes down to the parents. If they care enough, are reasonably intelligent, have sufficient education and make acceptable sacrifices, they stand a good chance of protecting their young children from most afflictions that are not hereditary.

Certainly the state has a responsibility to the young — even if some people think the state is moving too intimately into the Canadian family. Until there is enough decent housing and not only the opportunity to acquire good food, but the understanding of how to use it, we're in trouble.

Easy enough to recognize causes for poverty and starvation in Armenia half a century ago, in Biafra yesterday and in East Pakistan today. More difficult to understand the situation in your own wealthy country.

Maybe we should take a little more interest in our neighbors — the kind of interest that goes beyond the professional and organized social work to which we give money. Or would you rather not intrude?

Woodward's Summer Savers

The Cool Quick Meal

You can fill your summer afternoons with fun and games and still serve an appetizing meal in short order with the great choice of prepared foods you'll find at Woodward's. We've given you a menu idea here, but when you check the selection, you're bound to come up with dozens more. Count on Woodward's for Summer Savers like cool, quick meals and make the livin' a little more easy.

Cold Meat Tray

Presentation is what makes ready-to-eat foods seem like a lot of work has gone into their preparation. You can have all the ingredients ready to go and put them out in short time. Use a large bread board or several smaller ones, depending on the size of your brood or party.

Unmold a Woodward's jellied vegetable salad in the centre of a bread board by gently releasing around the edge of the plastic mold and immersing to the rim in warm water for a few minutes. Top with a dab of Woodward's Supreme Salad Dressing and sprinkle with paprika, if desired. Radiate from the mold to two opposite corners of the board sliced meat in alternative colours such as bologna, salami, veal, mock chicken, pickle and pimento or minced ham. Arrange Woodward's process cheese slices (nippy, pimento and Swiss), radiating to other two corners.

Prepare four lettuce cups and place one on each corner of board. Fill two with the radish roses and two with stuffed olives or gherkins. For garnish, place quarters of the hard-cooked eggs and sprigs of water cress over entire assortment between the rows of meat and cheese. Surround base of mold with sprays of water cress. Serve accompanied by baskets of assorted breads and small bowls of butter snapped-up with herbs, (chives, dill, parsley, mint, basil, or tarragon), anchovy paste, onion or garlic, horseradish, cheese and chili sauce.

WHAT'S FORMAL WEAR FOR A NUDIST?

EL CAJON, Calif. (UPI) — What should nudists wear at evening social functions?

A spokesman for the nation's nudists says this and other topics will be discussed when 1,300 delegates get down to the essentials at their five-day convention opening here.

The spokesman, Neal Blum, says the group is especially unhappy about so-called nudist magazines that are often a front for pornography.

Blum said "some of the members want to put pressure on the publishers to force them out of business, but others feel we'd only be giving them the kind of publicity they'd like."

Cool-Aid Open House

Renovation of the old Emmanuel Baptist Church at the corner of Fernwood and Gladstone ended last month, and the hostel opened July 29.

Cool-Aid staff will be dispensing free coffee and conversation from noon to 4:30 p.m.

"We will take people on a tour of the hostel and show them what's been done and what we hope to do," staff worker Laurie Smith said today.

"This is the first time since the renovation we've been able to invite the public."

The REAL Pollution Culprit Is YOU

OTTAWA (CP) — Do you wish all those polluters would quit soiling the air?

Forget it. The real culprit is you, to the extent of more than 15 tons of air pollution per person a year.

As proof, E. R. Mitchell, head of the federal energy department combustion research laboratory, recorded how his family of four adults contributed to pollution.

At 16.2 tons each of fuel combustion wastes, the Mitchells were 3.32 per cent higher than the national average of air pollution of 15.68 tons a year.

Their fuel combustion activities consumed more than 16 tons of oxygen or 68 tons of air. In addition each breathed 413 pounds a year and exhaled 1,514 pounds of carbon dioxide.

Their air pollution record came from all forms of fuel combustion employed to support the family in a normal urban community.

For example, the family car produced a total of 10.16 tons of pollution in a year and home heating another 8.54 tons. Other factors were diesel fuel combustion for transportation and farming, aircraft fuel, industrial fuel, smelting, thermally-produced electricity and 1.68 tons for their motor boat.

Another byproduct was 4.6 tons of water produced per person per year.

Mitchell says in a study entitled Only People Pollute, published by the department, that many do not consider carbon dioxide a pollutant. It forms 90 per cent of fuel combustion byproducts.

Nevertheless, he included it in his count. Carbon dioxide is accumulating in the atmosphere, where it absorbs the infra-red rays of the sun which are needed by plants in the process of photosynthesis to convert carbon dioxide into food and release oxygen into the air.

Mitchell concludes that air pollution is a problem of people, their rate of increase, concentration in cities and their insatiable demand for more power and luxuries.

He suggests setting a top limit may be the answer, possibly 200 tons of pollutants per square mile. This would mean a population density of 4,000 to 10,000 per square mile, depending on industrial concentration.

Montreal's density is 13,500 and Toronto's 7,850, he notes.

Bottle Ban Dropped

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — A city-wide ban on the sale of beverages in no-return bottles and cans has been scrapped by city council. Merchants and some council members favored a recycling program instead.

Crash Injures 30

KRABBENDIJKE, Holland (AP) — A train crashed into a dam gate near here Tuesday night and 20 persons were reported injured, two seriously. The heavy iron gate had been forced open by high wind.

Police Intercept Queen's Visitors

LONDON (AP) — Police sealed Buckingham Palace today and sent tracker dogs into the grounds after a motorist saw someone scaling the garden wall.

The prowlers were two teenage boys and a girl who only wanted a closer look.

"It was just a late-night prank," said a police spokesman. "We let them go after giving them a severe telling off."

He added that two of the young people were Americans and the other an Australian, but he refused to identify them.

The Queen was at Windsor Castle. But London has become unusually security minded since the anarchist Angry Brigade bombed the home of cabinet minister John Davies during the weekend.

Before the Judge

A man who stopped funeral traffic in order to "tell them about Jesus" received a suspended sentence with one year probation from Judge William Ostler yesterday.

The man, Randy Cummins, 24, 4973 Old West Saanich Road, pleaded guilty in a court appearance Monday to a charge of causing a disturbance by impeding other people.

Court was told that Cummins and a woman had stopped traffic in the 4900 block of Old West Saanich by screaming and waving Bibles.

Court was told that the two were using "foul, obscene language" directed at the occupants of the car who were on their way to a funeral. Cummins told Ostler that he was trying to tell them "about Jesus."

Ostler said Tuesday he believed Cummins was an entirely sincere man but he must express his beliefs by acceptable means.

He said it could not be taken lightly that the accused was swearing and carrying on as he did.

Joyce Agnes Hamilton, 32, of 459 Kerr, was fined $350 in traffic court by Judge Edmond St. Jorre for impaired driving. She was also banned from driving in Canada for nine months.

Policeman Jailed

CALGARY (CP) — Philip Bruce Crosby, 25, a city police constable, was sentenced Tuesday to six months imprisonment for theft.

He pleaded guilty in provincial court to taking $90 from a strongbox in the police station property room about the middle of May.

The money had been found by a citizen in late April and turned in to police. An investigation was started when the person returned to see if the money had been claimed and it was missing.

Police Chief M. J. Kent said the constable has been dismissed from the force.

7 Freight Cars Leave Track

OAKVILLE (CP) — Seven cars of a westbound Canadian Pacific Railway freight train left the tracks near Oakville today, but no injuries are reported.

A spokesman for Canadian National Railways says the derailment resulted in Go-Train passengers being taken by bus around the wreck.

The spokesman said he expected the rail line to be cleared about 11 a.m.

Flags at Half Mast, Stores Close When Tramp Dies

All the stores were closed. The post office stayed open because of federal regulations, but the postmaster turned out the lights as a sign of respect.

It was the funeral of Dan Maslowski.

And who was Maslowski?

He was, to put it bluntly, the town tramp in this town of 632 people.

Thirty-three years ago Maslowski knocked on the door of Martin Gruber of Yelm, as he had been doing for about 30 years at doors all over the country, and asked for a handout.

"They didn't throw me in the can, so I just stayed," a friend recalled Maslowski telling him.

At first he slept in a little house behind the Grubers. Then he bedded down in city hall. Then businessman Bob Ellis gave him a bed in a hotel he owned. When Ellis tore the top off the hotel, leaving just a laundromat and tavern below, Maslowski wedged in between the two.

He didn't ask for handouts any more. He swept buildings for meals, cut grass for a few dollars here and there and then started cleaning the city streets.

After a long time the city put him on the payroll at $25 a month. Hal Wolf, Yelm storekeeper, who is a Republican state representative, said Maslowski was "tall, very gentle, shuffled a bit."

"I don't even remember him not in a used suit coat," he said. "Always in that coat. When one wore out, someone gave him another.

"You could trust him with anything, money, the keys to your store. Anything.

"When he worked the Christmas tree harvest during the day, he scrubbed the streets at night. He wanted his town to be clean."

Maslowski died of a heart attack July 26 at the age of 75. That morning, Rev. Rollin Stierwalt said at his funeral Monday, he had bought a new broom.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Dominion

Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. reports unaudited net earnings of $2.75 million or $1.06 per share for the first six months of 1971, compared with $2.42 million (93 cents) for the period last year.

The company said improved earnings stemmed mainly from inclusion of sales of the Vareo-Pruden division of Dombrico Inc. for the first time.

Wometco

A communications subsidiary has been formed by Wometco Enterprises Inc. to invest in, develop and manage Community Antenna Television systems in the U.S.

Wometco Communications Inc. has completed a transaction with all State Cablevision Inc., which operates a CATV system in East Brunswick, NJ, and holds franchises in three other New Jersy communities. Wometco will advance All State development funds and get warrants to buy up to 80 per cent of the firm's stock.

Gr. Lakes

A 32.5 per cent decline in net earnings is reported by Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd. for the first half, or $1.3 million (36 cents a share) vs. $1.9 million (54 cents). Dollar exchange cost $770,000.

Sales amounted to $40.1 million, up 4.6 per cent from $38.4 million, setting a six-month record, due mainly to pulp and newsprint price improvement.

Big Saving Ahead In Consolidation

Consolidation of its non-operating companies will lead the way to new development and money-saving control for Pace Industries Ltd.

President Richard Rude, of Victoria, said six subsidiaries would be reorganized into Pace Services Ltd., leaving four operating companies in the group.

The consolidation includes Oly Food Services Ltd., Oly Food Services (Prince George) Ltd., West Coast Vending Ltd., S. Thompson and Associates Ltd., Kwik Kanteen Ltd. and Pacific Automat Ltd.

The operating firms will be National Oven Products Inc., Spudnut Industries Inc., Spudnuts of Canada Ltd. and United Cascade Foods Inc.

Under the reorganization base officers and branch officers will be the same people, resulting in a big saving, Rude explained. "Part of the problem has been home office control."

So far this year corporate overhead has been reduced $250,000, he said.

This move will "streamline" the way to further development.

Although sales are five times what they were two years ago, there has not been commensurate improvement in earnings. "The profit picture hasn't been what it should be," Rude said.

Push-Button Bank Teller

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The push-button bank teller a machine capable of performing eight types of transactions — will start testing soon at the Bank of California.

The bank, which has branches in three states, announced Tuesday it would try out two of the automatic teller machines developed by Do Cutel Co., Dallas, Tex.

If they work, the mechanical clerks will be used on a 24-hour, seven-day a week basis as an express teller during banking hours and as an after-hours convenience.

The bank said the new gadget is more than a "cash dispensing" machine as it can handle withdrawals, deposits, payments and account transfers. The customer must provide a coded identification card to activate the machine. He then uses an illuminated panel to select the desired transaction.

Inco

International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. second quarter earnings were less than half the profit in the period last year, and the quarterly dividend has been cut for the first time since 1944.

Net earnings were $26 million on sales of $211.46 million, producing 35 cents a share profit, vs. $57.96 million, on sales of $286.6 million, giving 78 cents a share.

In the first half sales were $440.5 million and net was $62.64 million (84 cents) against $540.77 million, $102.4 million and $1.37 respectively.

The dividend next quarter will be 25 cents, down from 40 cents.

Gen. Bakeries

Net income of General Bakeries Ltd. for the first quarter ended July 3, was $73,000 or 9.7 cents a share compared with a loss of $35,000 a year ago. Sales increased 9.7 percent to $9.5 million from $8.69 million.

Horne, Pitfield

Horne and Pitfield Foods Ltd., reports net income of $490,309 or 26.8 cents a share for the year ended April 3, compared with $486,904 (27.1 cents) in the previous year.

The company said it considered the results satisfactory "after allowing for extreme competitive conditions and the cost of opening new corporate stores."

Sales totalled $75.0 million, against $70.5 million.

Cash flow increased by 6.5 per cent to $786,447 and working capital rose by $272,574 to $3.0 million.

Imasco

Consolidated earnings of Imasco Ltd., were $7.85 million for the half year ended June 30, compared with $7 million for the corresponding period in 1970.

The company said consolidated sales of $267.5 million for the first half represented an 8 per cent decline from $291 million for the same period in 1970.

The higher earnings were attributed to improved returns from tobacco, retail and wine operations.

New Mutual Sales 'Tough To Come By'

NEW YORK (WP) — Although spokesmen for the U.S. mutual fund industry point to a "normal" increase in share redemptions as the cause of the precedent-setting net cash outflow from the funds in the past two months, industry leaders here frankly concede that the real problem is at the other end of the scale — new sales are becoming more and more difficult to come by.

In May, the funds monitored by the Investment Company Institute, the industry's trade organization, reported that they redeemed $121 million more worth of shares than they sold.

Although net redemptions fell to $32 million in June, the result was still a disappointment, since June is a month in which a large number of funds pay dividends and many of those are reinvested in fund shares, bolstering the sales picture.

LAGGING SALES

Officials of funds point to several reasons for lagging sales. One is the general apathy among small investors who have shied away from direct investment in the stock market as well.

Possibly more important, the mutual reform bill passed last year, which cut sharply into the commissions paid to fund salesmen, has caused great uncertainty within the industry.

Some smaller distributors of so-called "front-end-load" or "contractual" plans have abandoned the programs because of changes imposed on the industry by the reform bill. Other firms have changed the way they collect sales charges — and, in the process, slowed down their payments to salesmen.

MORE OUT

In May, the first month in history in which the funds paid out more than they took in, the $428.2 million in redemptions equalled 9.6 per cent of assets. In May, 1970, the $300.0 million in redemptions were 9 per cent of assets.

In June, the funds reported redeeming $466 million, but that as only 7.9 per cent of the total assets.

Sales, on the other hand, are another story. Actually, sales of mutual funds have been in a steady if jagged downtrend since the first quarter of 1969, when they topped $700 million. In May, sales were $306.7 million and, in June, they climbed to $434.2 million.

Subcontracts Alright

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian subcontracts totalling $65 million for the TriStar airbus, a project of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., will be honored, a trade department spokesman said Tuesday.

After Rolls-Royce Ltd. of Britain, manufacturer of the TriStar engines, had a financial collapse, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons in February Canadian subcontracts involving 735 potential jobs were in jeopardy.

But British government aid to Rolls-Royce an dthe U.S. senate's approval Monday of loan guarantees for Lockheed kept the project alive.

$800 a Week Not Enough?

100 MILE HOUSE, B.C. (CP) — Workers already earning up to $800 a week on unlimited overtime have lost their jobs on a pipeline project in the Cariboo district because of a dispute over a living-out allowance.

Calgary-based Mannix Co. Ltd. announced it has dismissed 100 members of the operating engineers and laborers unions following a recent wildcat walkout at the 100-Mile House project.

Some Teamsters union members who had participated in the walkout have since returned to their jobs.

Mortgage Funds Tighten Up Due to Demand

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Lending companies which a month or so ago had ample mortgage funds have begun to notice reduced flow of money for private building.

"Demand exceeds supply," said Charles Brown, mortgage manager of Canada Trust-Huron and Erie, which does not expect additional funds until October.

With what funds remain, the firm is trying to satisfy demands of builders.

"We're still getting a flow of applications, but it is tougher and tougher to get them through, indicating that money is drying up," said a spokesman for the Bank of Nova Scotia.

SHORT SUPPLY

Montreal Trust Co. said money is getting in short supply and it would be a month or two before any improvement could be expected.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. manager Chris Dowling said applications for loans through approved lenders — banks, trust and insurance companies — are fairly heavy. These are loans guaranteed by the government.

But there are no direct loans being made by CMHC in the Greater Victoria area, only up-Island.

Both Victoria and the upper Island are filing a lot of applications for NHA loans to buy older homes.

NHA RATE

Under this provision of the National Housing Act, up to $18,000 may be loaned to an approved applicant at the NHA rate of interest.

Dowling thought that, although the flow of applications for guaranteed loans is brisk, it could be much heavier in view of the potential demand for housing.

"I think people are holding back in Greater Victoria area," he said.

Where the demand is being felt in the capital region is in multiple dwelling units.

One of the banks — the Royal — so far has been able to satisfy all qualifying applicants for conventional loans.

INTEREST UP

But with the interest rate up within the past six weeks to between 9½ and 9¾ per cent — a ¼-point gain — there may be fewer applicants for residential mortgages.

One of the trust companies, Canada Permanent, also has money available, but its recent business has been heavily in commercial mortgages as well as private owner-builders. It has no speculative loans available.

Most of the financing at Canada Permanent has been for existing dwellings as opposed to 15-20 per cent for new construction in Greater Victoria, while in up-Island centres it runs the other way around.

Canada's Stephanie Berto finishes second to Iris Davis in Pan-Am 100

Stephanie Ad... Silver to Gold

Mason Captures Bronze; Basketball Team Loses

CALI, Colombia (CP)—Canada's track and field team went from one disappointment to another at the Pan-American Games Tuesday night until gold-medal winner Stephanie Berto of Vancouver burst through for a silver in the women's 100 metres.

"Oh, I'm so happy," she said in between gasps for air after the race in which Iris Davis of the United States won the gold medal with a Games-equalling run of 11.2 seconds.

Stephanie's time was 11.4 seconds, the same clocking as the bronze winner, Silvia Chibas of Cuba. In fact, four women were clocked in 11.4.

"I'm happier with this one than when I won the 200," she said, referring to her gold medal win Sunday in the 200 metres.

"I felt really good and I just wanted to run as well as I could.

"And I got off to a great start. It was my best start ever in the 100."

Women Are Putting Men to Shame

The women's track and field team is the pride of the Canadian camp with four gold medals while the men have only silver and bronze to show for their efforts in four days of competition.

Miss Berto's silver was the eighth medal for the women's team. The combined team has accounted for 13 medals in track and field competition. Over-all, Canada has 19 medals —five gold, four silver and 10 bronze.

Mike Mason of Burnaby, B.C., added to the Canadian medal collection Tuesday with a bronze in the men's long jump, leaping 25 feet 1¼ inches.

"I'll have to do better than that next year at Munich," he said, referring to the 1972 Olympic Games.

Earlier, Charles Francis and Craig Blackman, a pair of Toronto sprinters, failed to qualify for the men's 200-metre final; Brenda Walsh of Edmonton was fifth and Joyce Sadowick of Burnaby, B.C., sixth in the women's 400-metre final; Bill Smart of Vancouver was sixth in the 800 final, and Rick Dowswell of Sarnia, Ont., was seventh in the men's javelin with a toss of 221 feet.

Eight of the 13 events on the women's track program have been recorded, leaving the pentathlon the main chance for a Canadian gold medal.

"With the exception of Debbie Van Kiekebelt, we'll just pin our hopes on the long shots," team manager George Arnold said.

The tall 17-year-old girl from Mississauga, Ont., who set a North American record of 4,865 points in the pentathlon last May, starts her two-day competition today, along with Penny May of Victoria, who is given an excellent chance as well.

CUBA WINS

The rivalry between the United States and Cuba burst out in the gymnasium Tuesday when Cuba swept both golds in the men's all-around exercises, ending a long period of U.S. domination in the competition.

The Canadian team salvaged a bronze in the competition, the same placing as the women's team on Monday.

DOUBLE WINNER

Don Quarrie of Jamaica was the first double winner of the Games, completing a sweep of the two men's sprints when he ran away with the 200 metres in 19.18 seconds.

Another Jamaican, tall Marilyn Neufville, won the women's 400 metres in 51.3 seconds. The event is new to the program.

U.S. winners in the big main stadium were Ralph Mann in the 400-metre hurdles, Larry Young in the 50-kilometre walk, Ken Swenson in the 800 metres, Arnie Robinson in the long jump, Cary Feldmann in the men's javelin, and Miss Davis in the short sprint.

CANADA HAS CHANCE

Among the shooters today, Canada had a good chance for a medal, possibly a gold or silver, as the firing ends in the three-day skeet event.

Don Sanderlin, 38-year-old electrical contractor from Edmonton, was in first place after two rounds of cracking clay targets. With a score of 147 under his belt, he winds up today with a 50-bird round.

Victor Castellanos of Guatemala scored 586 of a possible 600 to win the individual title in the rapid pistol and Cuba captured the team gold, scoring 2,324. Top Canadian was Jules Sobrian of Omemee, Ont., with 580, good for a sixth-place tie.

Among the weightlifters, Pierre Charbonneau of Brossard, Que., placed ninth in the lightweight class with a three-lift total of 853½ pounds. Pascual Rodriguez of Cuba won the total-lift gold, hoisting 853½ pounds. Jose Martinez of Colombia was the winner in the press lifting and James Benjamin of the U.S. in the clean and jerk.

CAGERS LOSE

In basketball, the men's team lost 69-68 to Panama and bowed out of the preliminary round-robin tournament. The defeat was Canada's second in three starts and left the team without a chance to qualify for the semi-finals.

The Canadians led 34-28 at halftime and were on top until the last nine minutes of play. Centre Tim Tollestrup of Raymond, Alta., was Canada's top scorer with 18 points.

But the field hockey team from British Columbia made it three straight with an easy victory over the United States 5-1 and took over the lead in the eight-country tournament. The Canadians are unbeaten. Glen Talling of Vancouver scored two goals to pace the attack.

CUBAN LOVE AND DEFECTION HAND IN HAND

CALI, Colombia (AP) — The desertion of a pair of Cuban fencers during the Pan-American Games here was confirmed Tuesday by local police.

Zulema Bregado and Jose J. Diaz were said to be under police protection, according to the report, but it was not known if they had asked for asylum in Colombia.

Columbian fencers said members of the Cuban team acknowledged the two had been in love for some time and that Diaz had feigned illness and missed training after the delegation arrived in Cali.

Diaz' absence was confirmed Monday by the Cubans but it was not until Tuesday that Miss Bregado's defection was discovered.

Playoff Picture Completed

A 5-4 victory Tuesday by Sooke Merchants over Century Inn at Heywood Avenue Park filled in the missing pieces in the Stuffy McGinnis Softball League playoff picture.

Century's loss clinched second spot for Bell's Men's Wear on regular league action this season and a meeting with fourth-place Colwood Inn in the semi-finals. It also means that Century will face league-champion Langford Drywall in the semis.

Sooke scored all five runs in a fourth inning rally while losing pitcher Mike Cox brought Century to within one run with a two-run homer in the sixth inning. Dick Barwis paced the Sooke win with three singles in five trips to the plate.

Trail, Oregon Reps Win Extra-Inning Struggles

When the dust settled after two extra-inning baseball games at Royal Athletic Park Tuesday night, the results guaranteed there will be no reruns for the Pacific Section teams in the Babe Ruth world series this year.

South Bay, attempting to defend Southern California's world series title, was eliminated from Pacific Section play by the Oregon club from Crater Lake, 2-1. The defeat followed the squad's 6-5 loss to Fruitridge of Sacramento, representing Northern California, in another tight game Monday.

In Tuesday's other contest, a bases-loaded single by Len Ircandia in an extra inning scored the winning run as British Columbia (Trail) edged Washington's Kirkland entry, 6-5.

Wayne Shaw of Orgeon punched a ninth-inning single to score Ernie Sutcliffe with the winning run. Sutcliffe had walked and taken second on Bob Hendrix sacrifice.

Pitcher Brian Hamagami scored the winning Trail run when Ircandia's hit sailed over the heads of the Washington outfielders, playing in to cut off any runs on fly balls.

South Bay almost managed to come with a win in the top of the ninth, when a runner made it to third with none out.

FANNED LAST TWO

But pitcher Jerry Bellotti got Tim Timm to line out to the shortstop and walked pinch-hitter Jim Farmer before striking out the last two batters. Bellotti struck out nine and walked four to get the win.

South Bay had tied the score in the last regulation inning with Jeff Bennedetti's two-out single scoring Bob Kahle from third.

Hamagami struck out 13 batters as winning pitcher in the Trial game while Tom Dolson took a tough loss for Washington. Dolson relieved with one out in the sixth and game up only one base on balls and one single.

Victoria Firefighter All-Stars, hot after three straight victories, play Fruitridge of Northern California in tonight's winners' bracket game at 6:30 p.m. Oregon and Trail will play for the right to enter the losers' bracket final in a game immediately following.

Poised Rookie's Passes Get Als Past Roughies

MONTREAL (CP)—The running power of Moses Denson and the precision passing of rookie Jim Chasey gave Montreal Alouettes a victorious start to their Canadian Football League season Tuesday night as the Als dumped Saskatchewan Roughriders 29-16.

Chasey completed 13 of 25 passes for 162 yards as the defending Grey Cup champions rolled up a 22-4 half-time lead and held on to stall the Roughriders in the final two quarters.

The first-year quarterback played the entire game for the Als except the final few minutes when Sonny Wade came in to call the signals.

GREAT BLOCKING

"He played a hell of a game and the line did a hell of a blocking job," Montreal coach Sam Etcheverry said after the game.

"He has an awful lot of poise for such a young player; he's a real student of the game."

Etcheverry said a good example of Chasey's ability to read defences came on his second-quarter pass to Jim Foley, who broke into the clear and scampered into the end zone for a 28-yard touchdown.

"He read the blitz real well on that one."

WADE IMPRESSES

Despite the Dartmouth College graduate's performance, Etcheverry said Wade also was impressive during his stint calling the signals and could easily win back the starting quarterback position.

"Sonny had more authority than I've ever seen him with when he came into the game. I think he's on the right track and in the long run I think Sonny will be there."

Saskatchewan drew first blood in the game when Jack Abendschan's 25-yard field goal attempt went for a single. Montreal then moved the ball from their own 25 to the Saskatchewan three, where George Springate evened the score with a single on a field goal attempt from a sharp angle.

Denson, who picked up 140 yards on 23 carries, gave the Alouettes a seven-point lead at the end of the quarter when he plunged into the Saskatchewan end zone on a one-yard run.

The Als struck again in the second quarter on Foley's touchdown at the 4:10 mark before the Roughriders narrowed the gap with Abendschan's 29-yard field goal at 10:55.

THROWS FOR TD

Chasey then directed the Alouettes from their own 35 to the Saskatchewan six in 10 plays before tossing a touchdown pass to Bruce Van Ness to complete the first-half scoring.

Montreal went into the dressing room at the half with a 259-80 edge in yards gained.

Canadian Tennis Program Blasted

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two top-seeded players, Dale Power of Toronto and Robin Elliott of Vancouver, were toppled Tuesday in the men's singles in the first day of competition in the Canadian tennis championships.

Pierre Lamarche of Montreal warmed up with a convincing 6-1, 6-2 victory over Gary Hockey of Ottawa in a first-round match, then handed Power, number two seed in the tournament, a 6-3, 6-2 setback.

In the other upset, Joseh Osadca of Toronto defeated Elliott 4-6, 6-4, 6-4. Elliott was seeded sixth.

Lamarche, a coach at Mississippi State University, stymied Power with adept forehand volleys and a heavy service. Later in an interview, he criticized Canada's development programs for young players.

With the exception of Ontario and British Columbia, little is done by provincial tennis associations to promote the development of players under 21 years, Lamarche said. In his own case, he lost "six years of tournament play because nobody cared" to encourage his development as a player after he won the Canadian junior title in 1965.

He recommended that a junior Davis Cup team be organized by the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association to practise against established players in Canada and hold national tournaments.

Third seeded Don McCormick of Vancouver downed Raymond Royer of Montreal 7-5, 6-1.

Romania Takes Davis Cup Semi

NEW DELHI (AP) — Romania won the inter-zone Davis Cup semi-finals Tuesday with a 4-1 victory over India and will face Brazil in the inter-zone finals.

Brazil eliminated Czechoslovakia to advance to the inter-zone competition. The winner of the Romania-Brazil match will meet the defending champion United States.

Sizzling Adanacs Shoot for Seven

Last-place Victoria Shamrocks take on a probable semi-final rival, the sizzling Coquitlam Adanacs, tonight at 8 p.m. in Memorial Arena.

Adanacs have won six straight games and are clinging to hopes of catching the Western Lacrosse Association leaders, New Westminster Salmonbellies.

With a nine-point deficit and only five games left to play, however, it's more than likely Adanacs will be facing Shamrocks in the playoffs as the second-place finisher.

Shamrocks are, in fourth, seven points behind Vancouver Burrards, who wiped out a 10-goal deficit against New Westminster Tuesday only to lose 13-11.

FREDERICKSON STARS

Veteran Vancouver forward Gord Frederickson deserved much of the credit for the comeback, scoring four goals, while Salmonbelly goalie Les Norman made several clutch saves in the third period to preserve the win.

Adanacs upset the New Westminster leaders in two recent games, including a 17-13 victory last Thursday.

EL PASO CELEBRATION BOISTEROUS, BRASSY

Just as Lee Likes It

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Mariachi bands blared brassy music and thousands of persons were decked out in sarapes. Sombreros lined the streets and an occasional beer was consumed.

It was Lee Trevino Day in Trevino's adopted home town Tuesday, celebrated just the way Trevino likes it — loud, boistrous and with a little golf on the side.

Trevino, golf's latest folk hero who captured three national championships — the Canadian, United States and British — in the space of less than a month this summer, was the subject of a day-long outpouring of genuine affection in this city hard by the Mexican border.

"I thought I had had some thrills like winning the United States Open or the British, but this is just something," Trevino said after a 20-car motorcade through downtown El Paso and neighboring Juarez, Mexico.

Police estimated some 30,000 persons lined the streets, standing four and five deep in some areas. "It's bigger than when the president was here," one official said.

Trevino, dubbed the Super Mex, was clad in golfer's attire of blue slacks and a blue, long-sleeved knit shirt, as he sat on the top of a convertible's back seat with his wife Claudia and their family and soaked it all in.

"Hi," Trevino yelled out at the crowd which lined El Paso's main street. "Thanks for coming. Whoooeeee, did you ever see so many people?"

A young girl dashed out from the crowd to hand Trevino a bouquet of paper flowers.

"Thanks, honey," Trevino said. "I like this kind. You don't have to water them."

Texas Governor Preston Smith, whose past associations with leading sports figures have been less successful (he once butchered the pronunciation of Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian's name when introducing him at a Cotton Bowl banquet) showed up to add to Trevino's tributes.

"I speak for all of Texas in expressing our gratitude for the tremendous relations you have brought to our state," said Smith.

Meet Claude Berry: Racing Is His Life

By BILL WALKER

Claude Berry, 43, is from Escondido, California, and horse racing is his business.

That's for about eight months of the year. The rest of the time he's at his ranch in southern California raising thoroughbreds which he sells at the Del Mar and Ponoma yearling sales.

Berry is at Sandown as racing secretary and also the public address announcer.

As secretary it is his job to run the program, assign weights, and generally be the boss of the whole show under director of racing and presiding steward Gerry Milburn.

As such he has to know his business. He's been at it almost forever.

"I started riding 27 years ago," he said Tuesday on the third day of the mixed Quarter Horse and Thoroughbred race meeting.

"My riding was mostly in match races," he explained.

And if that was the official beginning he quickly followed in other branches of the sport. "I've been owner, trainer in executive positions and secretary of various racing associations."

He operated the Arizona County Fair Association for 11 years and is presently general manager of the Coeur d'Alene Turf Club, where he has been for the past five seasons.

As a trainer he achieved his biggest thrill when he got one of his horses into the Hollywood Gold Cup.

"Rebel ran fourth that year . . . 1957," he recalls proudly.

That was the same year that Berry raced horses at Sandown. "And I was here in '58 as well," he said.

And he likes the Sandown layout.

"How I would love to have it," he said fondly from his post high above the roof.

'I Would Love to Have Sandown'

"It's a beautiful setting. But I know it's not that easy to get now. Twelve or 15 years ago it might have been a different matter," he added.

And as an acknowledged expert Berry thinks Victoria, despite the small crowds of the first few days, does have a place in the mixed Quarter Horse and Thoroughbred racing way of things.

"It's simply a matter of getting used to it," he said.

"In Idaho we hit about $100,000 a day on 10 races, and Coeur d'Alene is a small town, much smaller than Victoria."

In contrast, Sandown has averaged only about $33,000 through the mutuels in the first three days of the current 12-day meeting.

"It will improve," Berry said.

As to the class of stock here, Berry says the quarter horse contingent is as good as in most places, except of course the real big meetings.

For example, he explained that Terrifics Cowboy who won Tuesday, and Raz Bond, who was in the same race, "will win anywhere." Terrifics Cowboy has a career mark of 16 (make that 17) wins, and Raz Bond has won 13 times. Another to watch here, he said, is Lucky's O'Boy.

"My wife is here with me just now but my three children are back in California.

"They're adopted," he quickly added.

"We got the twins the day after they were born, and I became a father for the first time in a corral," he smiled.

"A woman came up to me and asked me if I would take care of this boy. I said sure. That boy now is nine. My daughters are three."

"But I sure love it here." And with that it was up to the roof for the call of the first race.

And sure enough, in the feature of the day, who won? Terrifics Cowboy, just as Berry had suggested he might. Owned by Ray Wheeler, the six-year-old bay gelding was an odds-on favorite and paid the modest sum of $3.60 and $3.00. It was his second win. He had been in a dead heat with Major Trent, a thoroughbred, on opening day.

There was another popular win as well. If not particularly for the horse Rim Ram, in the eighth, for the jockey Karen Campbell.

Rim Ram paid $7.50 and $11.10 and combined with Irish Bull for a quinella payoff of $56.80.

This was handy enough, but not the best of the day. Fraser River ($9.60) an Furious Benny combined for a neat $746.10 exacta payoff in the fourth. Jockeys Howard Gray and Terry Costa each had two wins.

STREAK SAVED ON FINAL DAY

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — Veteran golfer Earl Hooker has carded his sixth hole-in-one. But that's just part of the story.

Hooker had aced No. 7 at Paris Golf and Country Club in July 1968, in July 1969, and again in July 1970.

He had about lost hope of extending his July hole-in-one streak to four consecutive years, but he holed out No. 7 on July 31 this year with a five-iron tee shot before three witnesses.

SEVERAL COUNTRIES are represented in B.C. tennis championships being played at Racquet Club of Victoria this week. Among contestants are "Do-do" Bundy Cheney of Santa Monica, Calif., and Mexican ace Manuel Ensenada.

Berkeley Star Takes Thriller From Skillings

Top-seeded visitors walked off with most of the victories at the British Columbia Open tennis championsips Tuesday, with talented Roger Skillings and other Victorians going down to defeat at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Skillings, top-ranked city player after three Racquet Club title wins and a men's singles victory in the city tournament, was defeated by Keith Bardellini of Berkeley, Calif., 6-7, 7-6, 6-3.

After the thrilling three-set match, Skillings said this year he hadn't played against outside players until meeting Bardellini.

"And this could make a difference," he said. "He was just that much sharper."

Mike Mullan of Philadelphia and Hank Moon of San Francisco defeated Skillings and Ernie Cockayne in the men's doubles, 6-3, 6-2, for another local loss.

Meanwhile, Ed Innerarity and Avery Rush of Texas edged out Marty Taylor and Ivor Goodmanson of Oak Bay Tennis Club in three sets, 3-6, 6-4, 7-6.

Top-seeded Mullan had little difficulty in playing through to the next round in the men's singles against Ken Woodward of Colorado. He breezed past Robert Campbell of Wichita Falls, Texas, 6-2, 6-1.

DAVIS CUP VETERAN

Felix Ponte of Peru, a Davis Cup veteran, edged Mexican junior Thomas Heather, 7-5, 7-5, and is scheduled to play Dearmundo Briggs of Rock Island, Ill., next. Briggs won over Mike Vacchini of Reno, 6-1, 6-4.

Jericho Tennis Club's Janet Hall and Terry Savard kept the home firds burning at the championships as the only B.C. players to win Tuesday.

Miss Hall, 16, beat seasoned veteran Sinclair Guard of Hawaii, 7-5, 6-4. Mrs. Guard came to Victoria to compete in the Pacific Northwest Seniors champions, being run in conjunction with the open.

Miss Savard took two hours to do it but finally defeated Dianne Miller of Medlow Park, Calif., 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

First round of the seniors championship will be held today as well as some open games, as tournament action continues at the Racquet Club until finals on Saturday.

Victoria Boxla Squad Wins Tourney Playoff

COQUITLAM — Victoria Amateur Lacrosse Association novice "A" team defeated North and South Burnaby entries in special playoff competition Sunday to win the B.C. novice "A" tournament.

Winning both 20-minute games by 6-2 scores, Victoria broke a three-way tie for first after regular play and won its first provincial novice "A" title in six years.

On the way to the gold medal, the squad lost 10-9 to Norburns in round-robin play Friday before rebounding with a 19-5 win over New Westminster on Saturday and an 11-10 victory over South Burnaby on Sunday.

Goalie Herb Isherwood and defenceman Paul Pynn of Victoria were both selected for the first all-star team as a result of tournament play, while Al Carlyle and Dan Beaulac made the runner-up unit.

Pynn was voted the most sportsmanlike player over three days of competition.

By The Associated Press

Blue, the young left-hander of Oakland Athletics, failed for the second straight time to win his 20th game and absorbed one of his worst beatings of the season before the Athletics rallied for a 7-5 victory over Kansas City Royals Tuesday night.

Elsewhere in the American League, Washington Senators beat Detroit Tigers 4-2, Minnesota Twins edged Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 10 innings; Milwaukee Brewers blanked California Angels 2-0; New York Yankees blasted Cleveland Indians 8-1, and Boston Red Sox at Baltimore Orioles was rained out and will be played as a doubleheader tonight.

Blue, the winningest pitcher in the majors with a 19-4 record, was cuffed for five runs and nine hits in five innings by the slumping Royals, who suffered their eighth straight setback.

"I was almost crazy from the pressure of this game," said the usually relaxed southpaw.

"This was the toughest game of all. Everyone wants to know when I'm going to win 20 games. That's where all the pressure is coming from."

YIELDS HOMER

Otis' two-bagger came when the Royals scored twice in the fifth, Blue's last inning.

Only some erratic baserunning by Lou Piniella saved Blue from a possible defeat. After Piniella led off the fourth with a double, he was tagged out when he took a big turn round second.

After singling in the second run in the fifth and going to second on the throw home, he tried to score on Chuck Harrison's single, but was cut down at the plate. And in the eighth, Piniella smacked his second double, but was out trying for a triple.

Rick Monday's two-run homer in the seventh started Oakland's comeback. In the ninth, Monday followed with a double, driving in the winning runs.

Denny McLain, who had been on the 21-day disabled list because of an inflammation of his right arm, gained credit for his sixth victory—and first since June 30 — when Washington overcame a 2-1 lead held by McLain's former team-mates with three runs in the ninth inning.

Four of Five

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP) — Major Don Watkins of Ottawa, in his first year as a competitor, won four of the five matches Tuesday at the forces small arms competition at nearby Connaught Ranges.

By The Associated Press

Steve Arlin hurled a four-hitter Tuesday night and got some unusually lusty hitting from San Diego Padres to beat St. Louis Cardinals 6-1.

"It relieves the pressure," said the young right-hander, reciting a pitching axiom, "when you have some runs."

Elsewhere in the NL, Pittsburgh Pirates ripped Montreal Expos 10-6, Chicago Cubs shut out Houston Astros 5-0, Philadelphia Phillies edged Atlanta Braves 3-2, Los Angeles Dodgers blitzed San Francisco Giants 9-1 and Cincinnati Reds split a doubleheader in New York, winning 5-2 before losing to the Mets 9-4.

Arlin's sharp performance against the Cardinals was the 10th complete game in the last 16 starts for the Padres' staff. But San Diego has won only six of those games.

In 69 games since May 23, the San Diego pitching staff has a 2.97 earned-run average. Yet the club's won-lost mark was 27-42 over that span.

However, the Padres managed 13 hits Tuesday night and gave Arlin four runs in the first four innings as he lifted his record to 6-13 and needed just 98 pitches to do the job.

TWO HOME RUNS

Gene Alley hammered a pair of home runs and Pittsburgh bunched six runs in the eighth inning to beat Montreal. Alley's second homer touched off the big inning and Manny Sanguillen ripped a bases-loaded triple. Then Vic Davalillo climaxed the rally with a two-run double.

Rookie John Vukovich, who carried a .157 batting average into the game, drove home two Philadelphia runs, including the winner, with a single and a double as the Phillies knocked off Atlanta. Hank Aaron hit his 31st homer of the season and 623rd of his career.

17 FOR SANTO

Bill Hands tossed a five-hitter and Ron Santo hammered his 17th home run, helping the Cubs past Houston. Santo's homer was the game's only run until the ninth when Chicago ganged up on reliever Fred Gladding for four more.

Tony Perez hammered a three-run homer, climaxing a four-run Cincinnati rally in the sixth inning as the Reds knocked off the Mets in the first game of the doubleheader.

Oak Bay Seeks High-Rise Answers

A questionnaire sent to 350 random-sample residents of Oak Bay this week will help determine where and what type of high-rises will be built in the municipality.

The questionnaire has been prepared by Fred Zech, an architectural student from the University of British Columbia, commissioned by Oak Bay council to make a study on multiple family housing.

Zech has set an Aug. 10 deadline for the return of the questionnaires. Once returned, the information will be computerized and assessed.

Zech has until Sept. 15 to complete the survey and says the form mailed out this week is the result of careful collaboration with experts in the field of community and regional planning.

WHAT TYPE

The 35 questions on the form can be broken down into three sections, says Zech. The first ones are designed to probe the resident's attitude toward high-rises, town houses and other multiple dwellings.

The next will give the resident's experience in living near or in multiple dwellings. The last questions, which deal with income and education, will help show what type of people are for or against multiple dwellings.

BENEFITS

He says that surveys in other areas have proven that multiple housing brings economic benefits but adds that these surveys were made in developing, rather than an established area like Oak Bay.

To make an accurate cost-benefit study, he says, it is necessary to take into consideration the costs of increasing the size or replacing old, inadequate sewers and other facilities.

A revenue analysis, says Zech, must show how the municipality, the community as a whole and the individual property owner is affected.

Servants Ask B.C. To Set Up Own Plan

The provincial government was asked Tuesday to make sure that 6,000 provincial employees aren't deprived of unemployment insurance coverage next year as a result of new federal legislation.

Fryer was a member of a BCGEU delegation which met the committee, headed by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black.

Under federal legislation, provincial governments will have a choice between enrolling all of their employees in the plan or none of them, instead of the current selective system.

At the moment about 6,000 temporary employees — mostly in the ferry division and in the highways and forestry departments — are covered by unemployment insurance.

They will lose their coverage unless the provincial government decides to enrol all 26,000 of its employees under the federal plan.

The BCGEU delegation presented a brief which set out two other possible answers to the problem:

- Set up a provincial unemployment insurance system for the 6,000 workers in question.
- Make the 6,000 workers permanent employees.

OWN SYSTEM

Fryer said the committee seemed most interested in the idea of setting up its own system of coverage.

The union estimates it would cost the government as much as $3 million a year to run a provincial plan and about $2.8 million annually to enroll all 26,000 employees in the federal plan. It currently costs the provincial government about $350,000 to enroll the 6,000 in the plan.

Fryer said the union executive is required by the union to propose that all 26,000 be covered, but the most feasible answer may be setting up a separate provincial plan.

Fryer also said the federal government is to blame for the dilemma but the provincial government can't escape the responsibility to ensure the workers aren't left uncovered.

Nixon Urged: Halt Blast

Although the U.S. Senate has blocked detonation of a five-megaton hydrogen bomb on Amchitka Island for at least six months, subject to overruling by President Nixon, groups took further opposing action Monday.

The Victoria Voice of Women sent a wire to President Nixon urging him to use his power to stop any more underground blasting on the island.

It said: "We Canadian women urge you to cancel the Amchitka blast. Show the sincerity of your stated concern for environment and your pledge to work for nuclear arms limitation."

In Tokyo, Miss Inez St. Dennis represented the local Amchitka II group at the World Conference Against A and H Bombs, and presented a brief outlining the potential disaster of another Amchitka blast.

In her brief Miss Dennis asked for support from Japan and warned that the release of radioactivity into the sea could concentrate dangerous elements in the food chain, bringing disaster to both Canadian and Japanese fishing industries.

Height Limited

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Residents seeking to protect the smalltown air of this scenic southern California tourist spot have won a fight against what they call "visual pollution." Sixty per cent of the 8,000 registered voters turned out Tuesday, voting 3,707 to 1,213 to adopt a charter amendment limiting future building height to 36 feet.

Greece Bans U.S. Navy's Rest Centre

ATHENS (AP) — Greece has told the United States Navy to suspend plans to build a rest and recreation centre on the island of Crete for the men of the 6th Fleet, a reliable source said today.

The move a week ago was in apparent retaliation for the recommendation last month of the House of Representatives' foreign affairs committee that $118 million in proposed military aid to Greece be suspended until the regime restores democratic rule. On Tuesday the House approved the committee's recommendation and sent it to the Senate.

The sources said work had been scheduled to begin soon on the huge centre, which was to have recreational facilities, a hospital and a communications centre. It was to be built at Suda Bay, on the northwest coast of Crete, near the Greek naval base which ships of the 6th Fleet use.

After the House committee's decision last month, the Greek government made veiled threats to close all U.S. military bases in the country, and the government radio and television called for foreign governments to keep their hands off Greece's internal affairs.

Farm Act Opposed

SASKATOON (CP) — Spokesmen for money-lending institutions Tuesday criticized the Family Farm Protection Act introduced in the legislature Friday.

One group the act was supposed to help, the implement dealers, are mounting an attack to try to stop the bill's passage.

Bob Larter, of Estevan, president of the Saskatchewan-Manitoba Implement Dealers' Association whose members say they account for 90 per cent of farm machine sales in the province, said his association has asked for a meeting with Agricultural Minister Jack Messer.

'No Illusions'

REGINA (CP) — The NDP government will have to resurrect the radical policies of socialism in Saskatchewan and experiment with public ownership, a government backbencher said Tuesday.

"I have no illusions about the amount of ridicule we will have to take because of the experiments we will have to make," said John Richards (NDP—Saskatoon University).

Grants Announced

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier Harry Strom said Tuesday he doesn't think Albertans can be fooled by "glib promises of government give-away programs hastily hatched up at election time."

Then he announced that a major plank in the Social Credit platform for the Aug. 30 provincial election is a $1,000 grant for first-time purchasers of homes.

Speaking to nominated Social Credit candidates and campaign workers at the Jubilee Auditorium Strom said the grants would be limited to families with a total income of less than $15,000 a year.

'Serious Blunder'

REGINA (CP) — The need to stop strikes in Saskatchewan does not exist and that is why the New Democratic Party government will repeal the Essential Services Emergency Act, Health Minister Walter Smishek said Tuesday.

"Time lost through strikes in this province is negligible compared with time lost through illness or accidents and unemployment," he told the legislature during debate on second reading of the bill.

The bill, which forces compulsory and binding arbitration in labor-management disputes under provincial jurisdiction, was a serious blunder for its creators, the Liberals, said Smishek.

"It was a stupid and reckless political act," he said.

Beach Re-Opens

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sunset Beach on False Creek, closed to swimmers since June 29 because of excess pollution from a nearby sewage pumping station, was to re-open today. City medical health officer Dr. Gerald Bonham said Tuesday coliform counts have been stable for long period.

Plane Raised

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A Grumman Avenger water bomber that crashed into the Thompson River Saturday after take-off was raised from a depth of 15 feet and pulled ashore. A team of Scuba divers, a heavy-duty crane, a bull dozer and a small tug boat participated in the operation.

Plans Knocked

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Mayor Muni Evers said the city's plans to generate its own electricity at a thermal plant powered by natural gas received a knock Tuesday in a meeting with Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority. The plans were laid after Hydro told the city last year it would not continue selling power to the city, which owns its own distribution system. Evers said Dr. Shrum didn't object to a thermal station, but refused to continue supplying cheap electricity until the plant was operating.

Book Rules Change

BURNABY (CP) — The senate of Simon Fraser University approved a system of four-month loans for library books Tuesday. It will replace the present two-week loan period. But if another student wants a certain book which is loaned out on the four-month basis, the first student must return it within three days or be fined $1 a day.

Aussies Face Sudden Vote; Budget First

By JOHN O'FARRELL

CANBERRA, Australia (Reuter)—Nearly five months after coming to office in a political crisis, Prime Minister William McMahon is widely believed to be considering a sudden election to reinforce his mandate from the Australian people.

The 63-year-old Liberal party leader is thought to have gained confidence in office, despite a host of problems, including living down the party crisis that made him prime minister and controversy over a South African sporting tour.

A major factor in his deciding whether to hold an election by the end of this year—12 months before general elections are constitutionally due—could be the reaction to the federal budget due Aug. 17.

McMahon was elected leader of the Liberal party March 10 when then prime minister John Gorton voted himself out during bitter internal fighting in the party over his stewardship, which threatened the position of the ruling Liberal-Country party coalition.

VOTES FREQUENT

An early election would be the fifth federal election in six years.

In a recent comment, McMahon revealed that he originally wanted an election in June, but was talked out of it.

McMahon is known to consider a current national issue of law and order to be a major factor running in his favor, apparently believing that this, linked with a popular budget, could confirm his position for another three years.

The issue was generated by the controversial tour here of an all-white South African rugby team, the Springboks, which set off a series of anti-apartheid demonstrations and lined up some powerful labor union opposition.

But the swing to the government in the byelections in Queensland—whose state government took strong action against the demonstrators—indicated that the voters favored such action.

The South African rugby tour controversy and the federal government were linked in Australian minds since McMahon offered Royal Australian Air Force transport to move the visiting players around the country in the face of a threatened union boycott of internal airlines.

This link was strengthened when the Queensland state government—of the same political color as McMahon—asked for and received army accommodation in the state capital of Brisbane for police contingents brought in to control anti-Springbok demonstrators.

Two days later, and without consultation, Queensland premier Johannes Bjelke-Petersen suddenly declared a state of emergency for the duration of the Springboks visit.

It seriously embarrassed the federal government because it seemed an over-reaction to the demonstrators' threats.

FEARED BACKLASH

McMahon tried unsuccessfully to rescind the decision on army accommodation fearing a backlash against the state premier that would spill into federal politics.

State-wide strikes against the state of emergency seemed to confirm this fear. But the byelections seemed to produce resounding public support for the stand against the demonstrators.

The opposition Labor party, closely identified with the anti-Springbok campaign, lost a stronghold of 20 years standing in an extraordinary swing of 17 per cent to the government.

The government held the other seat and boosted its vote by four per cent, with a detective as its candidate.

UN to Probe Guinea Move

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter)

Piero Vinci, president of the United Nations Security Council, and Secretary-General U Thant moved today to obtain quick agreement on the composition of special mission to visit Guinea, which has accused Portugal of imminent military aggression.

At an emergency session Tuesday night, the 15-member council decided to dispatch a fact-finding team of three ambassadors to the area.

The team, expected to be drawn from East, West and neutral states, will look into Guinea's charge that Portugal has planned an invasion aimed at freeing "mercenaries and other agents" captured in Guinea during the alleged Portuguese-backed attack on Conakry last November.

The emergency meeting was called after Guinea Ambassador Abdoulaye Toure reported that his government monitored "conversations between units of foreign navies" and the Portuguese Monday, learning by that means that "an imminent military aggression" was planned by Portugal.

Meanwhile, Conakry radio reports said that security forces in Guinea are making more arrests of suspected "fifth columnists."

The radio, monitored in Abidjan, Ivory Coast, said the armed forces and the population have been placed on a state of alert and added that the arrest rate has been stepped up.

People were being arrested on the strength of simple accusations by others, the radio said.

THE ISLANDER

A Crusoe Within Trying to Escape

jack scott

When I first met David Conover some years ago — a friendship cemented, I must confess, by an unbecoming smugness that we were supermen who had not only conceived an Island Philosophy, but made it a way of life — he was at work on an article for Good Housekeeping magazine to be called "We Bought An Island."

It was '47 or '48. Dave and his beautiful wife, Jeanne, were busy establishing a resort on Wallace Island, a 200-acre atoll in Trincomali Channel. I, and my beautiful wife, had recently made the traumatic, umbilical break from a lifetime of city living to take up residence on Salt Spring Island. Perhaps we were both in need of reassurance that we'd done the right thing. Our occasional meetings in Mouat's General Store were devoted to a kind of reciprocal wonder that we were such rare, superior, imaginative, pioneering, truth-seeking giants.

Then Conover's magazine article appeared. The mail began to arrive by the bag-full at Wallace Island. All over North America, it appeared, there were thousands, tens of thousands, hundreds of thousands, with precisely the same dream that we'd thought so exclusively ours, precisely the same plans to make it reality. Island Fever, it was easy to see, was as endemic and fully as contagious as The Common Cold.

In the years since then Dave has persistently pursued the self-analysis, the rationale, the inner motivations that have made him, as Jeanne once tartly put it, a man "who'd buy a rock if it was surrounded by water." He has never wanted for an audience. Though he was an unknown writer, just the title of his first work, "Once Upon An Island," caused the largest-ever sale (over two-and-a-half-million) of the Reader's Digest condensed book series.

Now, with the publication of his second book, "One Man's Island," Dave is still at it. "I would rather talk about islands than eat," he confesses; "would rather — and often do — think about islands than sleep." It's a book. I expect that the critics will accord mixed notices. But when Conover is reflecting on his Island Philosophy he is, as they say, right on man.

Generally speaking, there are two types of men who long for an island of their own, the negative and the positive. Dave and I might well serve as classic cases of each.

With me, I don't mind admitting, it was negative. It wasn't so much what I was going to that impelled me, but what I was trying to leave behind. I craved escape, a chance to sit back for awhile as a spectator; to sort things out in a calm, cool and contemplative atmosphere, as men do on entering a religious retreat. It was a decision that could be revoked at any time. Though it took 18 years, it was revoked without regrets, in the end.

"I just woke up one morning in Los Angeles and realized that I was confusing happiness and pleasure with joy," he told me last week when, reluctantly, he came to town for an autographing session.

"I had the happiness and the pleasure, but not the joy. I didn't need an escape. I needed a confrontation — with myself. I wanted self-sufficiency not so much for itself, but to explore my own capabilities and potentials. Could I make a house? Could I dig a well? Could I build a boat? I had constantly in mind Allan Dartford's stricture, 'Life is a petty thing unless there is an urge to expand its boundaries.' Or, to put it another way, I wanted to know, before the game was over, what I was capable of. An island seemed the way to find out."

* * *

That compulsion has mellowed now into a conviction that you'll find shared by a great many people who have sought refuge in the Gulf Islands, a breed famed for eccentricity, but, in fact, as un-fevered, as well-balanced and as self-reliant as any I know.

Fifteen years ago, on the day that the Conovers were marking their 10th anniversary as islanders, Dave made a note in his journal that perhaps best summarizes the way he feels today.

"The older I grow," he wrote, "the more clearly I see the faults of society, the more I am inclined to live not as a recluse or misanthrope but as a solitary man here on the fringe. I thrive best on my own soil though another man may not better in society. I find the city a feast to the eye and to the glacial reign of the intellect, but so little there is to nourish the heart and spirit. Self-service stores are empty of self-served man. Everyone wears, as Emerson put it, the 'shopman's smile.' The poverty of sincerity is so rampant that nothing is as rare as an authentic soul. Everything is show. Pursuit. A blur of busyness. The days merely business deals; the hours are but details, to be hurriedly wrapped up. It takes time to love. To be kind, to be human. Streetbound, I fear I would suffer a far greater malnutrition than if I were stranded on an island."

Back there when we were so smugly sure that we were men apart, that escape or self-discovery or whatever it really is was something we'd arrived at entirely on our own, we simply wouldn't have believed that there were vast numbers of men who nourished the very same dream.

Dave now sees it, paradoxically, as a dream of success and there are two sentences in "One Man's Island" that put it on the line.

"When you stop and think, isn't success really freedom — living the life you want?" he asks at one point.

Junk Car Plan of Little Value: Dealer

A Victoria scrap dealer said today that a B.C. government plan for salvaging junked cars "hasn't been well thought out" because private companies can already do the job.

Ron Greene of Morris Greene Industries made the statement following Tuesday's announcement by Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan of a plan to purchase two car compactors for an estimated $250,000.

●

Kiernan said the service — which involves assembling of car hulks with the co-operation of municipalities — would be free where the government is given possession of the compacted cars. These would be sold as smelter feed.

Greene said that the bottleneck in the junk-car business is in the price obtained for the compacted metal, and two new government-owned compactors won't change that.

At present, said Greene, the market is depressed. At $18 a ton, there is no profit margin.

Morris Green Industries handled about 6,800 junk cars in the last 12 months, he said.

Greene, who has a meeting planned with Kiernan today to discuss the project, said the government plan will be in "direct competition" with the private scrap dealers.

Greene said his company has the only facilities for economically shipping compacted cars by barge to the smelters. When the price obtainable is as much as $24 a ton, which it was earlier this year, it becomes economical to seek junk cars from as far away as Port Alberni.

●

Cars are only compacted for shipping convenience, he said, so if it is uneconomical to ship them, compacting them does not automatically remove them.

He said, however, that the government compactors would probably be useful in the Interior.

The government compactors "might be very wise for areas other than the Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island," he said, but these are the areas in which the government apparently plans to operate.

Greene also pointed out that compactors are only useful when the engine of a car has been removed. The engine must also be scrapped.

Municipalities must often pay to have junk cars removed by a scrap dealer. City crews or hired tow-trucks bring the abandoned cars to a city works yard. When about 10 cars are accumulated in Victoria, they are advertised for sale.

Last year the City of Victoria collected 65 cars. Another 41 have been collected to date this year.

●

Of 71 abandoned vehicles reported, 10 required disposal. Thus far in 1971, 65 abandoned cars have been reported in Saanich and police are holding 11 for probable disposal.

City officials report it costs $8 to $9 to have a junk car taken away by a scrap dealer. Other costs are incurred in collecting the cars from the place of abandonment.

Even during reasonable market conditions, Morris Greene Industries can pay only $1 or $1.50 to a person who wants to get rid of a car not in running condition.

Delivered to the yard, a car can fetch $6.50.

All You Need Is Courage To Get Past Safety Test

By PETER McNELLY

Someone — I think it was a hitch-hiking boy scout — told me my auto safety inspection sticker had expired.

Naturally, I ignored him. After all, those dots which read "expires June 15" couldn't be read from outside the car.

My turn signals blinked properly, the police were working to rule and that probably meant they wouldn't be stopping cars for a safety check.

I thought, let it slide. I'll get it checked after the vacation — if the old stove survives.

After some emergency radiator surgery in Los Angeles — "That'll be $23.50 for the reverse flush, the anti-freeze, compression check and hoses."—the old 1956 Chevy limped north to this great island.

* * *

Among the inevitable bills which arrived the day after we unpacked, was a friendly automated reminder from B.C. motor vehicle superintendent Ray Hadfield.

I had, said the note, approximately 10 days to get my car inspected or its licence would be suspended.

"Hmm," I said, throwing the note away. "Would they really do that?"

So we drove to the testing station, my heart pumping, the carburetor wheezing. This was it. All those white-coated technicians with their gauges and charts. Doom.

But no. In five minutes it was over. It had made it. Not even a headlight adjustment was required.

The man in the white coat gave me my "motor-vehicle inspection report" punched approved.

There must be some mistake. That's a 16-year-old car they just approved. Surely the pitman arm or the idler arm or the worm and sector are worn out.

But a call to Hadfield proved reassuring. He explained the inspection staff don't check each mechanism listed on the report, but have devices which reveal faults that then would be traced to the defective part.

"They can spot major faults and get keyed to areas without necessarily putting their fingers on a problem," Hadfield said.

"You may not know this, but when they lift the front end up, it's designed to show whether the ball joint assembly is defective." I didn't know that.

Department statistics show most rejections are for poorly aimed headlights. Steering mechanisms, tires, mufflers and service brakes all take second place in the category of defects causing rejection.

About 60 per cent of all vehicles are rejected the first time. A rejected vehicle has an average of 2.01 defects.

WILD CHASE MAN GETS MENTAL EXAMS

A decision on whether to press charges against a motorist who lead police on a high-speed chase Tuesday will be postponed until officials have the results of a psychiatric examination.

Police said today the decision to press charges or not against the man would be deferred until the examination was completed.

Four vehicles, including that of the 47-year-old motorist, were damaged in the chase, during which speeds up to 70 m.p.h. were reached.

The man, driving a small foreign car, bumped the fender of a city police cruiser on Richmond when the chase began shortly after 9 a.m. Damage was estimated at about $20.

The driver also hit another vehicle at Douglas and Saanich causing about $100 damage and forced another car off the road at Douglas and Trans-Canada causing about $45 damage. No one was injured.

Tentative Agreement On Ferries

Officials of the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union are recommending the settlement to the 1,600 members, branch business agent Norman Thornber said today.

Details of the tentative settlement were not released because they have not been relayed to union members, said Thornber.

"We feel it is a good settlement," he added.

Terminal committees will hold meetings Monday and ratification ballots will be going out at the same time, he said.

Earlier, the union said regulations issued by B.C. Ferries lumped together absenteeism of all kinds and that 200 employees were told in letters they could be fired if absent in the next six months.

Glendale Opens 5 Years Later

Glendale Hospital for the physically and mentally handicapped will receive its first patients in about three weeks — five years after construction began — administrator M. F. Hayes said today.

The 300-bed centre, which cost about $7 million, is the third provincial hospital in the field, along with Woodlands at New Westminster and Tranquille at Kamloops.

While patients at Woodlands and Tranquille are either mentally retarded or both physically and mentally handicapped, Glendale will deal with two main categories:

- Patients who are severely retarded mentally but not physically handicapped.
- Those who are severely physically handicapped as well as mentally retarded.

It will also serve as an assessment centre.

Glendale's first patients will be a group of 25 transferred from Woodlands the week of Aug. 26, Hayes said. They will be joined a month later by a second group of 25.

The first group are patients confined to bed. The second will be ambulatory.

In recent weeks the hospital's administration has been concentrating on hiring staff. By the time the first patients arrive there will be a dietary staff of 11, 12 for housekeeping and about 20 nurses plus the administrative staff. Staff training programs will be completed about the end of January.

Glendale, at the end of Markham Road off the West Saanich Road, will provide long-term care for both children and adults.

It has a north south and central block, each with treatment areas on two floors. Each nursing area will have 25 patients and will be linked with a "day room" where those patients who can get out of bed will have an activity program.

Doctors Plan Attack Against Government

About 150 local doctors Tuesday night reached "general agreement" on how to oppose recent government regulations but they are not expected to detail their attack until Friday.

Dr. Gordon Lott, president of the Victoria Medical Society, said today the three-hour meeting produced a "frank and sensible" discussion and general agreement about what should be done.

Objective of the session was to assess local doctors' opinions and instruct the society's four delegates on what position to take when they attend the board of director's meeting of the B.C. Medical Association in Vancouver Friday.

Doctors generally are upset by:

- New licensing regulations for medical laboratories and diagnostic facilities, apparently aimed at private operations in the hope of checking climbing costs to medicare.
- New powers granted Health Minister Ralph Loffmark by the cabinet, enabling him to grant, restrict or deny hospital privileges to a doctor.

The position that B.C. doctors will take is expected to be detailed following Friday's meeting and a meeting of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons in Vancouver Saturday.

arthur mayse

AT SOME PERIOD IN every boy's life, he should be plucked out of education's mainstream for a spell of instruction in various skills that he won't value until a few years later. I can't think of a better laboratory for this course than a suburban house of the sort that may one day be his castle.

The house would be planned and administered by a panel of veteran home-owners. From their pooled experience, they would devise a long list of home maintenance problems for students to solve, and emergencies with which they'd be required to cope.

The panelists, of whom I'd hope to be one, would be expected to approach their assignment with imagination and a vein of sadism. They would be masters of the double whammy, in which disaster coincides with catastrophe.

It isn't enough, for instance, that on a night of torrential rain, the householder in training should become aware of an ominous toc-toc-toc that tells him a roof-leak is dripping on his living room ceiling. At this point, a power failure should douse all lights.

As a nice little extra touch, he should stumble and grope his way to a flashlight, only to discover that its batteries are burned out.

Naturally, it wouldn't do to demoralize the student new to the course by clobbering him with so complex a situation. Better to ease him gently into home upkeep with a dripping tap. But let's not make it too easy, since to do so might encourage brash over-confidence.

For a start, the screwdriver has gone missing. He tries his luck with a table-knife, and the screw that secures the tired old washer crumbles away. Also, the only replacement washer in the house is either too large or too small.

Thus we pose an exercise in making-do that will stand him in good stead when a tougher situation confronts him. The kind of thing, perhaps, that once kept me jammed head and shoulders in an under-sink cupboard for most of a bruising and frustrated morning.

This sink graced the kitchen of a house into which we'd just moved. In addition to hot and cold water taps, it was fitted with one of those hose-and-nozzle dinguses for spraying plates. My wife reached for the sprayer and found herself holding a length of tubing that had parted company with its connection.

Three hours later, I was still in there with several wrenches, a pair of pilers, a hammer and a set of skinned knuckles.

I also had a wet head that got soaked again each time my dear one turned the hot or cold water on in forgetful moments.

Oh yes, I finally got the blasted connection loose from its pipe. The point is that a kid trained in the householders' course I recommend would have finished the job in minutes or even seconds.

Perhaps the modern school gives at least a little thought to arming the husbands of the future with such homely fixit skills. All I got was something called manual training useful in itself, but insufficient to meet the demands that householding imposes. Knowing how to make an umbrella stand isn't much help when a power mower won't start or a car horn won't stop, or the new-painted roof gutter breaks out in blisters.

The naturally handy seem to acquire such knowledge by a process effortless as osmosis. But, lacking a crash course of the sort I advocate, the sorethumb householder is forever a prey to crises for which he has no ready solutions.

How to take the squeak out of a floor, for instance.

How to open a paint-sealed window, and how to replace the pane he cracks while struggling to raise that same obstinate window.

How to locate the studs under the plaster when putting hooks in a wall. How to instal a set of boat trailer lights so the left-turn blinker won't go into action when a right turn is indicated . . .

I could go on, and so could my patient wife, who contributed the business of the wall studs and the paint-sealed window. But I have a little job to do — some raspberry wires to string between posts — and how do I tighten the top wire without getting a sag in the bottom one?

In my school of hard knocks for future householders, such knowledge would be elementary.

Sex Education 'Personal' Thing Counsellor Says

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver School Board can expect to receive a petition in the fall asking that birth control information and contraceptives be made freely available in schools.

The petition is being circulated by the High School Birth Control Rights Committee, a group which was turned down by the board last February when it asked for general distribution of a birth control booklet printed by McGill University, Montreal.

The board said the 48-page booklet, containing detailed and illustrated information, was rejected because of its political judgments.

Lynn Christie and Jean Lawrence, members of the committee, say many girls of 13 and 14 become pregnant "because they are confused."

"They haven't the first idea of birth control," says Lynn "No one's told them at home and they don't learn anything at school."

Don Dawson, director of counsellors for the Vancouver School Board, says the issue is people, not birth control.

"If you throw a cold, factual booklet at a kid, he gets a cold, factual introduction to a very personal subject. Sex education is a thing that needs discussion and guidance. If it is possible for a teacher to do that with his class, fine. Let him do it."

Dawson says two birth control booklets are under consideration for distribution in Vancouver schools, one written without commercial emphasis by a contraceptive company, the other from the Family Planning Association.

Women's Lower Wages Charge a 'Cliche' Chabot Says as He Dismisses Brief

By HELEN MELNYK

Three women's groups have extended the Sandringham strike issue beyond a labor dispute to a battle for women's rights.

The case of the 20 women — mostly nursing aides — who have been striking against Sandringham since Sept. 30 of last year is a typical example of the exploitation of women as a cheap source of labor, said Kathleen Ruff, president of the Voice of Women (VOW) in an interview Tuesday.

A delegation of four women — Mrs. Ruff, Linda Sproule-Jones, also of VOW, Fiona Gow, of the Victoria Women's Caucu, and Mary-Jo Dixon, of the Thomas More Centre, presented a brief Monday to Labor Minister James Chabot, discussing the Sandringham strike situation in relation to problems of women in the work force.

Good Example

Mrs. Ruff said that the striking Sandringham workers who have unionized to demand a wage increase from $1.50 to $2.00 an hour and job security, exemplify women employed in a predominantly female occupation, earning the lowest minimum wage and working under poor conditions.

She stated that some of the striking women are sole supporters of families, and their yearly gross earnings of $3,120 are "insufficient for a decent living standard."

Male employees at Sandringham hospital, who are doing substantially the same work as the nursing aides, she said, earn $2.50 an hour.

The brief cited some of the findings of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women:

- Women generally work in a few occupations labelled "female," earn less money than men and rarely reach the top.
- The aforementioned situation has been going on for so long that society takes it for granted.
- The facit assumption that a living wage is necessarily lower for women than men is unacceptable.
- Employees evade legislation covering equal pay for equal work by going out of their way to find differences in male and female duties to justify the different rates of pay.

In the brief presented to Chabot, the women stated that they are supporting the Sandringham strikes because "we are concerned with the plight of responsible working women who sincerely wish to follow legitimate procedures in obtaining their rights to a decent standard of employment."

They called on the B.C. government to intervene in the strike to "show sympathy for the problem of working-women and the Royal Status theme that the government must take steps to insure women are paid equal wages as men for work of comparative value, and skill and training."

Chabot told the women he has no authority to intervene in the strike because "the public interest and welfare" is not involved. The government would step in only if the care of the patients in the hospital deteriorated, he said.

In a telephone interview Tuesday, the labor minister dismissed the allegation that women work for lower wages than men as "a typical cliche put forth by such organizations as VOW."

"Working women have better opportunities in British Columbia than in many other provinces," Chabot said.

When questioned about the charge in the brief that the B.C. Provincial Department of Public Works pays male janitors approximately $100 a month more than female janitors, Chabot said he didn't know anything about the matter.

Voice of Women President Kathleen Ruff

Labor Minister James Chabot

Very Disappointed

Mrs. Ruff said she was "very disappointed that Chabot did not consider the human rights of half the population to be a matter of public interest.

"By not acting, Chabot is compelling women to work in low conditions at the lowest wages permitted under law," she said.

Women who try to break through the low-pay-and-standards syndrome through legitimate channels are opposed all the way by employers, Mrs. Ruff claims.

"Employers have traditionally used women as cheap labor and will continue to do so, since it lies in their interest to do so," Mrs. Ruff said.

Mrs. Ruff said that the interview with Chabot indicated that "encouragement" from the government is not forthcoming.

AIRPORT OFFICIALS BAFFLED

Peking Visitor Has No Visa

By JOHN BURNS
Special to the Times

PEKING — When it comes to the old college try, it would be hard to top a girl giving her name as Maria Marcielia Chaiman Moshe Fernandez, who became, during the weekend, one of the very few Americans to enter the People's Republic of China without a visa.

There have been many who have tried it, some with great imagination, as in the case of a group who tried swimming into the mouth of the Yangtse a couple of years ago. But there have been few, perhaps none, who have done it with the gay abandon of Miss Fernandez.

Shortly after noon on Saturday, the young American, blond and miniskirted, and apparently braless, came skipping down the steps of an aeroflot airliner into the arms of incredulous officials at the Peking Airport.

In the eight hours it had taken her to fly from Moscow, she had achieved what many an eminent U.S. sinologist has coveted for a lifetime: she had set foot on Chinese soil. But that was about all, for 5½ hours later she was back aboard the same aircraft, returning to Moscow.

In the interval, she had fought a spirited battle for the right to stay. Though the battle unfolded almost entirely behind closed doors, word of it ran through the terminal building in no time, riveting the attention of the travellers crowding the building at that time of day.

Apparently, the only foreigners to speak with the intrepid American during her brief stay were an East German diplomat who met her on the aircraft on the way in and a French journalist who happened to be at the airport.

The story she told them was that she represented a group called One World One Peace, and had come to China to seek permission for members of the group to make a visit to Tibet. She said she also hoped to get to Hanoi to look at the other side of the war.

Aged about 30, she declined to say where she hailed from. But she claimed to have made the trip via the U.S. Consulate in Munich and the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

Perhaps the least likely part of her tale was that officials at both had advised she would have no trouble getting a visa on arrival in Peking.

Where Prices Are Always Reasonable

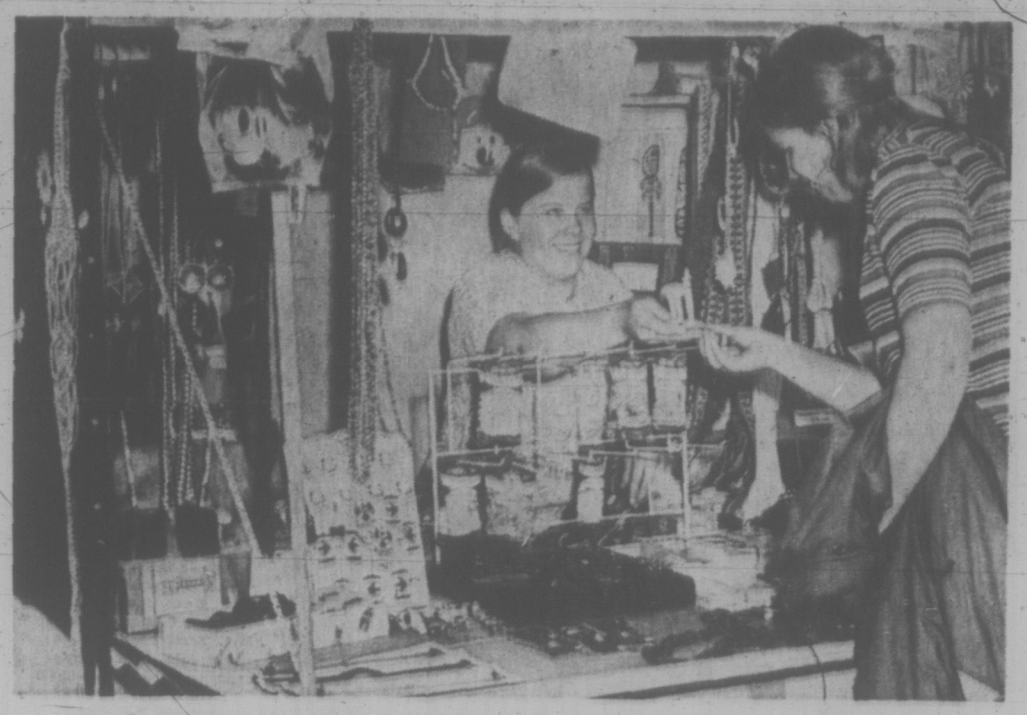
Honesty at the roadside

Typical sign in country



Bastion Square is ideal backdrop for Lindsay Gardener's stand

Business at Roadside Booms During Summer

It appears that honesty prevails in the countryside.

Many roadside vendors have replaced big city clerks with little money jars and leave their goods open to the wind and interested buyers.

Gordon Head, Cordova Bay — any open country or farm land in and around Victoria for that matter — are spotted with stalls, tables and booths, displaying fruits of the land.

Larger booths are often manned. But the majority are merely sheltered and close to the owner's home.

A typical roadside stand on Blenkinsop Road, shelters a few bags of home-grown tomatoes and a variety of garden flowers. A glass jar with a slit in its lid acts as the cash register. Large stones keep the cardboard price tags in place. And honesty keeps the money jar in place.

"Most people are honest," said Mrs. Phyllis Tindell, 64, of 1265 Blenkinsop. She and her husband, Jack, 68, have had the stall in front of their home for 18 years and still believe in people's honesty.

"We've had the jar taken a few times and people do help themselves occassionally, but we accept this," Mrs. Tindell said.

The more enthusiastic vendors don't wait for people to come to them — they go out to the people.

Wendi, Wayn and Deedee Moody, of 1298 Tracksell, are earning their summer spending money, sitting at the side of the Cedar Hill Golf Course tee-off, with glasses, lemonade and a sign: "Ice Cold Lemonade 5 cents".

Do they sell much?

"Yup," said Wayn, 5, manager of the threesome.

"We've worked five days here and we've made, oh, about $2." He figures he'll be a millionaire soon.

Twin sister Wendi piped up: "But I were only working four days cuz I were sick one day."

Closer to the city centre, roadside or street vendors diminish.

There's Tosh, the barrow boy, with his cart containing a variety of fruit, nuts and souvenirs, and Holly, the flower girl, who can be spotted in Bastion Square when the weather's nice.

Lindsay's Whimsies, a colorful booth run by Lindsay Gardner, 17, has been part of Bastion Square for two summers now.

YOUNG TEENS REJECT PARENTS' STANDARDS

Age Level of Drug Users Dropping: Study

MONTREAL (CP) — The age level of drug users is dropping due mostly to more money, free time and parent-child conflicts, says the co-ordinator of a suburban youth drop-in centre called Rendez-Vous.

Don Mericle, 30, says the big problem at the centre and in suburban Pointe Claire as a whole is that the age of users is going down.

"We're treating a lot of kids who are 12, 13, 14 and 15 years old. It's the younger ones who are taking over from the 18-year-olds and over.

"I think this is something that should awaken the community to the fact that so many young kids are starting out on LSD and will probably go on to harder drugs."

The area in general tends to be a large drug scene, he says, because it's a relatively affluent middle-class area.

"I'd say it's due to the money the kids get, the free time they have and, most important of all, it's the family conflicts and rejection of the parents' standards.

"We ran a questionnaire last fall and a statistics man went over it and from it we reached the figures of 70 to 80 per cent of kids in the community who have tried marijuana and other things."

Located in a 5½-room flat in a shopping centre, Rendez-Vous was set up in 1970 as a place where kids can meet, talk and get help.

"Since that time we've matured a great deal," Don says, "and have experienced an increase in our programs."

"One of the biggest things we've done for the summer," said Carol Osmer, centre co-director, "is to get on Opportunities for Youth grant to operate a summer travelling theatre which goes around to parks, and a boutique workshop where kids sell articles."

However, the most important project undertaken by the centre is considered to be its emergency drug unit. It is manned by Don Palmer, 19, and Mary Moore, 17, both hired by the federal health and welfare department.

"We started it 10 months ago to deal with kids who came to the centre with drug problems," they said.

"Such a large number of kids showed up that we began taking them to the Lakeshore General Hospital where we developed an on-call system with the hospital so that they would call us 24 hours a day if we were needed to go down there.

"At present we use three rooms at the hospital. We have a follow-up exercise to try to get the kids involved in Rendez-Vous as an alternate to drug use and we maintain a referral system with community doctors so that we can take care of medical problems."

No drugs are allowed inside the centre and bilingual signs are up everywhere warning the kids that if they bring them in the centre could be closed up.

Pictures of Wives On Office Walls

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — "A wife is responsible for the success of the office-holder," said Mayor Robert Wilson.

"They have to put up with so much of our public and personal lives. They should be honored."

Wilson had color photographs taken of each city councilman's wife last week. But there will be a delay before the portraits decorate the mayor's office walls as scheduled.

'Just Another Job'

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronaut's children tend to take this whole moon thing in stride.

"I don't think they're blase about it, but they accept it very easily, very readily," says Lurton Scott, wife of Apollo 15 commander David R. Scott.

"People have flown in spacecraft ever since they can remember, so you really can't compare our feelings and their feelings."

The Scotts have two children, Doug, 7 and Tracy, 10.

"When I was growing up," Mrs. Scott recalls, "you always said, 'Oh, that's as crazy as flying to the moon.'"

"I catch myself starting to say that now," she said.

Mary Irwin, whose husband roamed the lunar surface with Scott, says her four children show flashes of interest, but are not too emotionally involved.

The Irwin children are Joy, 11, Jill, 10, James, 8, and Jan, 6.

Their daddy's been working on it so long, I think they accept the whole package as daddy's just gone on another TDY (temporary duty)," Mrs. Irwin said.

AMERICAN VISITORS INTRIGUED

'Don't' Signs Out of Question In Colorful Butchart Gardens

elizabeth forbes

Out at the Butchart Gardens the other night, several of us were in conversation with a couple from down California way. They were enthusiastic, as all visitors are, about the setting, landscaping and wealth of flowers. And they were eager to identify different blooms by names given in a printed map and explanation of the gardens.

Something that intrigued them was that nowhere had they seen a sign saying "don't pick the flowers." It was amazing, they said, that such a warning was not tucked into every border and every flower bed.

"If we had a garden like this down our way, there would be signs all over the place," said the woman.

"Yes, and they would still pick the flowers," the man added.

'Don't' Signs

As far as I can remember, there has never been "don't" signs in Butchart Gardens. In the beginning it was because the originator, Mrs. R. P. Butchart, was sure that those who visited her garden would love it as much as she did.

There is a story dating back to those first days that tells of a well-known writer who once asked Jenny Butchart if she knew how many flowers were picked in a day.

Came the quick answer. "Oh, my dear, very few people think of such a thing. And anyway, if someone felt like taking a flower from our garden, my husband and I would be the last to object."

The belief is still held by Mrs. Butchart's grandson, Ian Ross, and his wife, Anne-Lee, the present owners.

It was back in 1904 that Jenny Butchart planted her first flowers and shrubs and, in the 67 years between, the story of that start has become a classic.

Cement Mill

Robert Butchart had a cement mill at Tod Inlet and he and his wife lived in a small home near the quarry where Jenny watched the big hole in the ground grow. Until the limestone was exhausted, the plant moved to the other side of the inlet. And nothing was left but a sprawling abandoned mill and the ugly pit.

"It's a disgraceful mess, Bob," Jenny Butchart told him over and over again. "The world must have cement," was her husband's reply.

"That may be," the determined little woman would say, "but the world needs beauty, too."

In any event, legend has it that she looked at her husband and said "we'll make a garden in the quarry . . . it's a perfect spot for a garden."

Today, the grounds have been enlarged and improved and, in all the summers I have known them, I do not remember the gardens ever being more colorful and attractive.

Thousands of people visit there in a season. No doubt, amongst them, there are some who have picked the flowers or taken away a few seeds.

However, as Jenny Butchart once said "very few people think of such a thing." And Ian and Anne-lee Ross adhere to that belief.

That's why there are no signs saying "don't pick the flowers." And I doubt there ever will be.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to "Can't Forget in Minnesota." He married an unwed mother who told him who the baby's father was and all the sordid details of her mistake. Then he said he had wished a thousand times that she had never told him. Well, I will lay you odds that she has wished 2,000 times that she had never told him.

The letter didn't say how long they've been married, but if he still makes her pay daily for her mistake by letting her know that he "can't forget," I sincerely hope she looks herself in the mirror soon and says, "I have had enough. He'll never change." And then leaves him. It will not be the end of the world. Sign me — Been There.

CIVILIZATION EXPERIMENT

Alberta Youths Create 'Society'

SUNDRE, Alta. (CP) — New Earth Village, an 18-day experiment in civilization, is a chance for 70 Alberta youths to create a society with a workable political, economic and judicial system.

They can share their goods; they can hoard; they can go to war; or, they can trade.

The village, near this central Alberta community, is divided into three sections with each having a different way of life and a different economic base.

★ ★ ★

Residents in the industrial sector have most of the luxury goods, while the mineral section has most of the water, and the agricultural section most of the food.

It's a world of limited resources for the youths, aged 15 to 18, with real-life inequalities along the way.

As well, sickness, death and war can be simulated with their attendant penalities in the microcosm.

The exercise, with 45 Calgary youths participating, began Monday and was organized by the Calgary and District International Development Society.

"If they co-operate successfully in surviving some of the province's roughest terrain, they will prosper," says a New Earth Village news release.

★ ★ ★

That attempt succumbed to territorial rivalries and national hatreds. The only thing left of the village after 2½ weeks was a sign on a wall; "Do not adjust your minds — there is a fault in reality."

That's the theme Alberta has taken in its simulated environment.

Cable Ownership—Next Problem for Broadcast Czars

By BOB DOUGLAS

OTTAWA (CP) — A cable television problem which could have a significant impact on the future of telecommunications in Canada still seems far from settlement.

The issue-ownership of coaxial cable used for cable TV received only a few vague paragraphs in a recent Canadian Radio-Television Commission statement on cable policy.

The remarks do not clearly resolve the issue and the CRTC is expected to say more within the next few months.

The telephone companies and cable television operators are watching developments closely because both have an interest in using coaxial cable for many new services from computer data transmission to instant polling.

COULD LIMIT MOVES

The telephone companies want to hang on to complete control over the coaxial cables used by the TV cable companies, merely renting space on use in his TV operations.

With this kind of control, the telephone company could limit the ability of the cable operator to move into other services such as computer data transmission.

But cable operators argue that this doesn't even leave them with an assurance that wire space will be available for their operations in future. The telephone company could decline to renew a rental contract, they say, and they would be out of business.

A mixed system currently exists across the country. In many cases, telephone companies own and control the cable used by the cable TV systems. In other cases, cable TV companies have partial ownership of this hardware and, in relatively few cases usually systems set up before cable TV was widespread, the TV operator owns his own coaxial cable.

The significance of the current struggle is that the telephone companies and other common carriers could face keen competition from the cable companies in providing certain services.

RESTRICT SERVICES

At the moment, many contracts between cable TV companies and telephone firms for use of telephone company equipment or rights-of-way prevent cable operators from providing services other than broadcasting.

But some cable operators are building their own systems and this may allow them to get around the prohibition.

The CRTC recently approved an application to set up a cable TV system in New Glasgow, N.S., in which the operator has been ordered to own his entire system.

CRTC officials say this is not a policy established by the commission. It was simply approving an application in which the applicant stated he would own the system.

The telephone companies argue that cable services should be handled as a normal part of their business.

STUDY MADE

Duplication of services could be eliminated, they say. One cable could carry all services.

A federal communications department study group, the telecommission, said recently that there may be good economic reasons for allowing greater competition for the telephone companies and other common carriers. But these should be weighed against possible damage to the quality and service cost of existing systems.

The CRTC statement on cable policy said only that the commission does not intend to license cable companies to operate outside the Broadcasting Act. But this would not appear to prevent them from operating under the act and carrying on other activities at will.

The CRTC has made it clear that it does not intend to license telephone companies or other common carriers to be broadcasters. Bell Canada, in fact, is prohibited by law from providing the message as well as the medium.

But the commission still has to lay down a definite policy on whether cable operators should rent their cable from the telephone companies or own it outright.

If the current mixed approach is adopted as commission policy, the telephone companies will have lost their case, at least in part. But the debate isn't over and the commission is expected to have more to say.

Pilots Strike Again

ROME (Reuter) — Hundreds of air travellers were delayed by a two-hour strike at Rome Airport Tuesday by ground staff and pilots of Italy's national Alitalia Airline. The work stoppage was the 27th since January.

Machine-Gun-Toting Holdup Gang Arrested

NEW YORK (AP) — Police surprised a machine-gun-toting band of five holdupmen as they emerged from a Harlem bar early today and exchanged more than 100 shots in a running three-block battle before one of the gunmen was killed.

Two men and a young girl were arrested and two other men escaped.

An anonymous telephone call told police a holdup was in progress at Thelma's Lounge at the corner of Seventh Avenue and 148th Street. Five squad cars were sent to the scene.

Police said four of the five men had entered the bar about 2:30 a.m. EDT and ordered the customers to place their money on a table. The girl, described as about 19 years old, waited outside with the fifth man, who was driving a cab.

TOOK $6,000

Arriving policemen were met with fire from a Thomson submachine-gun and from four revolvers. They returned the fire as the holdupmen got into the cab and drove three blocks before being stopped by traffic.

The shootout ended at 145th Street and Seventh Avenue. Police said the nine policemen who took part fired 62 shots and estimated the suspects fired at least 40 more.

Police said they recovered the money, three revolvers and the machine-gun.

Teaching Hospital Worth $60M Approved for UBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Health Minister Ralph Loffmark said Tuesday he has approved construction of a $60 million teaching hospital at the University of B.C.

It will be the hub of a Health Sciences Centre, bringing together all teaching phases of health and medical care.

Loffmark said the B.C. government will provide $28 million towards construction of the hospital while the federal government is expected to provide $25 million. He said the balance would probably come from private sources.

The health minister also announced he has instructed more operating rooms and beds by made available for increased heart surgery at both Willow Chest Centre and St. Paul's Hospital.

A specialized cardiac team at Vancouver General Hospital now performs about seven such operations a week at Willow Centre. Loffmark said with new facilities this number could be doubled, and increased at St. Paul's to eight from two a week.

Loffmark denied he had been holding up approval of money for a new open heart surgery unit at Vancouver General until he had authority to say who could use it.

The charge was made Monday at a press conference by Dr. Adam Waldie, president of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons. He said the health minister had made it clear he was not going to allow a so-called clique of doctors to say who could use it.

Loffmark said he has no intention of deciding individually any specific increases in surgical staff.

"I am going to recommend to the executive council that a committee of cabinet be struck to hold hearings into the question of how best to make use of the Willow Chest Centre and its open heart facilities," he said.

"I do not want doctors to feel that decisions are being made by only one minister."

UBC's board of governors said Tuesday night it would proceed with construction of the hospital as soon as possible. University President Walter Gage said approval of the project had been expected for some time.

HOME GARDEN

Plant the Right Perennials

By HILDA BEASTALL

The August garden can be as gay as you wish by planting the right herbaceous perennials to give color just where you need it. You may like to work on a gold-yellow to orange and dark red scheme to harmonize with August blooming shrubs with golden yellow flowers.

Choose from gaillardias with large rich yellow and maroon daisy-like flowers on 12-inch stems; heleniums either all rich yellow or all maroon, between 18 inches to three feet high, and the old cormous-rooted perennial known as montbretia.

Hilda

Now known botanically as tritonia, montbretia is useful for large groupings, for the stems of orange red flowers are as graceful as the narrow leaves. Other colors may sometimes be purchased in clear yellow, dark red and several shades in between.

Unless the soil is very well drained in winter, these are not so rreliably hardy as the old orange-red. When a clump fails to bloom, dig it up in the early spring and replant the largest corms in groups of half dozens, renewing the soil with compost and bonemeal.

If your fancy runs to a pink and blue color scheme with mauve and white buddleias as background, you can grow a group of Lythrum salicaria Morden Pink, an easy tall perennial; an old-fashioned tall Veronica longifolia with long speedwell blue spikes; and the scented pink or dark red Monarda didyma (Bee-balm).

Some gardeners like to plan for garden effects in certain portions of the year for a variety of reasons. It may be that August is a month when visitors drop in from the far reaches of the country. What a thrill to show them a just-coming-into-bloom garden instead of a drying-up has-been.

"You should have seen it last month" — you know the kind of comment.

A small garden, or one which has a part dedicated to outdoor living and eating, is much more attractive if the color in any one season is limited.

The effect is less disturbing, less busy, and more likely to induce the sense of relaxation and re-creation so necessary to find at home.

If a bit of new garden planning is needed, do a few rough sketches now while you are thinking about it. Make notes of things to move and the colors you would like.

When September comes and planting can be done, you can go ahead, gaining a season's growth over the same work done next spring.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

That defense is the most difficult department of bridge to master is concurred in by all bridge players. Thus it is always a distinct pleasure to present a deal in which excellent play by the defenders resulted in the defeat of declarer's contract. The hand arose some years ago in the Life Masters Pairs Championship.

♣ 8 7 4

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1◇	1♡	2◇	2♡
3♣	4♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♣.

The all-around bidding was quite good. Singled out for special attention would be East's three club bid. It had a dual purpose: if West had club support, it might be that East-West could make a game in one of the minor suits. And the bid also gave West a choice of leads if South purchased the contract.

As a matter of fact, if West had led a low diamond at trick one, South would have fulfilled his contract with ease, losing only one diamond and one spade. But with East also bidding clubs, West elected to open the nine of clubs.

The trick was captured by dummy's ace, after which declarer cashed two top trumps, gathering in the outstanding pieces. He then led his king of spades, which East won with the ace. East now paused to analyze the situation.

After some reflection, he played the deuce of diamonds, West winning the trick with the nine-spot. West returned the three of clubs and East cashed two club tricks. Thus the defenders took four tricks, inflicting a one-trick set on declarer.

Had East not underled his ace of diamonds, declarer would have fulfilled his contract. Had the ace of diamonds been cashed instead, West could not have been put into the lead; and East could not have made two club tricks. In point of fact, if East did not cash his club king, he would not have made even one club trick, for South's two remaining clubs would have discarded on two of dummy's established spades.

As to the "gamble" involved in leading a low diamond away from East's ace, it was really a very slight one. From East's point of view, West was known to have no high cards whatsoever in either of the black suits; and hence figured to have the diamond king for his free raise to two diamonds. Thus the underlay away from the diamond ace rated to be the right play. And so it was.

"There are some candies in the box," said Susan. "Look, Mom."

Mary smiled. "I know. I just checked them, but I'll tell you what. I'll take a quarter of them, and a quarter of a candy for Sam. Then for myself I'll take a quarter of what remains, and a quarter of a candy. That will leave eight for you to share with Mike."

How many were there?

YOUR HEALTH Dr. Walter Alvarez

I am reading a release from the Long Island Jewish Medical Centre in New Hyde Park, N.Y. There they have a program for youngsters who take "soft" drugs, (Such as marijuana) in which the counsellors emphasize learning to grow up, and rarely use the word "drugs." According to Frank Robertson, co-ordinator of the program, "Drug abuse is a symptom of deep-rooted personal problems — problems most teen-agers experience eduring the growing-up years. The only difference is that some kids turn to drugs. Others express their distress in other ways."

They have a group of 34 youngsters, some as young as 12 or 13 years of age, who meet at the Christ Episcopal Church, some for a daily program that runs from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. or for evening sessions.

As Robertson says, the process of growing up is largely a search for identity; discovering who you are, who and what you want to be, what your proper role is in the family and outside. He goes on to say, "Many kids get lost in the shuffle at school. They're average students, with nothing to brag about. They make their Cs. People say, 'You should do better. You're only average.' And when you're average, it's hard to find an identity — hard to build a firm ego or a solid sense of self-esteem."

Another problem that many young people must face is loneliness — in school, at home, even out in the street. If somebody says, "Come on, let's get high together," it is the word "together" that influences the youngster and attracts him to drugs. It is a way of sharing something with other people and he thinks it will make him feel less lonely.

It is this loneliness that the people at the Centre are trying to help the youngsters to combat. In their program they have work tasks, recreation, school instruction, counselling and talk sessions, or "rap" sessions. "During the rap sessions, problems that are troubling the kid are brought to the surface. We force the kids to look at themselves, honestly. We make it possible for them to verbalize their problems. We teach them to deal with the 'tough situations' instead of hiding from them. We show them how getting high on drugs is only a cop-out."

Robertson goes on to say, very wisely, that helping these youngsters to change their thinking and their ways of handling their problems cannot be done overnight; "the hang-ups don't disappear by magic, or the problems, or the bruises either." Healing takes time, and it also takes time to re-pattern a personality and to establish new values.

What Robinson and his associates at the Centre are trying to do is to give the youngsters a feeling that they are a part of a kind of family, as they all work together to solve their problems. As Robertson says, some of the youngsters never knew discipline until they went to the Centre; some have never known "the warm sweetness of approval"; some have never known what it feels like to like oneself, or to be cared about or accepted by others. But at the Centre, as a part of the group, they find encouragement and friendship and with this comes a sense of responsibility for themselves and for the others. A youngster is able to find some self-esteem.

I have often said that I think one of the best ways of helping people with problems is for a group of people facing the same kind of trouble to join together and help one another. I have seen some wonderful things happen in this way.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc. for rent, or property for sale, start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open daily Monday through Saturday 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you call.

Wage, Price Debate Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today he does not favor a wage-price-board approach to inflation in the United States economy. He said he would bring the power of his office to bear in an effort to see that industry and labor negotiations settlements "are responsible."

He spoke out on a day when a dozen Senate Republicans proposed a system of wage-price restraints and Treasury Secretary Connally said the Nixon administration would welcome a full-fledged debate in Congress on the issue.

Nixon said the idea of a wage-price board would be considered only if congressional hearings "convince me that" enforcing an incomes policy could be accomplished without shifting the economy."

At an impromptu news conference, the president reiterated his belief that 1971 "would be a good year for the economy" and 1972 "a very good year."

The administration has consistently opposed wage-price control the welcome Connally offered to consideration of the question was a new development.

Manoeuvres Start

VIENNA (Reuter) — Warsaw pact states have started military manoeuvres involving Czechoslovak, Soviet and Hungarian troops, the Hungarian news agency MTI reported.

Central Saanich May Ease Curbs

Long-term residents of Central Saanich may have land restrictions eased for subdivision purposes if a proposal made Monday by Ald. Percy Lazarz gains council approval.

In a notice-of-motion, Lazarz proposed an amendment to the present subdivision by-law which would permit qualified residents living on a parcel of land under 10 acres in size to subdivide their property from the half-acre on whch their home stands.

Only those property-owners of 65 years of age or more with a minimum tenure of 15 years would be able to apply for a subdivision permit.

Lazarz said there are more than 200 parcels of land in Central Saanich in the under-10 acre category.

The amendment would not, however, result in a large number of lots becoming available, he explained, because many of the parcels have no homes built on them. "I would estimate we might receive 40 applications over the next five years," said Lazarz.

The necessity for good planning and public access to subdivided land is incorporated in the bylaw amendment.

Central Saanich already has a bylaw under which farmers owning more than 10 acres may subdivide property leaving themselves with a two-acre parcel containing their home. Lazarz emphasized that those who qualified under the farm bylaw would not be able to re-apply for the new subdivision permit.

TORY TALKS

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was to have talks in Washington today with Henry Kissinger, special advisor to President Nixon, just three days after returning from a visit to china.

Stanfield is in Washington to address an evening meeting of the National Press Club. His office announced Tuesday that he has also accepted an invitation to have talks with Kissinger, presumably about his trip to China and his talks with Communist leaders there.

A spokesman for Mr. Stanfield said there may be other meetings with U.S. government officials but no definite arrangements had been made.

Change Of Command

Col. H. C. Pitts will become commander of the Canadian Airborne Regiment at Edmonton on Friday.

Pitts, who recently attended the National Defence College at Kingston, was commanding officer of the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada at Work Point from 1966 to 1968.

He replaces Col. Robert Therriault, who will join the office of the director general land forces, at Canadian forces headquarters in Ottawa.

Three Dog Shows At Weekend

Two Americans, Louis Murr of Spring Valley, N.Y. and Haskell Schuffman of New Castle, Indiana, head a lineup of eight judges for three dog shows at Memorial Arena this weekend.

The shows, Friday through Sunday, are being presented by the Victoria City Kennel Club and 76 breeds will compete for best-in-show each day. There are 263 entries Friday, 349 on Saturday and 309 Sunday. Most of the dogs are competing all three days.

Other judges are Lt.-Cmdr. D. G. Anderson, Virginia Lyne and Mrs. Margaret Robertson of Victoria, Mrs. Seaver Smith of Taunton, Mass., Mrs. Joan Sendall of Surrey and Mrs. Jean Fletcher of Burnaby.

Dog breeds are divided into six groups with best of show being judged from group winners. On Friday and Saturday group judging will begin at 6:30 p.m. Sunday groups winners will be judged at the completion of each group.

Judging begins at 9:30 a.m. Friday and at 9 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

CRITIC TAKES A SECOND LOOK

Justice Weighed, Found Wanting

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Tuesday night I went back for a second look at the Victoria Fair production, Justice Not Revenge, hoping for second thoughts.

It was previewed in April, at which time it struck me as a rather tedious play performed, as far as emotion went, in a marionette style.

Since then it has been to Ottawa as part of the Dominion Drama Festival's Theatre Canada 71, where its visual impact created a sensation, but where the Ottawa Journal critic also noted that "this passionate play was acted without passion."

It now joins the Victoria Fair repertory as the tragic contrast to the comedies, Room Service and A Trip Abroad.

MUCH HUMOR

In point of fact, the contrast isn't all that great. There is considerable humor in Justice, incorporated in the character of Batin, the servant, well played by John Krich.

There is also a good deal of unintended humor — for modern eyes and ears — in certain impurpled speeches and flamboyant moments of melodrama.

Once again, the opening three or four minutes of the production are impressive and prepare one for monumental tragedy in the over-whelming degree of Shakespeare's Lear or Sophocles' Antigone.

SET DESIGN

Robert Cothran's ingenius, soaring and flexible set design contributes much of this impression. The silent, dream-like figures with their half-lit, implacable faces, moving from level to level, enhance the effect.

But this is only a prelude and what follows is mostly a bump down from that gorgeous opening.

A lecherous scene starts the actions. It is self-conscious and quite phoney in effect including the "look-ma, we're mod" baring of the prostitute's bosom.

Second thoughts on the production — at least, altered ones — are few. There is more spontaneity in the speech-making but it is still scarcely more than lip deep.

SOME SURER

Some performances — especially those of Eric Schneider and Harvey Miller — have become surer.

But the avowal of their illicit love between Cassandra (Harriet Allen) and Federico (Schneider) still looks more like a rape than the expression of a grand passion.

He has been less successful in making out of the actors, the gigantic figures of classic tragedy.

They strive for the "grand style" but it constantly slips away and they resort, like Richard Galuppi — unsuitably cast as the Duke who seeks justice, not revenge on his adulterous bride and son — in all the cliches of gesture, violent flinches and swashbuckling exits with swishing cloak.

Singers, Organists Featured Saturdays

Traditionally Christ Church Cathedral has been the scene of much exploration and encouragement in the performing arts.

Performances have ranged from visiting organists of international stature and recitals by prominent local and Vancouver artists, to full dramatic mountings of T. S. Eliot's Murder in the Cathedral, Christopher Frys Boy With a Cart and Gian-Carlo Menotti's Amahl and the Night Visitors.

This summer the cathedral is in the midst of presenting a nine-week series of Saturday afternoon recitals in which singers and organists are being featured.

Successive Saturdays will present also Elinor Bertram with Thomas, the Cathedral Singers in Tudor church music and Cathedral Singers in verse anthems.

Restroom Closure A Problem

Closure of a municipal restroom in the park adjoining Brentwood ferry is posing a problem not only for ferry passengers but local businessmen.

D. R. York of York's-Owen Automotive Service on Verdier Avenue complained to *Central Saanich Council Mon*day that service station facilities are used by as many as 75 persons a day "who do not contribute to our business." Store-owners in the area are also plagued with requests from waiting travellers.

Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health advised council to shut down the park restroom three months ago because sanitary conditions were not being maintained.

Council felt that financial assistance for operation of the facility should come from the B.C. Department of Highways which operates the Brentwood Mill Bay ferry.

Ald. Don MacLaurin cited a similar condition which existed at Saltspring Ferry Terminal until the provincial department installed restrooms.

New Arena Manager Promises Efficiency

LAKE COWICHAN — The Cowichan Lake Sports arena's new manager's main ambition is to operate the facilities "in a business like fashion while trying to keep the community in mind."

Stewart Hollingdrake, 39, said that the success of the arena depends highly on "parent participation and volunteer efforts within the community. From what I have seen we already have this.

HOLLINGDRAKE

Arena commission members filled the position temporarily.

Hollingdrake said he will notice a tremendous change in his duties becuse now, instead of working with a population of 15,000, his contacts will be mainly with the 6,000 residents in the Cowichan Lake area.

"For the past 10 years in Greenfield Park I was in charge of all sports. That meant I managed an arena, swimming pool as well as baseball, football and track fields," he said.

Hollingdrake said he was in charge of 52 minor hockey teams and all other teams connected with the facilities.

"Although it doesn't come under my duties I would like to help out coaching and refereeing minor hockey here," he said.

Hollingdrake, father of four childing ranging in age from nine to two, feels fortunate to have found this position in Lake Cowichan because "I was raised in a small community and I want my children to have the same atmosphere while growing up.

Until hockey season starts at the end of September, Hollingdrake said he will be kept busy organizing the fall schedule to accommodate groups of figure skaters, minor hockey, public skating and curling.

Highway Bid Approved By Board

The provincial treasury board has approved awarding of a contract for construction of 13.2 miles of the North Island Highway from the south end to the north end of Nimpkish Lake.

Total cost allowed is $5.6 million. Lowest of five bidders for the job was Emil Anderson Construction Ltd. of Hope at $4.58 million.

Also approved was awarding of a contract for $7.7 million of work on reconstruction of 5.3 miles of a four-lane highway on the Horseshoe Bay-Taylor Way link in West Vancouver.

A highways department spokesman said contracts will be awarded shortly.

Recreation Supervisor Appointed

Charles Lyons has been appointed supervisor of the Vancouver Island region for the fish and wildlife branch of the Provincial Recreation Department.

Lyons, a native of Penticton, has been regional fisheries biologist for the Vancouver Island region for the past five years.

Regional headquarters are at Nanaimo.

TO OFFSET TOURISM COSTS

Hotel Room Tax May Be Imposed in London

London may impose a room tax on hotels to offset the costs of tourism, the head of the Greater London Council Sir Desmond Plummer, said Tuesday.

"I feel we should impose a room tax as soon as possible. We estimate that by 1981 one in seven people in London will be a tourist," he said.

"This means on any given day there will be over one million tourists in London. They are welcome, but they create many problems."

In Victoria for a holiday after attending the World Congress of the International Union of Local Authorities, Plummer said the heavy demand for service workers was reflected in a demand for low-rental housing.

The seasonal nature of employment created a welfare problem in the slack season.

"In the light of these facts, we feel the tourist should help pay for the services he needs and the demands he creates," he said.

Plummer also said sea trout have returned to the once-filthy River Thames, three times the number of species of birds are in London compared with 10 years ago and the infamous smog has gone.

"Londoners now enjoy 70 per cent more winter sunshine than they did 10 years ago and the trees and shrubs are prospering," he said.

He attributed the environmental improvement to tough anti-pollution laws which are enforced. Homeowners are not allowed ot burn smoke-producing fuels and industry is strictly controlled.

Man Charged After Fight

CHEMAINUS — Following a fight aboard a Norwegian freighter in Crofton Tuesday, one man is in serious condition in a Victoria hospital while a second has been charged with assault causing bodily harm.

Chemainus RCMP said the two sailors got into an argument while painting aboard their ship the M.S. Malmanger. "The result of the fight is that one man hit the other on the head with an iron bar."

The spokesman said the injured man, Jose Rios Esteves, 29, of Spain, was taken to the Jubilee Hospital suffering from skull fracture.

Jami Ali Hassan, 29, of Africa, has been charged with assault causing bodily harm and was remanded without plea until Aug. 11 in Chemainus court this morning.

Girls, Foods, Dances At Songhees Festival

Beautiful girls, mouth-watering barbecues and Indian dancing will be among the feature attractions this weekend when the Songhees Day Indian Festival gets under way for the first time in 10 years.

The celebration starts Saturday at Maple Bank Park in Esquimalt, with the official opening of the boat ramp and Chief John Albany welcoming the public.

* * *

There'll be trench-barbecued salmon, clam chowder made on the spot and corn-on-the-cob.

Field sports from 1:30 to 3 p.m. for both children and adults will lead up to the Miss Songhees Pageant.

There are 10 candidates for the major role and seven who will compete to be one of her two princesses.

No festival would be complete without dancing and many of the Songhees' friends on the Island will join them in the program slated to last from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

First will come the Songhees' welcome dance. In succession will follow dances by Nanaimo Indians led by Jimmy John, Hesquiahts led by Alec Amos, the Cowichan Khowutzuns led by Ronnie George and the Chief Hummingbird group from West Saanich led by Thomas Park.

Sunday's events, which begin with a tug-of-war and field sports at 1:30 p.m., will also include dancing from 2:30 to 3:30.

Then the spotlight will be switched to offshore where various canoe events will be held.

* * *

First will be men and women crews competing in double paddle canoes, then races with two-men crews and a single marathon.

Eleven-women crews will compete in an all-paddle race while male canoists will dip paddles in a similar race for the Songhees Cup, donated by the Greater Victoria Centennial 71 Committee.

As on Saturday, there will be generous supplies of salmon, clam chowder and corn.

The festival has been arranged by the Songhees Band Council and the Songhees Recreation Commission.

SAN DIEGO — life is even worse than usual at the San Diego Country jail — thanks to a new computer. The immediate results were overcrowding due to booking delays — as many as 75 persons jammed into a 12 by 20 holding cell during the weekend — and long waits for release. Persons arrested on simple drunk or disorderly charges found themselves held twice as long as suspects on similar charges before the computer. "When the computer stops, I don't care what anybody tells you, you just can't make it start again," lamented jail commander Clifford Powell.

NEW YORK — Edwin J. Kelly, working overseas telephone lines, acted calmly when a New Jersey girl threatened suicide afer her call to a boyfriend in Bogota, Colombia, went unanswered. Kelly talked to the 17-year-old Long Branch, N.J., girl while a co-worker notified police of the suicide threat.

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother, turned 71 today. The king's troop, Royal Horse Artillery, fired a 41-gun salute at noon in Hyde Park to mark the event. The Queen Mother spent the day at her London home, Clarence House.

BOSTON — A Revere, Mass., man was fined $1,605 in Boston municipal court for parking tickets in 1970 and 1971, reportedly the largest fine ever handed out in the court for parking violations. Robert M. Buccozzo, who said he worked as a bank messenger, had 99 defaulted tags and 53 defaulted summonses.

NORTH VANCOUVER — Twelve municipal employees who refused a district council order to evict 27 squatters from mud flats on the Burrard Inlet north shore will not be fired, an alderman said.

District Alderman Pat Slattey said the 12 — mostly long-haired young men employed as gardeners — would not be subject to any disciplinary action. He said the group was "merely concerned about the order and as far as I can determine, they did not actually refuse the order."

LAS VEGAS — Singer Perry Como was in satisfactory condition in hospital Tuesday recovering from a kidney stone ailment, a hospital spokesman said. The hotel said Como was not expected to return before his engagement ends Aug. 8. Comedian Bill Cosby was called in to take over for Como.

MADISON, Wis. — Singer Tom Jones was named defendant in a $60,000 battery suit filed in Dane County Circuit Court Tuesday. The complaint was filed by a lawyer for Michael Maret, who described himself as a professional boxer from Miami Beach, Fla. Maret claims he was struck by Jones when he sought to enter a hotel room occupied by the singer, who was in Madison for an appearance June 7.

Loffmark, Hitler Compared

KELOWNA (CP) — The British Columbia government was accused Tuesday of being undemocratic.

The criticism came from one of its own MLAs, Dr. G. Scott Wallace, who represents Oak Bay.

He spoke to members of the Rotary Club of Kelowna on the continuing fight between doctors and Health Minister Ralph Loffmark over last week's government order giving Loffmark sole authority for deciding what doctors work in what hospitals.

"The government does not know the meaning of democratic," said the physician and surgeon, on vacation here.

Loffmark's action "reminds me of Hitler."

Wallace also accused the cabinet of keeping out of touch with private members and backbenchers between sessions. They "might as well be in Timbuctoo."

APPALLED

"I am always appalled when governments take power unto themselves."

He said B.C. has a high standard of medical care, and there is no real shortage of doctors in some communities, as the government has maintained. Any problems that did exist could have been corrected without "widespread blunderbuss legislation."

When B.C. doctors urged that medical care be started a few years ago, they were accused of watching their own pocketbooks. What they wanted, and still want, is to be free of political control, he said.

DETECTIVES EXAMINE HASHISH HAUL

Hashish Cache Found In Boys' Camp Site

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Tuesday that 350 pounds of hashish, the largest haul of the drug ever found in Canada, have been discovered buried on the grounds of a boys' camp 10 miles north of here.

Insp. Wallace Harkness of the York regional police, said the hashish would be worth about $2.5 million if sold on the streets by the ounce.

He said the hashish was dug up Monday night by an elderly couple who lease the camp after they became suspicious when they saw some men digging in the camp grounds.

He said the couple uncovered several plastic bags about seven feet underground.

Police said the previous largest seizure of hashish in Canada was made July 13 when customs officials seized 210 pounds in two wooden crates and a suitcase in the freight office of Air France at Montreal International Airport.

After Warning A 'Plane Crash'

MONTREAL (CP) — After warning passengers of a bomb threat, the crew of a BOAC 747 jumbo jet started the entertainment — a movie opening with a plane-crash scene.

Montreal Star reporter Susan Altschul was on the airliner and filed a first-person report to her newspaper from Denver, Colo., where the jet set down.

The reporter, who admits frankly she was "scared," says dinner was served while the movie was shown during the plane's trip west.

"I didn't eat dinner — a fine time to keep a diet — but I watched the movie.

The plane, originally bound for London with 378 passengers and crew aboard, was diverted to Denver so it could set down at that city's airport, 5,280 feet above sea level.

The hoax bomb threat said explosive device would go off when the plane lost altitude for landing.

Visit Opposed

LONDON (Reuter) — Some British ex-prisoners of war of the Japanese expressed opposition Tuesday to the October visit to London of Emperor Hirohito. Jack Halls, chairman of an 80-member Far East Prisoner-of-War Association, men who were prisoners in Burma and Thailand during the Second World War, said: "I am very opposed to the visit and so are many of our members."

Britain's Inshore Fishermen Fear ECM Invasion

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — Around Britain's ragged coast, the fishermen are up in arms over fears that they are going to get a poor deal in the final settlement for British entry into the European Common Market.

The inshore commercial fishermen, who scratch a living in small boats close to the shoreline, are afraid that their livelihood will be threatened by an invasion from the continent.

It's all right for the government to think big about expanding markets for industrial products and jacking up the standard of living here, they say, but what about the little fellow who might have an armada of foreign boats scooping up shellfish and groundfish right up to high water mark on our shores?

They do not get much consolation from a Conservative government white paper on the Common Market entry, which takes care of such problems as New Zealand butter but leaves the British fisherfolk scratching their heads about their future.

Partly this is because British negotiators, anxious to get tied up with Europe, have let the future of the fishermen dangle while they clinched bigger deals.

AFFECTS 20,000

The so-called inshore fishermen affected are those who use vessels of 80-foot length or less. There are about 5,200 of these boats and 20,000 crew members manning them.

Last year their catch amounted to 4.6 million pounds in herring, seven million pounds in shellfish and 18 million pounds in whitefish such as cod, haddock and other groundfish taken by trawl. This is close to half of Britain's total catch—more coming from the deep-sea fishery not particularly affected by Market entry.

What the inshore fishers gripe about is the way—they think—that the British government has not been firm enough in resisting the continental idea that all Common Market countries should have common access to the fishing grounds of every other country.

The British boatmen say such a policy would leave them holding the bag, with nothing to gain and everything to lose.

At the moment the issue is hanging fire. Statements from the British government and Common Market officials leave it sidetracked at least until the fall with considerable fog surrounding the eventual outcome.

CAN'T BE EXCLUSIVE

Whatever it is, there is no question of home fishermen getting exclusive access to their own waters within a 12-mile limit as they have done since a Conservative government drew up shore-fishing boundaries in 1964.

Negotiations in Brussels over several months have revolved around cutting this down to six miles, three miles or possibly—as the British would like—within lines drawn between headlands inside which boats from British communities that have fished particular waters would have exclusive rights.

Chief British negotiator Geoffrey Rippon told the Commons recently he is hopeful of getting a six-mile limit. Many figure this is not feasible, especially as continental countries would like to get free access to British waters.

In return for this, the British would have the same access to continental waters, which interests no one in the commercial fishery here.

British coastal waters are rich in fish compared with those across the Channel and North Sea.

One British writer puts it this way:

"To the fishermen, to be asked to give up sole rights to a thriving business on their own doorsteps in return for the dubious privilege of catching a few tiddlers (minnows) in Europe, stinks."

British fishermen consider that the coastal waters surrounding the present Common Market countries are virtually fished out, so that reciprocal access would be an empty concession.

Common Market officials talk of protecting local fisheries under a tentative clause banning outside vessels where their activities would be "detrimental to the economic health of the local community." But the fear in Britain—notably among Scottish fishermen—is that by the time they were able to prove "detriment" in the councils of Europe, their waters also might be cleaned out of fish in commercial quantities.

Israel Said To Get U.S. Jets

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times says the Nixon administration is weighing a plan to modernize the Israeli air force by selling it about 110 combat jets during the next three or four years.

The Times says well-placed officials stressed that the principal consideration is political—whether to move to a long-range U.S. arms commitment rather than periodic decisions to supply planes.

In the story from its Washington bureau, the newspaper says that the officials said much depends on the findings of Assistant State Secretary Joseph J. Sisco, who is trying to persuade Israel to relax its conditions for reopening of the Suez canal.

The plan grew out of an Israeli request for an even larger number of planes to offset the continuing flow of Soviet jets to Egypt, The Times says.

Military analysts suggested that Israel could maintain a strong defensive capability if about 110 obsolete Ouragan, Vatour and Magister aircraft were replaced with modern F-4 Phantoms and A-4 Skyhawk fighter-bombers, The Times says.

Poet Starts New Venture In Publishing

LONDON (CP) — Canadian poet and folk-singer Leonard Cohen has formed a new publishing company with British pop music magnate Tony Stratton-Smith, head of Charisma Records and other companies.

The first book that the new company, Charisma Books, plans to publish is a selection of works by Canadian poet Irving Layton early next year.

"Layton is one of the most moving poets I've ever read," said Stratton-Smith in an interview. "I find it appalling that he has no theen published yet outside Canada."

Charisma Books, formed in June, "resulted from an idea that Leonard Cohen and I had at a dinner party," Stratton-Smith said.

"As partners in the firm, we plan to cater for only a few writers of quality who have been unable to get their manuscripts into print."

Stratton-Smith, who met Montrealers Cohen at a pop festival in France last year, said he will "make as much money available as it takes to make the company a success."

Charisma Books will be distributed in Britain only.

New Hair, New Outlook

TORONTO (CP) — A 33-year-old man, tense and withdrawn because of his bald head, has become easy-going and personable since undergoing a hair transplant which gave him a full head of hair.

Dr. Walter Unger of Toronto, who has performed hair transplants on 17 patients, said the man was clashing constantly with his fellow workers about the way he wore his hair to try and hide his baldness.

The doctor removed 525 tiny plugs of hair from the fringe on the side of the man's head and implanted them on the top of his head.

"His entire personality has changed since his baldness was corrected," Dr. Unger said in an article in the current edition of the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

He said the new hair begins to grow in the transplanted plugs 10 to 14 weeks after the operation.

One in 10 men winds up with a head of hair which looks perfectly normal, the doctor said. The others have "thinning" hair, but are far from bald.

'MAN AN ANIMAL' RULING FREES GIRL

OCEAN CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Dianne Doerpinghaus, 18, Greensboro, N.C., was found innocent of charges of carrying her 10-week-old kitten "April Katsup" on the boardwalk of this resort town.

The court clerk read the ordinance to her; "It is unlawful for any dog or other animal to be on any portion of the boardwalk at any time."

Miss Doerpinghaus protested; "Man is an animal too."

The judge pondered the statement for a moment, declared the girl and April Katsup not guilty and ordered the $25 in bail the girl posted returned.

Two-China Idea A Clumsy Trick, Claims Peking

Times News Services

China today described the United States' decision to support Peking's membership in the United Nations as a "clumsy 'two-Chinas' trick."

And in Washington President Nixon cautioned against hopes that his talks with the Chinese leaders will lead to an immediate end to the Vietnam war.

The New China News Agency issued its first comment on the announcement Monday that the U.S. would support seating of Peking at the UN "but not at the expense of Nationalist China." It was the United States continued support for the Nationalists that evoked the sharp criticism rom Peking.

'ILLEGAL, FUTILE'

"The clumsy 'two Chinas' trick played by U.S. imperialism is absolutely illegal and futile," the NCNA article said. "We are deeply convinced that the justice-upholding countries and people of the world will never allow anyone under the signboard of 'two Chinas' to continue to . . . obstruct the restoration to the People's Republic of China of her legitimate seat in the United Nations."

Nixon at a news conference, said when he meets Chinese leaders every "hard problem" facing the two countries and the world will be subject to discussion.

Speaking to reporters crowded around his desk, Nixon described China as "potentially the most powerful nation in the world." He said "there cannot be world peace unless there is communication" between China and the United States.

There are "no conditions" and "no deals" with the Communist Chinese about the subjects of discussion.

"We will discuss any point of difference that might affect the peace of the world," he said.

Nixon also made these points:

WON'T VISIT MOSCOW

- He stands by his prediction that 1971 will be "a good year" for the U.S. economy and that 1972 will be "a very good year."
- The United States will maintain a policy of "complete neutrality" regarding the forthcoming elections in South Vietnam.
- The United States will boost its help for the victims of famine in East Pakistan but will not cut off its aid to the Pakistani government.

MAJOR TOPICS

- The president's planned trip to Peking and the state of the economy were the major topics at the news session. Nixon said a "small working party" consisting of State Secretary William P. Rogers and Henry A. Kissinger, a close adviser, will accompany him.

In the United Nations the U.S. worked behind the scenes to line up support for resolutions that would invite the Communists to join and at the same time prevent the expulsion of Taiwan.

ASK SPONSORS

Cabinet Takes Second Look At Health Rules

Premier Bennett announced today the provincial government is going to discuss possible "improvements" in recent orders-in-council which have angered the medical profession.

Bennett said Provincial Secretary Wesley Black and Health Minister Ralph Loffmark will head separate committees to discuss the orders-in-council with the medical profession.

The orders gave Black's department the power to license medical laboratories and Loffmark the power to decide whether doctors get hospital privileges.

Bennett said the orders, which are still in effect, had served the purpose of bringing "forcibly to the attention of the parties involved" the government's aim to have the "great reforms" of medicare and hospital insurance programs continued in B.C.

Smallwood Greets Trudeau

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Striking fish plant workers and electricians were among the crowd greeting Prime Minister Trudeau when he arrived here today.

The placard-waving workers represented members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Newfoundland Fishermen, Food and Allied Workers.

Both unions have been on strike about two months in jurisdictional disputes, the IBEW against the Newfoundland and Labrador Construction Association and the fishermen against Burgeo Fisheries Ltd.

Mr. Trudeau, clad in a pink sport shirt and blue slacks, shook hands and spoke with several people as he made his way into the arts and culture centre in the north end of the city where he was greeted by Premier Joseph Smallwood.

The prime minister arrived at 1 p.m., a half-hour late following a 117-mile trip by automobile from Swift Current, where he and Mrs. Trudeau spent the night at Transport Minister Don Jamieson's summer estate.

The prime minister and Mr. Smallwood were to have a private luncheon at the centre and a news conference was scheduled after the luncheon.

High winds postponed the annual St. John's Regatta on Quidi Vidi Lake in the city's east end. The prime minister had been scheduled to spend a couple of hours at the regatta.

Longshore Strike Feels Cool Breeze

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Progress in local bargaining at four ports has brought the first sign of movement in the month long U.S. West Coast longshoremen's strike.

Edwin W. Scott, regional director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, said Tuesday a meeting of three western governors on the strike was postponed because of progress in talks on work rules and jurisdiction in Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

"Getting these matters out of the way will give both sides the opportunity to meet on the big picture, the main issues, of a coastside contract," said Scott.

Governors of California, Washington and Oregon were set to talk with union and management here today until J. Curtis Counts, director of the mediation service in Washington, D.C., postponed their meeting indefinitely.

Counts' office declined to say whether the walkout of 15,000 dock workers might end soon at 24 West Coast ports.

PAKISTANIS SEEK U.S. ASYLUM

14 Embassy Staff Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen members of the Pakistan embassy here, including seven senior diplomatic officers, resigned today, pledging loyalty to the Bangla Desh independence movement in East Pakistan and asking for political asylum in the United States.

The resignations included one ranking minister, three counsellors, one second secretary, one third secretary and the deputy permanent representative of the Pakistan mission to the United Nations.

"This is our moment of decision," said Sayyed A. Karim, the No. 2 Pakistan representative at the UN. "We have decided to join the suffering millions of Bangla Desh who are resisting with their lives the barbarity of the West Pakistan army who are determined to reduce East Pakistan to a colony."

Karim declared that the Pakistan government "now is a military junta of West Pakistanis desperate to retain its stranglehold over the country.

"It has nullified the results of a free and fair election held under its own auspices only seven months back. It has chosen to mute the majority of the people by the most savage application of brute force.

"It's authority rests totally on its military strength and its control is limited by the range of its artillery. It has therefore lost all pretences to legitimacy of power and it has destroyed the Pakistani nation."

Greece, Pakistan May Lose Aid

WASHINGTON (Reuter) The House of Representatives has called for the suspension of United States foreign aid to the Greek and Pakistan military governments.

The House approved Tuesday night by only eight votes a two-year U.S. foreign aid authorization bill containing provisions suspending economic and military aid to the two countries.

Informed congressional sources said the administration decided not to oppose openly the provisions to avoid possible defeat of its entire foreign aid bill.

However House Republican Leader Gerald Ford said President Nixon will use an "escape clause" to allow provision of aid to Greece, a NATO ally, in the security interests of the United States.

The narrowness of Tuesday night's vote — 208 to 182 — made it clear the foreign aid bill would have been defeated by a combination of conservatives opposed to aid in general and liberal critics of the Greek and Pakistan governments had the administration tried to delete the suspensions.

The administration, which is walking a diplomatic tightrope with both Greece and Pakistan, as well as Congress, thus gained House approval of the bill providing $3.44 billion for the current fiscal year which began July 1, and $3.49 billion for fiscal 1973.

Israel Said Conceding

JERUSALEM (AP) — Newspapers here say Israel is ready to pull troops back 25 miles from the Suez canal as part of an agreement to reopen the waterway but still will not permit Egyptian soldiers to replace the Israelis on the eastern bank.

The reports say Premier Golda Meir will give this decision to U.S. Assistant State Secretary Joseph Sisco today at their third meeting since Sisco arrived last week.

The newspaper Davar says Sisco relayed an Egyptian proposal for several hundred Egyptian soldiers to cross the canal following the Israeli evacuation. But the report says Mrs. Meir, after consulting her cabinet, decided to reject the proposal.

RUSSIA-U.S. REACH ACCORD

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Russia have completed a new draft treaty banning all biological weapons, western disarmament officials said today.

It is planned to present the treaty to the 35-nation disarmament conference Thursday, the officials said.

American and Soviet negotiators hope the rest of the conference participants will approve the draft so that it can be sent to the United Nations General Assembly in October, they said.

French Move Sends Gold Prices Flying

Dollar Weak, U.K. Market Hit Hard

LONDON (UPI) — New French currency regulations notified to Paris banks sparked a sudden foreign currency storm today, sent the gold price soaring and helped send the British stock market sharply lower.

The U.S. dollar was weak in most European centres, market sources said. The Canadian dollar retained stability.

Foreign exchange dealers stopped quoting rates for a short while in already jittery markets while hoping to clarify the situation. Some dealers later limited themselves to handling French francs only for immediate commercial transactions. Uncertainty gripped markets and produced erratic rate movements in later trading.

Rumors from Zurich hit the market to the effect that Swiss banks had suspended all Swiss franc-dollar dealings. But it was reported from Switzerland that only a few local banks pulled out.

A spokesman for one of the big three banks said they were still trading dollars and Swiss francs, but on a more limited scale than usual.

NORMAL ENOUGH

A London dealer said the session opened normally enough but markets plunged into confusion by noon when interpretations of the French banking circular flowed in.

By the afternoon some banks in London said they still were not entirely clear about the true meaning and impact of the new French money rules.

In some quarters the French move was construed as underlining French doubts about the health of the U.S. dollar. Others felt it was intended to kill speculation about an upward revaluation of the French franc.

Another rumor roaming markets was that France had started a two-tier foreign exchange system which French officials later denied.

HIGHLY NERVOUS

One dealer said today exchange markets had been highly nervous since the West German mark broke away from its fixed rate against the dollar in May and was permitted to "float" in response to bank and market pressures.

The Swiss franc was then also up-valued along with the Austrian schilling, and the Dutch guilder also "floated".

The dollar has been suspect in Europe's markets for weeks and gossip of devaluation grew with the heavy flow of dismal economic news from the United States.

This distrust was partly mirrored in the recent speculative upsurge in the price of free market gold and the rush to sell dollars and buy West German marks, Swiss francs,

BABY SATELLITE HANGS AROUND MOON

Times News Services

A small satellite was to be ejected by the Apollo 15 astronauts this afternoon as they prepared to head home after almost six days of moon exploration. See story on Page 3.

Also on the agenda is man's farthest-out space walk. Alfred Worden will take the space walk Thursday to retrieve film canisters from a rear equipment bay.

The satellite will be rolled out on rails from the equipment bay and released by spring ejection into an orbit about 70 miles above the moon.

Canada, U.S.S.R. Agree On Arctic Research

MOSCOW (Reuter)—Agreement on establishing a Canadian-Soviet group on Arctic research was annouced today by Jean Chretien, Canada's northern development minister.

Speaking at the end of a 10,000-mile visit to Siberia, Chretien said Russian officials have also raised the possibility of future Canadian-Soviet Arctic expeditions.

Chretien is heading the first official Canadian delegation to the Soviet Union since Prime Minister Trudeau's Moscow visit last May to sign a Canadian-Soviet protocol on consultations.

After his Siberian trip, which included a night in a tent on the tundra wastes eating raw fish and drinking vodka with Chukchi tribesmen, Chretien told reporters Canada can learn from Soviet development of gas pipelines and hydroelectric dams built on permafrost, a permanently frozen layer of soil.

Canada and Russia agreed during a visit here last January by Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin to set up joint working groups to co-operate in the fields of forest-based industry, non-ferrous metals, electrical power and oil.

URGES SPEED

Noting this agreement in a statement published today Chretien said: "I hope that co-operation in the fields of hydroelectric dam construction on permafrost, building construction in the far north and gas pipeline construction on permafrost will move forward quickly in this manner."

He also held out prospects of co-operation in cultural development, special education for northern peoples, natural resource development, northern science research and northern transportation.

He said Canada will start work on a Soviet request for Canada to supply a small group of muskox as a base for re-establishing the species in the Soviet Union.

Much of Chretien's Siberian journey was spent in the vast developing region called Yakutia. In his statement, he described how he saw hydroelectric developments, mining, natural gas, forest industry, fishing and reindeer herding.

He particularly noted the intensive development of river and air transportation in some areas where there are still not roads.

PENNY MAY LEADING

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Penny May of Victoria led the 13 contestants in the Pan-American Games pentathlon after two events today with favored Debbie Van Kiekebelt of Missisauga, Ont., in third place.

Miss May, who won a third-place bronze medal in the 100-metre hurdles Sunday, compiled 1,627 points by recording the second-best time in the hurdles, 14 seconds flat, and leading the field in the shot put with a throw of 41 feet 7½ inches.

Marlen Elejalde of Cuba, whose 13.7 was the best time in the hurdles, had 1,561 points to 1,545 for Miss Van Kiekebelt, who ran the hurdles in 14.5 and heaved the shot 40 feet 6½ inches second only to Miss May's effort.

Japan Upset Over 'Agent'

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan lodged an official protest with the Soviet Union today after police arrested a Japanese on suspicion of passing confidential documents on United States military bases here to a Soviet diplomat in Tokyo.

PETITIONS SUPREME COURT IN SAIGON

Ky Running to Climb on Presidential Bandwagon

SAIGON (CP) — Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky petitioned the Supreme Court today for a place on the Oct. 3 presidential ballot, but his petitions lacked 38 of the 100 necessary certified endorsements by provincial councilmen.

"I have not given up," Ky told a news conference. "I am still fighting."

If the court rejects his petitions, Ky said, "then we will see what happens."

He conceded that his petition was partly an appeal to public opinion, and his aides acknowledged that they do not expect the court to accept his candidacy. His application was temporarily accepted by the court pending a final decision.

Ky circulated a list of 102 councilmen he said had signed for him, but he said 40 of them had been forced to endorse Thieu earlier. He asked the court to award these to him. He charges that Thieu used pressure to collect signatures which he did not need and at the same time prevent province chiefs and mayors from certifying endorsements given to Ky.

Ky accused Thieu of using his power to abuse the law and his money to monopolize the election.

He said the election has become a fraud and is beneath contempt.

"There seems to be no limitation to the dishonest schemes in this election," Ky said.

"President Thieu has used his power to abuse the law and his money to monopolize the election," the vice-president said.

He said he deems it his duty to alert people to the dangers of a dishonest election.

Flanked by his proposed vice-presidential running mate, Truong Vinh Le, Ky said the Thieu administration has used terror and intimidation against provincial councillors to force them not to endorse his application.

Premiers to Discuss Health, Tax Problems

Premiers of most Canadian provinces were to arrive in Victoria today for the 12th annual conference of premiers opening at 10 a.m. Thursday in the legislative chamber.

Held here in honor of the centennial of British Columbia's entry into confederation the meeting will discuss matters of common interest to the provinces including the state of the Canadian economy.

Premier Robert Bourassa of Quebec said he may take advantage of the meeting to hold private conversations with some premiers about the constitution.

But Premier Bennett said the Victoria charter, the constitutional agreement rejected by Quebec following the constitutional conference here in June, won't be on the agenda.

Of the 10 Canadian premiers, the only one not putting in an appearance will be Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland who hasn't attended a premiers' conference for the past 10 years.

One of the new faces will be Premier Allan Blakeney, who recently led his New Democratic Party to victory in Saskatchewan. An adjournment tonight of a special session of the provincial legislature will allow him to attend.

Blakeney, who will be accompanied by Attorney-General Roy Romanow, said he hopes the conference agenda will include discussion of the problems of controlling health costs and increased provincial co-operation on agricultural matters.

One of the major issues to be pursued by Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba will be the implications of the proposed federal withdrawal from the estate tax field.

Unless there is some uniformity in the provinces' reaction to such federal measures, Ottawa's decision on estate taxes "will compound the tax jungle," he said.

The Manitoba premier, who will be accompanied by Finance Minister Saul Cherniack and Mines Minister Sidney Green, agreed with Blakeney that rising costs of medical care as well as hospital insurance programs should be discussed.

HAS TAX BEEFS

Further objections to the federal tax structure are also expected to be raised by Ontario Premier William Davis. Ontario estimates, for example, that Ottawa's abandonment of death duties will cost the province $28 to $30 million a year and that it will be several years before a capital gains tax compensates for the loss.

Premier Harry Strom will attend the conference despite the pressures of his election campaign. The Alberta general election is Aug. 30.

No special points for discussion have been raised by the Maritime premiers — Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick, Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia and Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island.

The first session of the conference begins at 10 a.m., shortly after an official greeting of the first ministers by Premier Bennett on the steps of the legislature.

All the sessions will be closed and there will be no opening statements or final communique.

Apollo Ready To Head Home

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 15 astronauts neared the end of six days of moon exploration today and prepared to fire out of lunar orbit and man's farthest-out space walk.

David R. Scott, James B. Irwin and Alfred M. Worden will complete the experiments when they kick the satellite loose at 4:10 p.m. EDT.

At 5:20 p.m. they plan to start the engine of Endeavour to break away from lunar gravity and start the three-day journey back home.

SURVEYED BASE

"Looks like Boot Hill from a distance," one controller said. The instruments in the distance looked like tombstones.

After 14 minutes, the camera suddenly ceased transmitting. Efforts to restart it failed. Experts had no immediate explanation for the loss. Its batteries may have given out.

Worden will take the space walk Thursday—about 196,000 miles from earth and more than 40,000 miles from the moon—to retrieve film canisters from an equipment bay at the rear of the Endeavour.

Because the hatch will be opened, all three men will be exposed to the vacuum of space and will wear pressurized suits.

ADVISED TO EAT

Mission Control, aware that the astronauts could be tired Thursday after 10 days in space, advised them to "continue eating and drinking well because of the EVA (extra-vehicular activity) yet to come."

"I think we've consumed every meal as planned and we've made a pretty good cut into the pantry," Scott reported. "We've been eating and drinking a lot up here."

Astronauts traditionally have been reluctant to take medicine on space flights and Scott replied a bit testily: "No, there's been no medication taken by anybody on the flight."

Parker: "OK. However, we down here would like to recommend for all three of you to take one tonight just to make sure we get another good night's sleep."

Scott: "I think that's unnecessary."

Parker: "Well, that's our recommendation anyway."

Since Scott and Irwin completed man's most productive exploration on the surface of the moon Monday, the three astronauts have been in moon orbit operating a $17-million array of cameras and scientific instruments, chemically and photographically charting nearly 20 per cent of the lunar surface.

WEIGHS 78 POUNDS

The satellite is in the same equipment bay with the experiments. Rolled out on rails, it will be released by spring ejection into an orbit about 70 miles above the moon. It is 31 inches long and weighs 78.5 pounds.

Ground trackers hope to receive data from the payload for a year or more on the precise shape of the moon and on gravity, magnetic and electric fields.

Already relaying data is a $25-million nuclear-powered science station which Scott and Irwin deployed at Hadley Base near the moon's Apennine Mountains. Scientists reported they are receiving excellent signals on such phenomena as the lunar atmosphere, subsurface disturbances, radiation and the solar wind.

During three days on the moon, the explorers were outside the landing craft Falcon for nearly 19 hours, doubling the amount of time men spent on the moon in three previous landings, and travelling 17 miles in a motor car called Rover.

Commander Scott reported Tuesday they were bringing home between 175 and 180 pounds of rock and soil samples, enough to keep lunar geologists busy for years. Earlier, Mission Control estimated 230 pounds, but this included the weight of the containers.

Would-Be Terrorist Charged

OTTAWA (CP) — A 35-year-old transient has been charged with attempting to extort $250,000 from Canadian Forces headquarters by threatening the armed forces with automatic weapons and explosives.

Robert Charles Davidson was remanded for mental examination after he appeared in court Wednesday.

His arrest followed an anonymous telephone call to Canadian Forces headquarters. The caller claimed possession of 900 automatic weapons and explosives and threatened to "turn the weapons against" military headquarters personnel within 24 hours if his demand for $250,000 was not met.

He said he would call again in one hour for their answer.

Authorities traced the call to a phone booth in the lobby of the Belle Claire Hotel and staked out the lobby. An hour later Davidson was arrested.

The anonymous call was received in the military communications centre, the scene of a terrorist bomb explosion last year which killed a civilian employee.

T-Fire Drains Effort

Vancouver Island is free of forest fires but the giant T-shaped blaze 125 miles north of Fort Nelson has blazed across 250,000 acres, forest officials said today.

"The T-fire is draining so much effort we hardly have enough men or equipment to fight the others," a spokesman said.

The fire is spreading northeasterly away from prime timber and into an area largely covered by scrub pine. But the direction change brought the blaze to within a few miles of another fire started by lightning Monday. Forestry officials fear the two fires will meet and spread further.

On the west coast of Vancouver Island rain has improved conditions for logging and some companies are considering returning to an eight-hour work day.

In the past few weeks, loggers have been working on an early shift, between 4 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Subversive Panel Duties Expanded

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Nixon's expansion of the duties of the Subversive Activities Control Board won final U.S. congressional approval Tuesday night, squeaking past the Senate by a two-vote margin.

The Senate's 46-44 vote enables the nearly dormant SACB to become a hearing board on groups that Attorney General John Mitchell believes should be officially designed as subversive.

President Nixon, by executive order July 2, transferred to SACB the hearing function on subversive groups in an effort to revitalize the attorney-general's subversive list, which hasn't been updated since 1955.

The Senate cleared the way for the president's executive order to be implemented. It accepted a conference report on appropriations for the state, justice and commerce departments without a prohibition against SACB spending any of its $450,000 budget on new duties.

The House had passed the report, without any limitation on SACB funds, Monday.

Leading the fight to reject the report, Sen. Sam Ervin (D-N.C.) charged that the executive order was an attempt by Nixon to usurp Congress's legislative function and that it represented a return to McCarthyism.

'Political Action'

TORONTO (CP) — John F. Bulloch, who organized a citizens' group to fight for changes in government tax legislation proposals, announced today formation of a "political action" organization called the Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

Mr. Bulloch said the federation will attempt to influence political decisions on national issues but will not be affiliated with a political party or endorse political candidates.

The majority opinion of the members of the organization will be expressed through a polling procedure that he called the "mandate program." The program will involve mailing ballots to members to solicit opinions.

Mr. Bulloch formed the Canadian Council for Fair Taxation after release of a federal white paper on taxation—the basis for tax legislation introduced in June when the federal budget was brought down.

Mr. Bulloch said in an interview the council will continue in existence but will be less active. He said membership is about 10,000.

Another Operation

CAPE TOWN (Reuter) — The world's longest survivor of a heart-lung transplant, Adrian Herbert, has undergone a three-hour operation to repair a graft of one of the transplanted organs, said reports from South Africa's Groote Schuur Hospital today.

Hospital sources said today doctors discovered Tuesday that a rupture in the joint of the 49-year-old dental mechanic's windpipe was allowing air into the chest cavity, which could be fatal.

Peterson Wants End to Parole For Traffickers

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson has asked the federal government for a crackdown on drug trafficking.

"In my view the pusher is the worst criminal in our country," Peterson said in a telegram to federal Justice Minister John Turner.

He called for an end to parole and remission of sentences for convicted drug traffickers.

"It is shocking where a sentence of six years is given on a criminal charge and the parole board releases the person in 18 months," Peterson said in the telegram.

* * *

(Peterson's office indicated later the case in question did not involve a drug trafficker but a bank teller who was convicted of stealing $494,000.)

In the telegram Peterson said he is "running into more and more problems in connection with drugs which, in practice, have been accepted as a federal responsibility."

* * *

He said heroin and other hard drugs are being used more extensively by younger people now than ever before.

Parole and remission of sentences should be banned for drug traffickers "to emphasize the seriousness with which we all treat trafficking," Peterson said.

A copy of the telegram was sent to Solicitor-General Jean Pierre Goyer, who is responsible for the National Parole Board.

Dominion

Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. reports unaudited net earnings of $2.75 million or $1.06 per share for the first six months of 1971, compared with $2.42 million (93 cents) for the period last year.

The company said improved earnings stemmed mainly from inclusion of sales of the Varco-Pruden division of Dombrico Inc. for the first time.

Wometco

A communications subsidiary has been formed by Wometco Enterprises Inc. to invest in, develop and manage Community Antenna Television systems in the U.S.

Wometco Communications Inc. has completed a transaction with all State Cablevision Inc., which operates a CATV system in East Brunswick, NJ., and holds franchises in three other New Jersy communities. Wometco will advance All State development funds and get warrants to buy up to 80 per cent of the firm's stock.

Gr. Lakes

A 32.5 per cent decline in net earnings is reported by Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd. for the first half, or $1.3 million (36 cents a share) vs. $1.9 million (54 cents). Dollar exchange cost $770,000.

Sales amounted to $40.1 million, up 4.6 per cent from $38.4 million, setting a six-month record, due mainly to pulp and newsprint price improvement.

Big Saving Ahead In Consolidation

Consolidation of its non-operating companies will lead the way to new development and money-saving control for Pace Industries Ltd.

President Richard Rude, of Victoria, said six subsidiaries would be reorganized into Pace Services Ltd., leaving four operating companies in the group.

The consolidation includes Oly Food Services Ltd., Oly Food Services (Prince George) Ltd., West Coast Vending Ltd., S. Thompson and Associates Ltd., Kwik Kanteen Ltd. and Pacific Automat Ltd.

The operating firms will be National Oven Products Inc., Spudnut Industries Inc., Spudnuts of Canada Ltd. and United Casdade Foods Inc.

SAME PEOPLE

Under the reorganization base officers and branch officers will be the same people, resulting in a big saving, Rude explained. "Part of the problem has been home office control."

So far this year corporate overhead has been reduced $250,000, he said.

This move will "streamline" the way to further development.

Although sales are five times what they were two years ago, there has not been commensurate improvement in earnings. "The profit picture hasn't been what it should be," Rude said.

Push-Button Bank Teller

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The push-button bank teller — a machine capable of performing eight types of transactions — will strt testing soon at the Bank of California.

The vank, which has branches in three states, announced Tuesday it would try out two of the automatic teller machines developed by Do Cutel Co., Dallas, Tex.

If they work, the mechanical clerks will be used on a 24-hour, seven-day a week basis as an express teller during banking hours and as an after-hours convenience.

The bank said the new gadget is more than a "cash dispensing" machine as it can handle withdrawals, deposits, payments and account transfers. The customer must provide a coded identification card to activate the machine. He then uses an illuminated panel to select the desired transaction.

Inco

International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. second quarter earnings were less than half the profit in the period last year, and the quarterly dividend has been cut for the first time since 1944.

Net earnings were $26 million on sales of $211.46 million, producing 35 cents a share profit, vs. $57.96 million, on sales of $296.6 million, giving 78 cents a share.

In the first half sales were $440.5 million and net was $62.64 million (84 cents) against $540.77 million, $102.4 million and $1.37 respectively.

The dividend next quarter will be 25 cents, down from 40 cents.

Gen. Bakeries

Net income of General Bakeries Ltd. for the first quarter ended July 3, was $73,000 or 9.7 cents a share compared with a loss of $35,000 a year ago. Sales increased 9.7 percent to $9.5 million from $8.69 million.

Horne, Pitfield

Horne and Pitfield Foods Ltd., reports net income of $490,309 or 26.8 cents a share for the year ended April 3, compared with $496,904 (27.1 cents) in the previous year.

The company said it considered the results satisfactory "after allowing for extreme competitive conditions and the cost of opening new corporate stores."

Sales totalled $75.0 million, against $70.5 million.

Cash flow increased by 6.5 per cent to $796,447 and working capital rose by $272,574 to $3.0 million.

Imasco

Consolidated earnings of Imasco Ltd., were $7.85 million for the half year ended June 30, compared with $7 million for the corresponding period in 1970.

The company said consolidated sales of $267.5 million for the first half represented an 8 per cent decline from $291 million for the same period in 1970.

The higher earnings were attributed to improved returns from tobacco, retail and wine operations.

New Mutual Sales 'Tough To Come By'

NEW YORK (WP) — Although spokesmen for the U.S. mutual fund industry point to a "normal" increase in share redemptions as the cause of the precedent-setting net cash outflow from the funds in the past two months, industry leaders here frankly concede that the real problem is at the other end of the scale — new sales are becoming more and more difficult to come by.

In May, the funds monitored by the Investment Company Institute, the industry's trade organization, reported that they redeemed $121 million more worth of shares than they sold.

Although net redemptions fell to $32 million in June, the result was still a disappointment, since June is a month in which a large number of funds pay dividends and many of those are reinvested in fund shares, bolstering the sales picture.

LAGGING SALES

Officials of funds point to several reasons for lagging sales. One is the general apathy among small investors, who have shied away from direct investment in the stock market as well.

Possibly more important, the mutual reform bill passed last year, which cut sharply into the commissions paid to fund salesmen, has caused great uncertainty within the industry.

Some smaller distributors of so-called "front-end-load" or "contractual" plans have abandoned the programs because of changes imposed on the industry by the reform bill. Other firms have changed the way they collect sales charges — and, in the process, slowed down their payments to salesmen.

MORE OUT

In May, the first month in history in which the funds paid out more than they took in, the $428.2 million in redemptions equalled 9.6 per cent of assets. In May, 1970, the $300.0 million in redemptions were 9 per cent of assets.

In June, the funds reported redeeming $466 million, but that as only 7.9 per cent of the total assets.

Sales, on the other hand, are another story. Actually, sales of mutual funds have been in a steady if jagged downtrend since the first quarter of 1969, when they topped $700 million. In May, sales were $306.7 million and, in June, they climbed to $434.2 million.

Subcontracts Alright

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian subcontracts totalling $65 illion for the TriStar airbus, a project of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., will be honored, a trade department spokesman said Tuesday.

After Rolls-Royce Ltd. of Britain, manufacturer of the TriStar engines, had a financial collapse, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin told the Commons in February Canadian subcontracts involving 735 potential jobs were in jeopardy.

But British government aid to Rolls-Royce an dthe U.S. senate's approval Monday of loan guarantees for Lockheed kept the project alive.

$800 a Week Not Enough?

100 MILE HOUSE, B.C. (CP) — Workers already earning up to $800 a week on unlimited overtime have lost their jobs on a pipeline project in the Cariboo district because of a dispute over a living-out allowance.

Calgary-based Mannix Co. Ltd. announced it has dismissed 100 members of the operating engineers and laborers unions following a recent wildcat walkout at the 100-Mile House project.

Some Teamsters union members who had participated in the walkout have since returned to their jobs.

THE ISLANDER

A Crusoe Within Trying to Escape

When I first met David Conover some years ago — a friendship cemented, I must confess, by an unbecoming smugness that we were supermen who had not only conceived an Island Philosophy, but made it a way of life — he was at work on an article for Good Housekeeping magazine to be called "We Bought An Island."

It was '47 or '48. Dave and his beautiful wife, Jeanne, were busy establishing a resort on Wallace Island, a 200-acre atoll in Trincomali Channel. I, and my beautiful wife, had recently made the traumatic, umbilical break from a lifetime of city living to take up residence on Salt Spring Island. Perhaps we were both in need of reassurance that we'd done the right thing. Our occasional meetings in Mouat's General Store were devoted to a kind of reciprocal wonder that we were such rare, superior, imaginative, pioneering, truth-seeking giants.

Then Conover's magazine article appeared. The mail began to arrive by the bag-full at Wallace Island. All over North America, it appeared, there were thousands, tens of thousands, hundreds of thousands, with precisely the same dream that we'd thought so exclusively ours, precisely the same plans to make it reality. Island Fever, it was easy to see, was as endemic and fully as contagious as The Common Cold.

In the years since then Dave has persistently pursued the self-analysis, the rationale, the inner motivations that have made him, as Jeanne once tartly put it, a man "who'd buy a rock if it was surrounded by water." He has never wanted for an audience. Though he was an unknown writer, just the title of his first work, "Once Upon An Island," caused the largest-ever sale (over two-and-a-half-million) of the Reader's Digest condensed book series.

Now, with the publication of his second book, "One Man's Island," Dave is still at it. "I would rather talk about islands than eat," he confesses, "would rather — and often do — think about islands than sleep." It's a book, I expect that the critics will accord mixed notices. But when Conover is reflecting on his Island Philosophy he is, as they say, right on, man.

Generally speaking, there are two types of men who long for an island of their own, the negative and the positive. Dave and I might well serve as classic cases of each.

With me, I don't mind admitting, it was negative. It wasn't so much what I was going to that impelled me, but what I was trying to leave behind. I craved escape, a chance to sit back for awhile as a spectator, to sort things out in a calm, cool and contemplative atmosphere, as men do on entering a religious retreat. It was a decision that could be revoked at any time. Though it took 18 years, it was revoked without regrets, in the end.

"I just woke up one morning in Los Angeles and realized that I was confusing happiness and pleasure with joy," he told me last week when, reluctantly, he came to town for an autographing session.

"I had the happiness and the pleasure, but not the joy. I didn't need an escape. I needed a confrontation — with myself. I wanted self-sufficiency not so much for itself, but to explore my own capabilities and potentials. Could I make a house? Could I dig a well? Could I build a boat? I had constantly in mind Allan Dartford's stricture, 'Life is a petty thing unless there is an urge to expand its boundaries.' Or, to put it another way, I wanted to know, before the game was over, what I was capable of. An island seemed the way to find out."

* * *

That compulsion has mellowed now into a conviction that you'll find shared by a great many people who have sought refuge in the Gulf Islands, a breed famed for eccentricity, but, in fact, as un-fevered, as well-balanced and as self-reliant as any I know.

Fifteen years ago, on the day that the Conovers were marking their 50th anniversary as islanders, Dave made a note in his journal that perhaps best summarizes the way he feels today.

"The older I grow," he wrote, "the more clearly I see the faults of society, the more I am inclined to live not as a recluse or misanthrope but as a solitary man here on the fringe. I thrive best on my own soil though another man may root better in society. I find the city a feast to the eye and to the glacial reign of the intellect, but so little there is to nourish the heart and spirit. Self-service stores are empty of self-served man. Everyone wears, as Emerson put it, the 'shopman's smile.' The poverty of sincerity is so rampant that nothing is as rare as an authentic soul. Everything is show. Pursuit. A blur of busyness. The days merely business deals; the hours are but details, to be hurriedly wrapped up. It takes time to love. To be kind, to be human. Streetbound, I fear I would suffer a far greater malnutrition than if I were stranded on an island."

Back there when we were so smugly sure that we were men apart, that escape or self-discovery or whatever it really is was something we'd arrived at entirely on our own, we simply wouldn't have believed that there were vast numbers of men who nourished the very same dream.

Dave now sees it, paradoxically, as a dream of success and there are two sentences in "One Man's Island" that put it on the line.

"When you stop and think, isn't success really freedom — living the life you want?" he asks at one point.

$250,000 PRICE TAG

Junk Car Plan of Little Value: Dealer

A Victoria scrap dealer said today that a B.C. government plan for salvaging junked cars "hasn't been well thought out" because private companies can already do the job.

Ron Greene of Morris Greene Industries made the statement following Tuesday's announcement by Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan of a plan to purchase two car compactors for an estimated $250,000.

●

Kiernan said the service — which involves assembling of car hulks with the co-operation of municipalities — would be free where the government is given possession of the compacted cars. These would be sold as smelter feed.

Greene said that the bottleneck in the junk-car business is in the price obtained for the compacted metal, and two new government-owned compactors won't change that.

At present, said Greene, the market is depressed. At $18 a ton, there is no profit margin.

Morris Green Industries handled about 6,800 junk cars in the last 12 months, he said.

Greene, who has a meeting planned with Kiernan today to discuss the project, said the government plan will be in "direct competition" with the private scrap dealers.

Greene said his company has the only facilities for economically shipping compacted cars by barge to the smelters. When the price obtainable is as much as $24 a ton, which it was earlier this year, it becomes economical to seek junk cars from as far away as Port Alberni.

●

Cars are only compacted for shipping convenience, he said, so if it is uneconomical to ship them, compacting them does not automatically remove them.

He said, however, that the government compactors would probably be useful in the Interior.

The government compactors "might be very wise in areas other than the Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island," he said, but these are the areas in which the government apparently plans to operate.

Greene also pointed out that compactors are only useful when the engine of a car has been removed. The engine must also be scrapped.

Municipalities must often pay to have junk cars removed by a scrap dealer. City crews or hired tow-trucks bring the abandoned cars to a city works yard. When about 10 cars are accumulated in Victoria, they are advertised for sale.

Last year the City of Victoria collected 65 cars. Another 41 have been collected to date this year.

●

A city official said the municipality would welcome the government scheme and probably save money.

Of 71 abandoned vehicles reported, 10 required disposal. Thus far in 1971, 65 abandoned cars have been reported in Saanich and police are holding 2 for probable disposal.

City officials report it costs $8 to $9 to have a junk car taken away by a scrap dealer. Other costs are incurred in collecting the cars from the place of abandonment.

Even during reasonable market conditions, Morris Greene Industries can pay only $1 or $1.50 to a person who wants to get rid of a car not in running condition.

Delivered to the yard, a car can fetch $6.50.

All You Need Is Courage To Get Past Safety Test

By PETER McNELLY

Someone—I think it was a hitch-hiking boy scout—told me my auto safety inspection sticker had expired.

Naturally, I ignored him. After all, those dots which read "expires June 15" couldn't be read from outside the car.

My turn signals blinked properly, the police were working to rule and that probably meant they wouldn't be stopping cars for a safety check.

I thought, let it slide. I'll get it checked after the vacation—if the old stove survives.

After some emergency radiator surgery in Los Angeles — "That'll be $23.50 for the reverse flush, the anti-freeze, compression check and hoses."—the old 1956 Chevy limped north to this great island.

* * *

Among the inevitable bills which arrived the day after we unpacked, was a friendly automated reminder from B.C. motor vehicle superintendent Ray Hadfield.

I had, said the note, approximately 10 days to get my car inspected or its licence would be suspended.

"Hmm," I said, throwing the note away. "Would they really do that?"

So we drove to the testing station, my heart pumping, the carburetor wheezing. This was it. All those white-coated technicians with their gauges and charts. Doom.

But no. In five minutes it was over. It had made it. Not even a headlight adjustment was required.

The man in the white coat gave me my "motor-vehicle inspection report" punched approved.

There must be some mistake. That's a 16-year-old car they just approved. Surely the pitman arm or the idler arm or the worm and sector are worn out.

But a call to Hadfield proved reassuring. He explained the inspection staff don't check each mechanism listed on the report, but have devices which reveal faults that then would be traced to the defective part.

"They can spot major faults and get keyed to areas without necessarily putting their fingers on a problem," Hadfield said.

"You may not know this, but when they lift the front end up, it's designed to show whether the ball joint assembly is defective." I didn't know that.

Department statistics show most rejections are for poorly aimed headlights. Steering mechanisms, tires, mufflers and service brakes all take second place in the category of defects causing rejection.

About 60 per cent of all vehicles are rejected the first time. A rejected vehicle has an average of 2.04 defects.

WILD CHASE MAN GETS MENTAL EXAMS

A decision on whether to press charges against a motorist who led police on a high-speed chase Tuesday will be postponed until officials have the results of a psychiatric examination.

Police said today the decision to press charges or not against the man would be deferred until the examination was completed.

Four vehicles, including that of the 47-year-old motorist, were damaged in the chase, during which speeds up to 70 m.p.h. were reached.

The man, driving a small foreign car, bumped the fender of a city police cruiser on Richmond when the chase began shortly after 9 a.m. Damage was estimated at about $20.

The driver also hit another vehicle at Douglas and Saanich causing about $700 and forced another car off the road at Douglas and Trans-Canada causing about $45 damage. No one was injured.

Tentative Agreement On Ferries

Officials of the marine baranch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union are recommending the settlement to the 1,600 members, branch business agent Norman Thornber said today.

Details of the tentative settlement were not released because they have not been relayed to union members, said Thornber.

"We feel it is a good settlement," he added.

Terminal committees will hold meetings Monday and ratification ballots will be going out at the same time, he said.

Earlier, the union said regulations issued by B.C. Ferries lumped together absenteeism of all kinds and that 200 employees were told in letters they could be fired if absent in the next six months.

Glendale Opens 5 Years Later

Glendale Hospital for the physically and mentally handicapped will receive its first patients in about three weeks — five years after construction began — administrator M. F. Hayes said today.

The 300-bed centre, which cost about $7 million, is the third provincial hospital in the field, along with Woodlands at New Westminster and Tranquille at Kamloops.

While patients at Woodlands and Tranquille are either mentally retarded or both physically and mentally handicapped, Glendale will deal with two main categories:

● Patients who are severely retarded mentally but not physically handicapped.

● Those who are severely physically handicapped as well as mentally retarded.

It will also serve as an assessment centre.

Glendale's first patients will be a group of 25 transferred from Woodlands the week of Aug. 26, Hayes said. They will be joined a month later by a second group of 25.

The first group are patients confined to bed. The second will be ambulatory.

In recent weeks the hospital's administration has been concentrating on hiring staff. By the time the first patients arrive there will be a dietary staff of 11, 12 for housekeeping and about 20 nurses plus the administrative staff. Staff training programs will be completed about the end of January.

Glendale, at the end of Markham Road off the West Saanich Road, will provide long-term care for both children and adults.

It has a north south and central block, each with treatment areas on two floors. Each nursing area will have 25 patients and will be linked with a "day room" where those patients who can get out of bed will have an activity program.

Doctors Plan Attack Against Government

About 120 local doctors Tuesday night reached "general agreement" on how to oppose recent government regulations but they are not expected to detail their attack until Friday.

Dr. Gordon Lott, president of the Victoria Medical Society, said today the three-hour meeting produced a "frank and sensible" discussion and general agreement about what should be done.

Objective of the session was to assess local doctors' opinions and instruct the society's four delegates on what position to take when they attend the board of director's meeting of the B.C. Medical Association in Vancouver Friday.

Doctors generally are upset by:

● New licensing regulations for medical laboratories and diagnostic facilities, apparently aimed at private operations in the hope of checking climbing costs to medicare.

● New powers granted Health Minister Ralph Loffmark by the cabinet, enabling him to grant, restrict or deny hospital privileges to a doctor.

The position that B.C. doctors will take is expected to be detailed following Friday's meeting and a meeting of the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons in Vancouver Saturday.

arthur mayse

AT SOME PERIOD IN every boy's life, he should be plucked out of education's mainstream for a spell of instruction in various skills that he won't value until a few years later. I can't think of a better laboratory for this course than a suburban house of the sort that may one day be his castle.

The house would be planned and administered by a panel of veteran home-owners. From their pooled experience, they would devise a long list of home maintenance problems for students to solve, and emergencies with which they'd be required to cope.

The panelists, of whom I'd hope to be one, would be expected to approach their assignment with imagination and a vein of sadism. They would be masters of the double whammy, in which disaster coincides with catastrophe.

It isn't enough, for instance, that on a night of torrential rain, the householder in training should become aware of an ominous toc-toc-toc that tells him a roof-leak is dripping on his living room ceiling. At this point, a power failure should douse all lights.

As a nice little extra touch, he should stumble and grope his way to a flashlight, only to discover that its batteries are burned out.

Naturally, it wouldn't do to demoralize the student new to the course by clobbering him with so complex a situation. Better to ease him gently into home upkeep with a dripping tap. But let's not make it too easy, since to do so might encourage brash over-confidence.

For a start, the screwdriver has gone missing. He tries his luck with a table-knife, and the screw that secures the tired old washer crumbles away. Also, the only replacement washer in the house is either too large or too small.

Thus we pose an exercise in making-do that will stand him in good stead when a tougher situation confronts him. The kind of thing, perhaps, that once kept me jammed head and shoulders in an under-sink cupboard for most of a bruising and frustrated morning.

This sink graced the kitchen of a house into which we'd just moved. In addition to hot and cold water taps, it was fitted with one of those hose-and-nozzle dinguses for spraying plants. My wife reached for the sprayer and found herself holding a length of tubing that had parted company with its connection.

Three hours later, I was still in there with several wrenches, a pair of pliers, a hammer and a set of skinned knuckles.

I also had a wet head that got soaked again each time my dear one turned the hot or cold water on in forgetful moments.

Oh yes, I finally got the blasted connection loose from its pipe. The point is that a kid trained in the householders' course I recommend would have finished the job in minutes or even seconds.

Perhaps the modern school gives at least a little thought to arming the husbands of the future with such homely fixit skills. All I got was something called manual training useful in itself, but insufficient to meet the demands that householding imposes. Knowing how to make an umbrella stand isn't much help when a power mower won't start or a car horn won't stop, or the new-painted roof gutter breaks out in blisters.

The naturally handy seem to acquire such knowledge by a process effortless as osmosis. But, lacking a crash course of the sort I advocate, the sorethumb householder is forever a prey to crises for which he has no ready solutions.

How to take the squeak out of a floor, for instance.

How to open a paint-sealed window, and how to replace the pane he cracks while struggling to raise that same obstinate window.

How to locate the studs under the plaster when putting hooks in a wall. How to instal a set of boat trailer lights so the left-turn blinker won't go into action when a right turn is indicated . . .

I could go on, and so could my patient wife, who contributed the business of the wall studs and the paint-sealed window. But I have a little job to do — some raspberry wires to string between posts — and how do I fighten the top wire without getting a sag in the bottom one?

In my school of hard knocks for future householders, such knowledge would be elementary.

Two-China Idea A Clumsy Trick, Claims Peking

Times News Services

China today described the United States' decision to support Peking's membership in the United Nations as a "clumsy 'two-Chinas' trick."

And in Washington President Nixon cautioned against hopes that his talks with the Chinese leaders will lead to an immediate end to the Vietnam war.

The New China News Agency issued its first comment on the announcement Monday that the U.S. would support seating of Peking at the UN "but not at the expense of Nationalist China." It was the United States continued support for the Nationalists that evoked the sharp criticism rom Peking.

'ILLEGAL, FUTILE'

"The clumsy 'two Chinas' trick played by U.S. imperialism is absolutely illegal and futile," the NCNA article said. "We are deeply convinced that the justice-upholding countries and people of the world will never allow anyone under the signboard of 'two Chinas' to continue to obstruct the restoration to the People's Republic of China of her legitimate seat in the United Nations."

Nixon at a news conference said when he meets Chinese leaders every "hard problem" facing the two countries and the world will be subject to discussion.

Speaking to reporters crowded around his desk, Nixon described China as "potentially the most powerful nation in the world." He said "there cannot be world peace unless there is communication" between China and the United States.

There are "no conditions" and "no deals" with the Communist Chinese about the subjects of discussion.

"We will discuss any point of difference that might affect the peace of the world," he said.

Nixon also made these points:

- Neither the Soviet Union nor Washington sees any real point in his (Nixon) making a side trip to Moscow while going to China.
- He stands by his prediction that 1971 will be "a good year" for the U.S. economy and that 1972 will be "a very good year."
- The United States will maintain a policy of "complete neutrality" regarding the forthcoming elections in South Vietnam.
- The United States will boost its help for the victims of famine in East Pakistan but will not cut off its aid to the Pakistani government.

MAJOR TOPICS

The president's planned trip to Peking and the state of the economy were the major topics at the news session. Nixon said a "small working party" consisting of State Secretary William P. Rogers and Henry A. Kissinger, a close adviser, will accompany him.

In the United Nations the U.S. worked behind the scenes to line up support for resolutions that would invite the Communists to join and at the same time prevent the expulsion of Taiwan.

ASK SPONSORS

Cabinet Takes Second Look At Health Rules

Premier Bennett announced today the provincial government is going to discuss possible "improvements" in recent orders-in-council which have angered the medical profession.

Bennett said Provincial Secretary Wesley Black and Health Minister Ralph Loffmark will head separate committees to discuss the orders-in-council with the medical profession.

The orders gave Black's department the power to license medical laboratories and Loffmark the power to decide whether doctors get hospital privileges.

Bennett said the orders, which are still in effect, had served the purpose of bringing "forcibly to the attention of the parties involved" the government's aim to have the "great reforms" of medicare and hospital insurance programs continued in B.C.

Strikers Greet Trudeau

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Striking fish plant workers and electricians were among the crowd greeting Prime Minister Trudeau when he arrived here today.

The placard-waving workers represented members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the Newfoundland Fishermen, Food and Allied Workers.

Both unions have been on strike about two months in jurisdictional disputes, the IBEW against the Newfoundland and Labrador Construction Association and the fishermen against Burgeo Fisheries Ltd.

Mr. Trudeau, clad in a pink sport shirt and blue slacks, shook hands and spoke with several people as he made his way into the arts and culture centre in the north end of the city where he was greeted by Premier Joseph Smallwood.

PAKISTANIS SEEK U.S. ASYLUM

14 Embassy Staff Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen members of the Pakistan embassy here, including seven senior diplomatic officers, resigned today, pledging loyalty to the Bangla Desh independence movement in East Pakistan and asking for political asylum in the United States.

The resignations included one ranking minister, three counsellors, one second secretary, one third secretary and the deputy permanent representative of the Pakistan mission to the United Nations.

"This is our moment of decision," said Sayyed A. Karim, the No. 2 Pakistan representative at the UN. "We have decided to join the suffering millions of Bangla Desh who are resisting with their lives the barbarity of the West Pakistan army who are determined to reduce East Pakistan to a colony."

Karim declared that the Pakistan government "now is a military junta of West Pakistanis desperate to retain its stranglehold over the country.

It has nullified the results of a free and fair election held under its own auspices only seven months back. It has chosen to mute the majority of the people by the most savage application of brute force.

"It's authority rests totally on its military strength and its control is limited by the range of its artillery. It has therefore lost all pretences to legitimacy of power and it has destroyed the Pakistani nation."

Greece, Pakistan May Lose Aid

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The House of Representatives has called for the suspension of United States foreign aid to the Greek and Pakistan military governments.

The House approved Tuesday night by only eight votes a two-year U.S. foreign aid authorization bill containing provisions suspending economic and military aid to the two countries.

Informed congressional sources said the administration decided not to oppose openly the provisions to avoid possible defeat of its entire foreign aid bill.

However House Republican Leader Gerald Ford said President Nixon will use an "escape clause" to allow provision of aid to Greece, a NATO ally, in the security interests of the United States.

The narrowness of Tuesday night's vote—220 to 192—made it clear the foreign aid bill would have been defeated by a combination of conservatives opposed to aid in general and liberal critics of the Greek and Pakistan governments had the administration tried to delete the suspensions.

The administration, which is walking a diplomatic tightrope with both Greece and Pakistan, as well as Congress, thus gained House approval of the bill providing $3.44 billion for the current fiscal year which began July 1, and $3.49 billion for fiscal 1973.

Israel Said Conceding

JERUSALEM (AP) — Newspapers here say Israel is ready to pull troops back 25 miles from the Suez Canal as part of an agreement to reopen the waterway but still will not permit Egyptian soldiers to replace the Israelis on the eastern bank.

The reports say Premier Golda Meir will give this decision to U.S. Assistant State Secretary Joseph Sisco today at their third meeting since Sisco arrived last week.

The newspaper Davar says Sisco relayed an Egyptian proposal for several hundred Egyptian soldiers to cross the canal following the Israeli evacuation. But the report says Mrs. Meir, after consulting her cabinet, decided to reject the proposal.

BEER TO FLOW

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia beer strike and lockout, involving 250 workers for Molson and Labatt in Vancouver and many of the province's beer drinkers, is expected to end Thursday.

Longshore Strike Feels Cool Breeze

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Progress in local bargaining at four ports has brought the first sign of movement in the month long U.S. West Coast longshoremen's strike.

Edwin W. Scott, regional director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, said Tuesday a meeting of three western governors on the strike was postponed because of progress in talks on work rules and jurisdiction in Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

"Getting these matters out of the way will give both sides the opportunity to meet on the big picture, the main issues, of a coastside contract," said Scott.

Governors of California, Washington and Oregon were set to talk with union and management here today until J. Curtis Counts, director of the mediation service in Washington, D.C., postponed their meeting indefinitely.

Counts' office declined to say whether the walkout of 15,000 dock workers might end soon at 24 West Coast ports.

RUSSIA-U.S. REACH ACCORD

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States and Russia have completed a new draft treaty banning all biological weapons, western disarmament officials said today.

It is planned to present the treaty to the 25-nation disarmament conference Thursday, the officials said.

American and Soviet negotiators hope the rest of the conference participants will approve the draft so that it can be sent to the United Nations General Assembly in October, they said.

French Move Sends Gold Prices Flying

Dollar Weak, U.K. Market Hit Hard

LONDON (UPI) — New French currency regulations notified to Paris banks sparked a sudden foreign currency storm today, sent the gold price soaring and helped send the British stock market sharply lower.

The U.S. dollar was weak in most European centres, market sources said. The Canadian dollar retained stability.

Foreign exchange dealers stopped quoting rates for a short while in already jittery markets while hoping to clarify the situation. Some dealers later limited themselves to handling French francs only for immediate commercial transactions. Uncertainty gripped markets and produced erratic rate movements in later trading.

Rumors from Zurich hit the market to the effect that Swiss banks had suspended all Swiss franc-dollar dealings. But it was reported from Switzerland that only a few local banks pulled out.

A spokesman for one of the big three banks said they were still trading dollars and Swiss francs, but on a more limited scale than usual.

NORMAL ENOUGH

A London dealer said the session opened normally enough but markets plunged into confusion by noon when interpretations of the French banking circular flowed in.

By the afternoon some banks in London said they still were not entirely clear about the true meaning and impact of the new French money rules.

In some quarters the French move was construed as underlining French doubts about the health of the U.S. dollar. Others felt it was intended to kill speculation about an upward revaluation of the French franc.

Another rumor roaming markets was that France had started a two-tier foreign exchange system which French officials later denied.

HIGHLY NERVOUS

One dealer said today exchange markets had been highly nervous since the West German mark broke away from its fixed rate against the dollar in May and was permitted to "float" in response to bank and market pressures.

The Swiss franc was then also up-valued along with the Austrian schilling, and the Dutch guilder also "floated."

The dollar has been suspect in Europe's markets for weeks and gossip of devaluation grew with the heavy flow of dismal economic news from the United States.

This distrust was partly mirrored in the recent speculative upsurge in the price of free market gold and the rush to sell dollars and buy West German marks, Swiss francs,

PETITIONS SUPREME COURT IN SAIGON

Ky Running to Climb on Presidential Bandwagon

SAIGON (CP) — Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky petitioned the Supreme Court today for a place on the Oct. 3 presidential ballot, but his petitions lacked 38 of the 100 necessary certified endorsements by provincial councilmen.

"I have not given up," Ky told a news conference. "I am still fighting."

If the court rejects his petitions, Ky said, "then we will see what happens."

He conceded that his petition was partly an appeal to public opinion, and his aides acknowledged that they do not expect the court to accept his candidacy. His application was temporarily accepted by the court pending a final decision.

Ky circulated a list of 102 councilmen he said had signed for him, but he said 40 of them had been forced to endorse Thieu earlier. He asked the court to award these to him. He charges that Thieu used pressure to collect signatures which he did not need and at the same time prevent province chiefs and mayors from certifying endorsements given to Ky.

Ky accused Thieu of using his power to abuse the law and his money to monopolize the election.

He said the election has become a fraud and is beneath contempt.

"There seems to be no limitation to the dishonest schemes in this election," Ky said.

"President Thieu has used his power to abuse the law and his money to monopolize the election," the vice-president said.

He said he deems it his duty to alert people to the dangers of a dishonest election.

Flanked by his proposed vice-presidential running mate, Truong Vinh Le, Ky said the Thieu administration has used terror and intimidation against provincial councilors to force them not to endorse his application.

. . . BENNETT

He said rising costs were a factor in the passage of the orders but not the entire reason for them.

Bennett said the two committees will discuss the possibility of "improving" the orders if necessary to ensure that "proper responsibility" is shared by the government and the people involved in spending money under medicare and hospital insurance programs.

INVITATIONS

The premier said invitations have been issued by the two ministers for the discussions.

Solutions "satisfactory to all" will be the aim of the talks, in keeping with the ideals of a democratic society, Bennett said.

"If costs go out the window, that is the only way we will destroy these two great reforms," he said.

Bennett said the issues shouldn't be considered in the light of conflict — such as whether the government or the doctors should "give in" — but in the light of the need for co-operation.

Bennett said the discussions would be held "in a free manner and would make clear to the medical and hospital people "what the aims of the government really are."

He said the moves are being taken now that enough time has elapses since the passage of the orders to ensure that everyone is aware of the government's aims.

BARRETT HIT

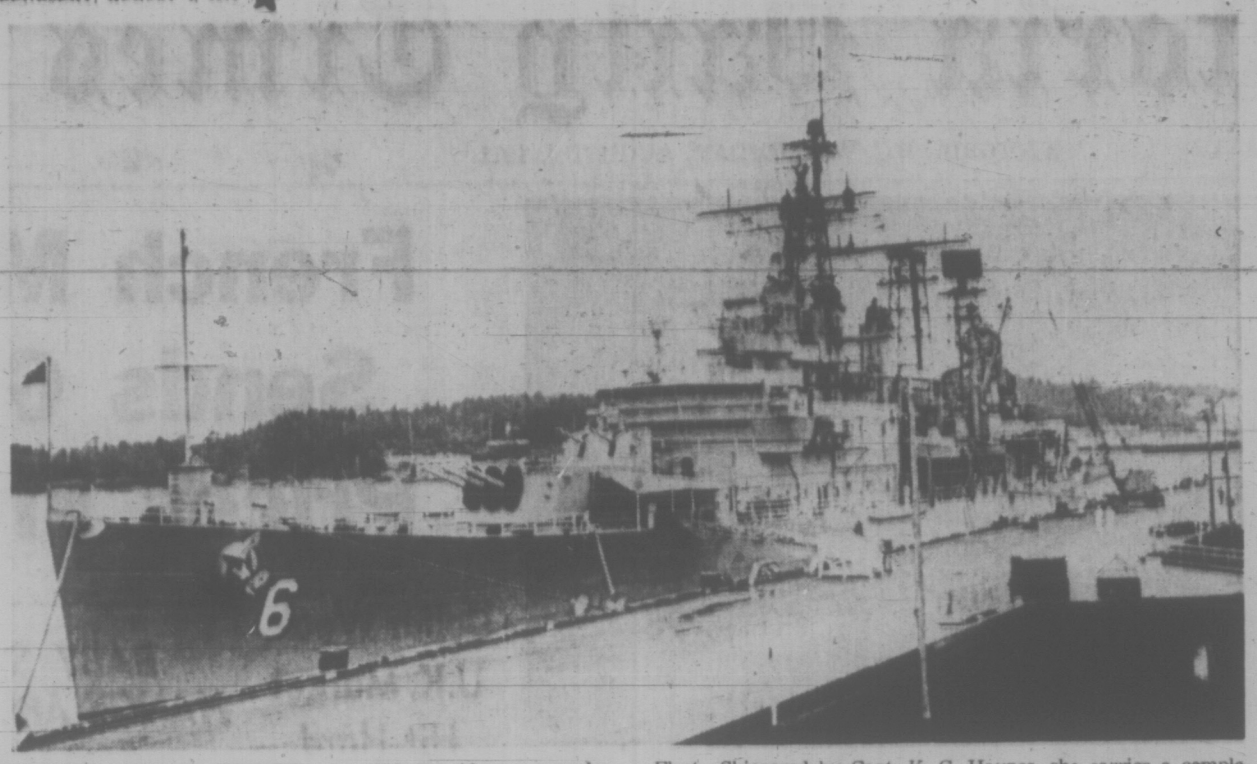
Bennett also criticized opposition leader Dave Barrett for having described the use of orders-in council as an abuse of democratic process.

He said the Social Credit party in its early election campaigns was opposed to the use of secret orders-in-council, not to the proper use of publicly announced cabinet policies.

"How stupid can he be?" Bennett said of Barrett's complaints.

The premier declined to say that the government is prepared to abandon the controversial orders.

"We want to get the proper results," he said, stressing that the aim is to ensure medicare and hospital insurance programs continue "in perpetuity."



GUIDED - MISSILE CRUISER, the USS Providence, snuggles alongside a jetty in the dockyard of CFB, Esquimalt. Daylight Train Robbery in Lachine

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Five masked men, "armed to the teeth," staged a spectacular daylight robbery of the Canadian National Railway's Lakeshore passenger Montreal to Toronto train but apparently were frustrated in their search for cash.

"If we find out that the money was really on this train we'll come back and cut your throats," one of the bandits told engineer Max Bassett, of Two Mountains, Que.

Mr. Bassett, interviewed here after the robbery in Lachine, an east-end suburb of Montreal, said he stopped the train at a signal crossing when three armed men came to the engineer's cab and told him to get out.

"They told us to put the brakes on and then lie in the grass," Mr. Bassett said. "Then they changed their minds and took us to the baggage cars (about four cars back of the engine.)

"They were definitely looking for money," he said. "They told us so. When we got to the baggage car there were another two men already there ripping open bags of mail."

Four of the masked gunmen were armed with revolvers and a fifth wielded a sub-machine gun.

"I was surprised they had enough guts and stayed for five minutes," said Mr. Bassett. "The men left with parcels and ran over to their car."

The robbery may have been prompted by rumours that a $500,000 shipment was on one of the Montreal to Toronto trains.

The rumour was not confirmed or denied but engineer Bassett said: "I guess they got the wrong train."

CARRIED NO CASH

Mr. Bassett, who has been an engineer for 20 years, said he didn't think the robbers "got away with very much. All they said was, 'do what you're told and you won't get hurt.'"

A spokesman for the post office investigation department said that the only valuable in the postal consignment was a $1,000 bond. There was no cash, he said.

Mr. Bassett said no shots were fired. He said the gunmen spoke English with a heavy French accent.

"They didn't rough us up and the guy kept pushing that machine gun in my back," said Mr. Bassett. "After making it through World War Two, I wasn't going to let that crook do me in."

A police spokesman said the men stopped the train while it was moving slowly in an area where CN said it often stops on a block signal.

Residents, Modellers Come to Agreement

A delegation representing petitioners who complained two weeks ago to Central Saanich council appeared Monday with peaceful acceptance of the modellers' new practise schedule "for duration of the '71 flying season."

Flying hours are from 6-8:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sunday.

They stipulated however that the plane club keep to the far eastern end of the polo fields beside East Saanich Road, install proper mufflers and look for more isolated grounds.

Robert Durke of the plane club was happy with the residents' co-operation but warned "there is no end to the flying season."

Modellers continue to fly in winter but are, of course, restricted by hours of daylight. Durke suggested that longer week-end practises might be arranged at that time.

Central Saanich council agreed that residents and modellers had reached a reasonable solution for the time being — and will reassess the matter at the end of September.

French francs and even the British pound.

In most European centres, state banks have recently had to prop up the dollar to prevent it falling below its official "floor" price set by the International Monetary Fund.

It was against this highly charged and rumor-ridden background that the new French ruling hit the exchange markets.

It said, in part, that as from Aug. 3 French banks can sell no more francs than than they buy. The government also eased some of its controls on money movements out of the country.

The Bank of France today issued a communique which denied rumors about the creation of a double or two-tier money exchange market but said its own circular had "resulted in erroneous interpretations."

Financial quarters in Paris saw the new regulatory move as a bid to reduce pressures for an upwards revaluation of the French franc by encouraging an outflow of the currency.

It was also seen as a way of halting the flow of international "hot" money into France.

French assurances could not immediately calm frayed nerves on London's butling but confused foreign exchange markets and dealings in French francs dwindled sharply, particularly in dollar-franc dealings.

The sources said the resolutions will be submitted for the General Assembly session opening Sept. 21 as soon as the delegations determined whether their governments will become co-sponsors.

The first resolution would offer the Communist regime in Peking a seat in the United Nations, would specify that the Nationalist government on Taiwan would continue to be seated and would direct the specialized UN agencies to take the decision into account.

As a further safeguard to Nationalist China's membership, the second resolution would classify any resolution to expel the Nationalists as an "important" question requiring for its adoption a two-thirds majority of those voting.

Canada, U.S.S.R. Agree On Arctic Research

MOSCOW (Reuter)—Agreement on establishing a Canadian-Soviet group on Arctic research was announced today by Jean Chretien, Canada's northern development minister.

Speaking at the end of a 10,000-mile visit to Siberia, Chretien said Russian officials have also raised the possibility of future Canadian-Soviet Arctic expeditions.

Chretien is heading the first official Canadian delegation to the Soviet Union since Prime Minister Trudeau's Moscow visit last May to sign a Canadian-Soviet protocol on consultations.

After his Siberian trip, which included a night in a tent on the tundra wastes eating raw fish and drinking vodka with Chukchi tribesmen, Chretien told reporters Canada can learn from Soviet development of gas pipelines and hydroelectric dams built on permafrost, a permanently frozen layer of soil.

Canada and Russia agreed during a visit here last January by Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin to set up joint working groups to co-operate in the fields of forest-based industry, non-ferrous metals, electrical power and oil.

URGES SPEED

Noting this agreement in a statement published today Chretien said: "I hope that co-operation in the fields of hydroelectric dam construction on permafrost, building construction in the far north and gas pipeline construction on permafrost will move forward quickly in this manner."

He also held out prospects of co-operation in cultural development, special education for northern peoples, natural resource development, northern science research and northern transportation.

He said Canada will start work on a Soviet request for Canada to supply a small group of muskox as a base for re-establishing the species in the Soviet Union.

Much of Chretien's Siberian journey was spent in the vast developing region called Yakutia. In his statement, he described how he saw hydroelectric developments, mining, natural gas, forest industry, fishing and reindeer herding.

He particularly noted the intensive development of river and air transportation in some areas where there are still no roads.

PENNY MAY LEADING

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Penny May of Victoria led the 13 contestants in the Pan-American Games pentathlon after two events today with favored Debbie Van Kiekebelt of Missisauga, Ont., in third place.

Miss May, who won a third-place bronze medal in the 100-metre hurdles Sunday, compiled 1,627 points by recording the second-best time in the hurdles, 14 seconds flat, and leading the field in the shot put with a throw of 41 feet 7¼ inches.

Marlen Elejalde of Cuba, whose 13.7 was the best time in the hurdles, had 1561 points to 1,545 for Miss Van Kiekebelt, who ran the hurdles in 14.5 and heaved the shot 40 feet 6¼ inches second only to Miss May's effort.

Japan Upset Over 'Agent'

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japan lodged an official protest with the Soviet Union today after police arrested a Japanese on suspicion of passing confidential documents on United States military bases here to a Soviet diplomat in Tokyo.

Police said Kobayashi was arrested after a Japanese informant reported that a man had been questioning U.S. servicemen at Yokota air base, on Tokyo's southwestern outskirts, about base activities.
